Hauptmann's Extradition Ordered by Lehman

DEFENSE COUNSEL WILL MAKE FIGHT IN COURT TODAY

FEDERAL OFFICIALS RETIRE FROM CASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Extradition of Bruno Hauptmann to New Jersey to stand trial for the abduction-murder of the Lindbergh baby was ordered at Albany late today by Governor Herbert Lehman.

The order, rushed immediately to New York by special messenger, was served late tonight on police authorities.

A vigorous defense fight against extradition is in prospect for tomorrow. As Governor Lehman signed the papers, Defense Attorney James M. Fawcett was hurrying to New York to prepare for the court test.

"We'll fight extradition to the end," the attorney said.

Fawcett said he would apply tomorrow in a Bronx court for a writ of habeas corpus.

If granted, extradition would be held in abeyance until a court could hear Hauptmann's refutation of charges that he stole the first-born of the flying Lindberghs from his Hopewell home the night of March 1, 1932; that Baby Lindbergh was killed in the preparation of abduction.

Hearing Not Requested.

He did not ask for a hearing before the governor on the extradition request.

"I prefer to carry the case," he said, "direct to the courts."

Hardly had the extradition been authorized than the department of justice in Washington announced its withdrawal from the case.

Inasmuch as no federal indictment is being sought, and because an extortion indictment in New York and a murder indictment in New Jersey have been returned, the department decided on the withdrawal.

It will continue to lend all aid to both states through its division of investigation.

The federal agents have been in the case since the manhunt for Baby Lindbergh's kidnap-slayer started. It kept a thorough and detailed watch for the Lindbergh ransom bills—the trail of gold certificates

Jury Decrees Extreme Penalty for Youth After Hearing His Plea for Mercy; Verdict Reached After 55 Minutes.

Robert Riley, 20-year-old Kirkwood resident, must die in the electric chair on November 23, to atone for the holdup murder of Max Sjoblom at Spring and Marietta streets less than three weeks ago.

A verdict of guilty, without recommendation for mercy, was brought in by the superior court jury at 6:35 o'clock Wednesday night, after a deliberation of 55 minutes. Judge G. H. Howard immediately passed sentence.

The youth did not avail himself of the privilege of comment before sentence was passed, but stood with arms folded and calmly listened to the words of the court in pronouncing punishment. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hughes, had left the courtroom soon after the jury retired, and were not present when sentence was pronounced.

M. G. Hicks, chief counsel for Riley, announced that a motion for a new trial will be filed within the next few days.

After sentencing Riley, Judge Howard expressed the hope and the belief that within his lifetime there will be a great diminution in the number of young men being brought before the court on serious charges, adding that if such changes are brought about agencies other than the courts will serve more effectively than the courts in bringing about such improvement.

Trial of Hoyt Summers, whom Riley in his confession named as his accomplice in the slaying of the Iowa salesman, will be called this morning. It is doubtful, however, if the case will go to trial. Court officials said that it will probably be impossible to strike a jury from the week's panels.

Shortly after Riley made a broken, mumbling plea for mercy, Judge G. H. Howard, of the Fulton superior court, charged the jury and gave the possible verdicts as not guilty, guilty or guilty with recommendation for mercy.

ROBERT RILEY.

Riley's only defense was his address to the jury, which at times could not be heard. He appeared broken in spirit as the hour of his fate drew nearer and all Wednesday he sought the solace of his mother's arms. Tuesday he was smiling and confident but as the case neared the close, the youth apparently began to realize he was in the shadow of death and he begged for a life sentence.

He blamed whisky for the esca-

PIERCE'S DEFENSE SCORED BY STATE

Witness Says Slayer of Densmore Not Authorized To Carry Gun.

Testimony that Fred Pierce, of Gainesville, who shot and killed Clarence Densmore, 22-year-old Afton, Ga., farmer in a liquor raid, did not have authority to carry weapons and that he had been warned not to, featured the third day of his murder trial Wednesday in the federal district court.

C. R. McQuawn, of the alcohol taxing bureau, admitted that Pierce not only did not have authority to carry weapons, but that he did not have a badge. He asserted further under a cross-examination by William Schley Howard, chief prosecution counsel,

INFLATION TALK STIRRED BY F.D.R.

President Says Immediate Rise in Prices Is Imperative.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt made it plain today that he feels prices should go higher and immediately there was speculation as to whether further currency experimentation was planned to bring this about.

The only word forthcoming from the White House was that price developments probably would be a determining factor in future monetary steps.

The price range aimed at by Mr. Roosevelt was not specifically defined. The president was definitely represented as feeling, however, that a further advance was necessary to bring the assets on the nation's balance sheet well ahead of its liabilities.

Opposes Heavy Increases.

Once reasonably satisfactory prices are attained, Mr. Roosevelt hopes to stabilize, in order to eliminate the violent fluctuations of the past. Determined to have the price increase, he is at the same time opposed to anything approximating a runaway uphill.

Mr. Roosevelt's belief that a price increase was imperative has been made known on other occasions but the explanation today was that while progress has been made, the administration intends to press further along the same road.

The president feels that while assets now somewhat overbalance the debt burden—where a year and a half ago the reverse was true—that even this is admittedly a matter for argument.

Back in the boom days of 1929, for example, the nation's assets as a whole were from $75,000,000,000 to $150,000,000,000 above the liabilities.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, has not indicated that he has any intention of returning to the inflated values of the late 1920's and even the balance in the supposedly halcyon days of 1926 does not thoroughly meet with his favor.

The price relation for some commodities in 1926 might be satisfactory, but the figure for other years would be better for other products, in his opinion. In this connection,

LUKE BOUND OVER ON MURDER COUNT IN THOMAS COUNTY

Case of Thomasville Judge Charged With Slaying Oscar Groover Goes to Grand Jury.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Judge Roscoe Luke, of the city court of Thomasville and former member of the state court of appeals, today was bound over to the Thomas county grand jury on a charge of murder in the slaying of Oscar Groover, his former business associate.

Justice of the Peace W. H. Titus ordered Luke held for the grand jury after an all-day commitment hearing, during which the state sought to prove the slaying was not an accident as had been reported by a coroner's jury.

Luke was ordered to jail in Thomas county, the crime with which he is charged not being bailable except by order of a judge of the superior court upon petition.

Associate Is Shot.

Groover was killed several months ago as he sat in a light delivery truck with Luke. He was secretary of the Citizens Building & Loan Association, which Luke headed.

In a final statement to the court today Luke said, "I had no enmity whatever toward him or his family. I would not have killed him intentionally for anything in the world. I did not know the gun was loaded as I picked it up to lay it on the back of the car. I did not intentionally let the gun go off. I am not guilty of killing him intentionally."

In presenting a large number of witnesses the state attempted to establish a motive for the slaying by an effort to show the affairs of the building and loan company were in bad shape and that Groover alone knew the records and that those essential to showing the condition of the company had been destroyed or lost.

W. H. Wilson, an accountant for the company, which has gone into receivership, and H. H. Merry, the receiver, testified the company was insolvent. Wilson was called by Luke last February to justify balances but said he did not examine the books then except to that end.

He said the books then showed undivided profits of $13,000 but that when the receivership was ordered in May there was a deficit of $94,000.

Certain records were not available after efforts to locate them, the auditor and receiver testified.

On Good Terms.

The defense introduced witnesses to testify as to the circumstances of the killing. They said Luke and Groover were on the best of terms prior to the day of the slaying.

After the slaying Judge Luke had said he had "shot my best friend" and declared the sawed-off shotgun with which Groover was killed was discharged accidentally as he sought to lift it from the floor of the car to a ledge behind the seat.

He was in a highly nervous state after the slaying and was not required to appear at the inquest, which exonerated him.

Brother Testifies.

Among the witnesses presented by the state was H. F. Groover, brother of the dead man, who swore out the warrant against Luke. He testified that prior to the slaying his brother had said Luke "could be convicted for misapplication of funds."

Bob Wetherington said he saw Luke approach the car in which Groover was sitting the night of the slaying and reach downward. Then he saw the flash of a gun and it appeared, Wetherington testified, to be on a level with Groover's head. The defense brought out that Wetherington was a depositor in the building and loan association.

Several witnesses testified as to

Accidents Numerous On Slippery Streets

Slippery streets Wednesday caused a number of minor automobile accidents in the city, two of them being centered about hit-and-run drivers.

W. R. Griffies, 45, of 61 Whitehall street, was struck down by a hit-and-run car at East Fair and Moore streets early Wednesday night. He was treated at Grady hospital for a scalp wound and dismissed.

Edward Prow, 18, drug store delivery boy of 2426 Boulevard drive, S. E., was knocked from his bicycle by another hit-and-run car on Boulevard drive near the South Decatur car line. His arm was broken and his head lacerated, according to Grady attaches.

Olin Askew, a negro, of a Chappell street address, driving a truck struck a patrol wagon on Grant street. He was charged with reckless driving.

RICHARDS, BOLEN, GROGAN WINNERS IN CITY RUNOVERS

Parks Rusk, Cooper and Geffen Defeated in Contests for Council and School Board Posts.

C. M. (Mac) Bolen and former Alderman Alvin L. Richards Wednesday won the councilmanic nominations from the tenth and thirteenth wards, respectively, and Thomas J. Grogan was nominated as second ward board of education member, on the face of unofficial returns of the runover primary compiled by The Constitution.

Bolen defeated former Councilman W. Garland Cooper, and Richards ousted H. Parks Rusk, incumbent.

Grogan, who will begin a three-year term in January as the second ward commissioner, defeated Louis Geffen, runner-up in the September 26 city primary.

Bolen had 587 votes as against 486 for Cooper; Richards 640 votes while Rusk mustered 455, and Grogan 256 votes as compared to 222 for Geffen.

Precinct voting for the contest follows:

2 "A"—Geffen, 129; Grogan, 66; "B"—Geffen, 102; Grogan, 190. Totals, Geffen, 222; Grogan, 256.

Members of the city democratic committee will meet at noon today at the city hall to consolidate results of the polling, declare the official count and nominees.

Bolen issued a statement thanking his friends for their support and promising faithful service.

Richards also thanked his friends and asserted he would give conscientious service to all the people.

Grogan Wednesday night issued a statement in which he thanked his friends and supporters and invited his opponents to co-operate with him for the betterment of the schools.

Richards will serve for three years as Rusk's successor, while Bolen will serve the unexpired term of former Councilman J. Raymond Curtis. Grogan will succeed Charles Bergman, who did not offer to succeed himself as a member of the board from the second ward. He will have a three-year term.

Eucharistic Congress Opens in Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The thirty-second international eucharistic congress was opened today by Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, the papal legate, before the continent's greatest assemblage.

Hundreds of thousands of pilgrims from the world over gathered about a cross more than 100 feet high at Palermo, the city's great park on the shore of the Rio de la Plata.

Four other cardinals, hundreds of bishops and priests and diplomats and cabinet members participated.

NEW YORK, Oct 10.—(AP)—Norman H. Davis, special envoy of the United States to Europe, and Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, sailed for England today on the liner Manhattan to participate in naval conversations in London with Great Britain and Japan.

French Mine Fire Toll Mounts to 24 Dead

LYONS, France, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The death toll in the fire at the St. Gobain chemical factory 15 miles east of here reached 24 today, with 10 others missing.

Three bodies were brought to the surface yesterday and 21 more today. Little hope was held out for the 10 who remained in the workings.

Wife of Oil Magnate Beaten and Kidnaped

Louisville Society Leader Held By Abductors for $50,000 Ransom; Maid Bound and Gagged by Daylight 'Snatchers.'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 10.—(AP) Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, young society leader and wife of a wealthy oil man, was seized from her fashionable home late today by a kidnaper who left a note containing a threat and a demand for $50,000 ransom.

Beaten by the abductor who gained entrance to the house on a pretext and left her maid bound and gagged, Mrs. Stoll was spirited away in an automobile.

Federal, city and county authorities immediately began a wide search.

There was blood on the floor of the home and Mrs. Fowler Willett, 24, maid, who was found bound and gagged, told Mr. Stoll that the man had beaten Mrs. Stoll in a struggle with her and at the point of a pistol had bound the maid to a chair. The hands of Mrs. Stoll, a slender brunet, were then bound with tape.

Mr. Stoll discovered the maid when he returned home shortly after 5 o'clock and later issued a statement addresed to the kidnaper:

"Berry Stoll has just found the note regarding the ransom and arrangements are being made accordingly."

He declined to make its contents public, but it was learned that in addition to demanding money, it contained a threat that William A. Stoll, president of the Stoll Refining Company, was "next on the list." He is a brother of Berry Stoll, the vice president, and is president of the Louisville board of trade. Stoll said the ransom note was found in an upstairs bedroom.

"When I came in," said Mr. Stoll, "I immediately untied the maid from her chair. I got from her a description of the man. She said he was very white of face and that his lips were unusually red. I think he must be a former convict. I then ran to the Clarke (James Clarke Jr.) home and telephoned the police. I also called William Speed, my wife's father and others.

"When I came back home I found the note on a bed upstairs and it contained the information about the ransom. Apparently the kidnapers have me confused with my father, C. C. Stoll. The note kept referring to him. Yet the kidnapers must know me. Maybe it was someone in the army with me, because the maid told me the man declared to her: 'If President's Address Would Feature Launching of Big Program.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be invited to speak and 12 senators and six governors have been asked to attend a mass meeting in Atlanta November 15-17 to launch a long-term promotion program for industrial and economic development in six southeastern states.

Members of the executive committee of the southeastern development board met Wednesday at the Atlanta Athletic Club and outlined plans for the giant undertaking.

The board, which has as advisory members the senators and governors of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, North and South Carolina and Virginia, plans to advance and promote all industrial development in the southeast and to devise a program for progress which will better the economic condition of the states.

A committee to arrange the program for the meeting here will be announced. Senator Walter F. George heads a committee which will call on President Roosevelt within the next few days to invite him to come here for the meeting as he passes through Atlanta en route to his home at Warm Springs. The president will be acquainted with the designs of the development board and members were hopeful that he will accept.

W. S. Lee Jr., of Charlotte, chairman of the organization committee, presided at the meeting Wednesday and T. Guy Woolford, Harrison Jones, Lewis F. Gordon, Preston Arkwright, of Atlanta; Herschel V. Jenkins, of Savannah; John T. Alsop Jr., and Edward Bell, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Jackson Mathews, of Charlotte, N. C., attended.

Co-operative work for the economic advancement of the entire area by breaking down local and state lines and the elimination of interstate and civic competition is the aim of the board.

$1,000 Willed to F.D.R. Given Man's Children

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, who was left $1,000 in the will of Leon Grant McBurney, San Pedro, has assigned his interest in the estate to McBurney's children, superior court records disclosed today.

McBurney's will also bequeathed $1,000 to Joseph Stalin, of soviet Russia, with the statement "I owe him more."

The president was given $1,000 with a clause added: "Hoping all will go for the benefit of human beings."

The document, written in pencil on newsprint paper, provided the children should each receive $1 from the estate "for reasons they all know."

McBurney died December 26, 1933.

PETER TO BECOME SLAV KING TODAY

Parliament To Proclaim Boy Monarch; Nation Is Surprisingly Calm.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 10. Sitting in solemn extraordinary session tomorrow, both houses of the Yugoslav parliament will proclaim 11-year-old Crown Prince Peter king over Yugoslavia's 16,000,000 Serbs, Croats, Slovenes and Dalmations.

Until the new king arrives the newly-appointed regency council will be without power.

After Peter comes home from England and France the members of the regency—Prince Paul, of Yugoslavia, cousin of the dead king; former Minister of Education Stankovitch, and Governor Banterovitch, of Zagres—will take individual oaths of allegiance to him.

The cabinet then will resign.

Alexander will be given a funeral fit for a Caesar. King Boris, of Bulgaria; King Carol, of Rumania, the Prince of Wales, the Italian Crown Prince Humbert, and special envoys from all the crowned heads and states of Europe will attend.

From Split, where the Yugoslavian destroyer Dubrovnik arrives Friday, the king's body will be borne in a royal funeral train through Zagreb to Belgrade while the whole nation bows in mourning.

After the late monarch's body is reinterred in a coffin of solid bronze it will lie in state at Belgrade for two days. Following elaborate consecration services at the national Queen Arrives To See Coffin Depart; Companions of Slayer Sought Throughout France.

By ROBERT B. PARKER.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

MARSEILLE, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The bullet-torn body of Alexander, king of Jugoslavia, was started back to his homeland on a destroyer today as authorities announced discovery of definite proof that the Czech passport found on the body of his assassin was forged.

Meanwhile, France was shaken politically and Europe nervous over possible consequences of his deed at Marseille yesterday.

Fear that the double assassination—of King Alexander, of Yugoslavia, and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, of France—might wreck the continent's peace as did the killing of Archduke Franz Ferdinand at Serajevo 20 years ago, lessened overnight.

Nevertheless, conviction was expressed in many quarters that Kalemen may have changed the course of events in Europe.

Passport Forged.

The question of the assassin's nationality, highly important because of its political implications, preoccupied police over the continent tonight, and everywhere authorities sought clues which might enable them definitely to identify him.

France's surete nationale and authorities at Praha, Czechoslovakia, insisted the Czech passport found on Kalemen's body, which apparently had been visaed by Yugoslav authorities at Zagreb, was forged.

His movements were being traced tonight but for the moment police were assuming that Kalemen was of Croat birth because the tattooing on his body—the skull and crossbones and the initials "INROM" or "VYMRO" beneath—was Balkan.

Homes of Yugoslav refugees in Paris and other capitals were being searched as French secret service men and police sought possible accomplices of the assassin.

It was asserted that Marseille, Paris and Aix-en-Provence police had seen Kalemen with at least two other men and one woman recently.

A person close to the French government said tonight, "A child at the head of a young and fragile state with a regency council must cause anxiety both for Yugoslav unity and for the tranquillity of the Balkans.

Cabinet Insecure.

"With Alexander dead, the peace structure of Europe is weakened in that corner of Europe."

Meanwhile, trouble for the government of Premier Doumergue appeared to be brewing over responsibility for failure to protect King Alexander, as groups of demonstrators on the boulevards shouted insults at police and Albert Sarraut, minister of the that Pierce knew he had no such authority.

McQuawn's testimony is slated to play an important part in the remainder of the trial, as the prosecution indicated it will seek to pin on Pierce not only the unlawful carrying of the death weapon, but also that he used it ruthlessly and without provocation.

On the other hand, the defense, headed by Clint W. Hager, former United States district attorney, and Lawrence Camp, present district attorney, indicated they will attempt today through Pierce's own version of the killing to show that "it was a most regrettable accident for which Pierce is extremely sorry.

Pierec is scheduled to take the witness stand this morning in his own defense. Then there will be rebuttal testimony, arguments of attorneys, the charge of Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood to the jury and the case will go to the jury.

An imposing array of witnesses, many of whom are either federal or state officials, were paraded before the jury late Wednesday afternoon in an effort to establish Pierce's good character. All testified that his character is good and that his reputation is good.

Howard and Hager engaged in several oral tilts over admissibility of evidence and the manner of asking questions during the Wednesday afternoon session. Howard insisted that he be allowed to show that Pierce had no standing as a raiding officer in 1932 when he is alleged to have slain Densmore following a raid on a liquor still in Douglas county.

J. R. Kimsey, investigator for the alcohol taxing unit, was another of the witnesses called by the defense. He testified to the good character and dependability of Pierce.

On cross-examination, Howard failed to elicit an admission from him that he told other federal officers he did not "want Pierce on any raids with me because he is too hair-brained and too quick on the trigger." He denied emphatically having made such a statement.

McQuawn also refused to admit that federal officers declined to work or complained of working with Pierce because "he was too quick on the trigger."

Judge Boyd Sloan of the Gainesville city court and former assistant state attorney-general; Homer Lawson, brother of Sheriff I. L. Lawson, of Hall county; R. W. Smith, for 22 years clerk of the Hall county superior court; John M. Hulsey, Gainesville merchant and manufacturer; P. C. Smith, member of the Hall county commission; Ed Bird, mail carrier, and R. L. Laws, Hall county farmer, were among other character witnesses used during the afternoon.

As the defense opened Wednesday morning, it started a fire on James Park, companion of Densmore at the time of the shooting. It produced several witnesses to show his allegedly bad reputation.

M. J. Lawrence, who led the raid on the still, asserted that a negro, Ernest Bradfield, who was arrested, said Densmore and Parks engaged him to work there. He also described the two men at the time of the raid and the descriptions tallied with Densmore and Park, who were stopped about two hours afterward, Lawrence said.

Sheriff A. S. Bagett, of Douglas county, hit the testimony of Marion Jacobs, alleged eye-witness to the shooting, contending that he had paced off the distances at the scene of the shooting and that it would have been impossible for Jacobs to have seen the two automobiles from where Jacobs says he was stationed.

Among other witnesses during the day were Deputy Marshals A. C. Sowell and R. C. McMahon, also of Douglas county.

Both defense and prosecution indicated a desire late Wednesday to send the case to the jury today.

RILEY SENTENCED TO DIE IN CHAIR

pade which ended in death for Sjoblom, an Iowa salesman. Riley said Hoyt Summers, who is also accused by the state of Sjoblom's murder, came to his house on September 22, gave him a drink of whisky there and brought him to town, where he took several more drinks. He said he did not remember "what all" happened from then on but the state offered his written confession in rebuttal.

Riley previously said he shot Sjoblom at Spring and Marietta streets when the salesman resisted the holdup.

The state asked the death penalty and Ed A. Stephens, prosecutor, quoted the Bible, asking for an "eye for an eye."

The defense counsel did not deny Riley's guilt but cofined their pleas to the jury to be merciful. Riley pointed out that his family was destitute and added that Harsh and Gallogly are serving life terms for the same offense. A general plea of insanity had been planned by the defense but on the testimony of doctors that the youth is sane, it was dropped. Stephens said in his many years as a prosecutor he had never before seen no defense offered in a case involving murder.

Summers, jointly indicted with Riley, was granted a severance and will be tried later. He denies guilt.

WORK INSURANCE SEEN BY PERKINS AS DEPRESSION BAR

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Unemployment insurance as the medium for prevention of future depressions was envisioned here tonight by Secretary Frances Perkins in an address sponsored by a women's organization.

Calling the application of relief funds a "dole," the secretary declared that the "still inadequate dole we have had to establish has cost us far more and given us far less security than the British unemployment insurance scheme has provided" for that nation.

Pointing out that a study of social insurance is now being made by a special committee named by President Roosevelt, Miss Perkins indicated the committee will urge the next congress to adopt an insurance plan.

LOUISVILLE WOMAN BEATEN, KIDNAPED

Berry comes in, I'll kill him.'"

Mrs. Willet, the maid, whose husband is caretaker for the Stoll estate, was on the verge of hysterics when police and reporters arrived. She said the kidnaper gained entrance to the home by pretending he had come there to repair the telephone.

"He hadn't been in the house but a minute before he drew a pistol and pointed it at Mrs. Stoll and me," she added. "The first thing he did was to tie me in a chair and stick a gag in my mouth. Then he beat Mrs. Stoll and made off with her to his car."

"The maid told investigators Mrs. Stoll was bleeding as she was dragged out of the house. Police found bloodstains in the home.

Willett, the caretaker, was away at the time. A Great Dane dog owned by the Stolls apparently gave the kidnaper no trouble. Police started looking for a negro employe on the estate, who usually leaves at about the time the kidnaping occurred. It was thought he might be able to provide some clues.

James Clarke, who lives near the Stoll home, told reporters he saw a large sedan bearing four men in a lane near the Stoll estate shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. One of the men asked them for directions to the Wilcox home, which is near by. Other residents of the neighborhood reported they had seen cars parked in near-by lanes recently.

Telephone wires in the Stoll home were cut by the kidnapers, but the connection had been re-established early tonight and the wire was being kept clear for a possible call from the man.

Mayor Neville Miller and Director of Safety Dunlap Wakefield were among officials who went to the scene. A score or more of police and detectives were detailed around the estate. Mayor Miller ordered all available officers into the case. Chief of Detectives Edward McElliott directed his squad of inevestigators.

Mrs. William Speed, the victim's mother, was one of the first to reach the Stoll home after the kidnaping.

In addition to asking publication of his announcement to the kidnaper, Mr. Stoll had the same words broadcast over radio stations.

Within a short while after the kidnaping, city and county police had thrown out a dragnet and blockade over the county. Federal agents joined the case. All were seeking a Ford V-8 counpe. Mrs. Stoll was dressed in a negligee and over it she wore a blue and white checkered coat. Police bulletins gave instructions to all officers to be on the lookout for the car containing a brunette of slender build, probably smeared on the face and shoulders with blood.

Federal agents, aided by police and high city and county officials, took charge of the investigation. As scores of the curious and sympathizers gathered at the country estate of the Stolls, a police cordon was thrown about the residence and no one was allowed to enter, except upon official business.

All methods were immediately thrown into use to find the victim. Police radio and teletype systems broadcast descriptions of Mrs. Stoll and her kindnaper. Near-by river camps and summer resorts were ordered subjected to an exhaustive search. The United States department of justice at Washington was notified.

Major William Schmidt, night chief of police, said the ransom note, found by Stoll on a bed on the second floor of the isolated Stoll home was typewritten on two large pieces of paper. Part of the typing was in red and and part in black. The note, Major Schmidt said, was filled with abuse of the Stoll family and threatened harm to other members of the family.

The part of the note demanding the $50,000, Major Schmidt said, had been written twice. The original amount asked was $30,000, but this was crossed out and the figures $50,000 inserted. The text of the note was not made public.

Major Schmidt said he received word tonight that a car of the general description of that used by the kidnaper, and containing a man who partly fitted the description of the abductor, was seen near Speed, Ind.

Major Schmidt said the maid told him the abductor struck Mrs. Stoll on the head with a piece of pipe and said he would kill Stoll if the husband came home. When Stoll came home about half an hour after the kidnaping, he obtained a pistol and conducted a search of the premises. Later posses, armed with rifles and shotguns, continued the search over the entire vicinity of the Stoll home. The home is about eight miles east of Louisville and is in a fashionable but remote section of the county.

In the ransom note, Major Schmidt said, the abductor intimated that four or five days might elapse before further word was heard from him.

Three federal agents took charge of the case tonight. All local police were ordered on emergency duty and assigned to the case. William Marshall Bullitt, former solicitor-general of the United States, went to the Stoll home but his mission was not disclosed.

Mrs. Stoll is a member of the Junior League of Louisville and is a leader in social activities in the city. Her one sister, Virginia Speed, is studying music in New York. She is a niece of Frederick Sackett, former ambassador to Germany.

The kidnap victim is slender, about five feet six inches tall, and weighs 130 pounds. She is a brunet and of quite dark complexion.

A CEREAL THAT HAS MADE HISTORY

When our company introduced a new kind of cereal, 28 years ago, we were unconsciously changing the breakfast habits of the nation. Kellogg's Corn Flakes have become the most popular ready-to-eat cereal in the world.

We buy more than 7,000,000 bushels of high-grade corn a year. It is estimated that since Kellogg's Corn Flakes were first made, we have used as much corn as could be grown in a year on 3,500,000 acres of land.

At the same time Kellogg's Corn Flakes have created uses for vast quantities of other farm products. With the 12,000,000 servings of Kellogg's eaten every day, 2,500,000 quarts of milk and cream are consumed. And countless tons of fruit, sugar and honey are daily accompaniments to Kellogg breakfasts.

When you eat Kellogg's Corn Flakes, you enjoy flavor and crispness that no other cereal has ever successfully imitated. You get big value at low cost. And you save the time and labor of cooking.

The original Corn Flakes have always been the best. Be sure you ask for Kellogg's.

Rigid U. S. Control Urged Over Holding Companies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The senate banking committee, in a sixth report on its long Wall Street investigation, today hit at investment trusts and holding companies as instruments for concentrating control of wealth in the hands of a few.

As a remedy, it proposed strict federal regulation—extending the control of the government still further over the money centers.

Citing some activities of J. P. Morgan & Company; Dillon, Read & Company; the Insulls; the Van Sweringens and others in substantiation of its criticism, the committee said the proper corrective might be an act requiring all such corporations to have a federal charter.

"The cure for our corporate ailments, circumvention of the law, investment trust and holding company abuses, and interlocking directorates, may lie in a national incorporation act," said the report, written under the direction of Ferdinand Pecora.

Such legislation, expected by some to be put forward by the administration next session, would require corporations doing an interstate business to incorporate under government control instead of getting their charters from the states, as at present.

Both Held Liable.

The committee held that both investment trusts and holding companies were equally liable for accelerating the concentration of the control of wealth. The vast resources of Morgan & Company were cited in this connection.

But, it reported, the trusts and holding concerns in operation had lent themselves to operations which: badly stated, included something close to mulcting the public.

Some specific charges were that:

Dillon, Read & Company and its associates through the formation of the United States & Foreign Securities Corporation and other investment trusts invested only $5,100,000 to secure control of $90,000,000. Of this latter sum $75,000,000 had been furnished by the public.

Excessive Profits.

Dillon, Read and other concerns made excessive profits through investment trust and holding company operations;

The Goldman-Sachs Trading Corporation in financing the Frosted Foods Company in 1929 showed a striking instance of "incompetency, or deficiency, of integrity of purpose." The public, the report said, furnished approximately 90 per cent of $25,000,000 used in this financing and the trading corporation lost over 50 per cent of it in two years.

The committee contended there were instances "where the directors and persons controlling investment trusts succeeded in unloading their own securities upon the investment companies. This was true, the committee said, in the United States and Foreign Securities Corporation's operations and in the case of Continental Shares, Inc., dominated by Cyrus S. Eaton, of Cleveland.

Van Sweringens Hit.

It asserted also that the Van Sweringens through holding companies and investment trusts acquired—with the public's money—control of a vast network of railroads by a "shoe string" investment. The original Van Sweringen investments was said to be only $1,000,000.

"The American investment trust," the report said, "merely superficially resembled the British trust, for the very factors which account for the success of the British trusts (diversification of investment, disinterested management, conservative investments, and standardized management charges) were disregarded by the organizers of the American investment trusts."

From the beginning, the committee concluded, American investment trusts "degenerated into a convenient medium of the dominant persons to consummate transactions permeated with ulterior motives."

Setup Charged.

"The organizers of investment trusts," it continued, "always succeeded in devising a financial setup which allocated to them a most substantial equity in the company with a minimum of cash investment."

The formation of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securties of Chicago, by the Insulls, and the United Corporation by Morgan & Company were cited as examples of investment trusts which were in reality "holding companies."

"The first important use of the holding company," the report asserted, "was circumvention of the Sherman anti-trust law. . . .

"In the past decade, however, promoters have perverted the use of the holding company. The primary motivation for the organization of the holding company has now become the development and financial promotion of security selling schemes.

"The pragmatic result has been that holding companies have not created any economic wealth, but merely have facilitated the concentration of the control of wealth."

Wealth Control Aid.

The partners of J. P. Morgan & Company and Drexel & Company (Morgan affiliate), the committee said, "Held 126 directorships and trusteeships in 89 companies, excluding subsidiaries, with $19,929,396,475.39 total resources for 75 of these companies."

Quoting frequently from the testimony during the stock market and banking investigation, the committee said:

"The exposures of the abuses and evils of investment trusts must be expeditiously translated into legislative action to prevent recurrence of these practices.

"The advisability of federal regulation of holding companies was conceded even by the confirmed adherents of the holding company system."

Mrs. Roosevelt Observes Fiftieth Birthday Today

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Ann Eleanor Roosevelt will be 50 years old tomorrow—a first lady who can outride, outauto, outfly most of the other ladies.

Even Madame Minister Ruth Bryan Owen, tn enthusiastic amateur athlete from girlhood, couldn't quite keep up with the president's wife in one of her uphill, downdale dashes.

Tht White House today bore an unmistakable air of being ready to celebrate the fiftieth birthday, overruling Mrs. Roosevelt's objections.

"I have a theory when you get to be my age, birthdays shouldn't be a time to celebrate," she said. "The more you forget your birthdays as you grow older, the younger you stay."

RADIO FASHION SHOW ATTRACTS HUGE CROWD

Simultaneously with establishments in 34 large cities throughout the country, a radio fashion show was staged in Rich's tea room Wednesday afternoon with 25 members of the Debutante Club acting as models. The show attracted a large crowd.

Costumes etxhibited in the show were sent to Atlanta from New York especially for the occasion by Tobe, Rich's New York stylist. They were for the debutante, her mother and her aunt, and the show represented the diary of a debutante.

The fashion show broadcast originated in New York at the Ritz Carlton hotel. As each model appeared on the stage in New York, simultaneously in the other cities participating in the event, a model wearing an exact duplicate of the costume appeared there.

Tobe gave the fashion information as each model came out. It was the first fashion show of its kind ever staged and Rich's installed a public address system especially for the event.

BOARD'S RIGHT TO SET ROADS AGAIN UPHELD

Authority for the state highway board to relocate any or all roads in Georgia is contained in the Traylor-Neill bill, passed by the legislature in 1930, the Georgia supreme court ruled Wednesday.

The high court found against the appeal of Richmond county that the state was liable for $216,276 which the county spent on a state-aid road which was later relocated. Though the road was mapped in the Traylor-Neill bill as state-aid, the first section of the act authorizes the highway department to change any or all roads in the state, said the ruling. The road involved in the litigation was the McBean route from Augusta to Swainsboro.

YOUR VITALITY LOW? ACIDITY STARVES BLOOD

An excessively acid stomach ages many people much more than the years they live. Causes more scrawny and run-down bodies, sunken cheeks with sallow complexion, because a stomach which can't digest your food, starves your body. And that usually means a stomach so irritated by the acidity that the activity of the vital gastric fluids has been destroyed.

Wipe that acidity out of your stomach. Soothe away the irritation. Then the gastric fluids will become active again. Do it with Placidan, the new preparation which you can now get at any drug store. Get a three-ounce package. Drink some water with a teaspoonful of Placidan in it several times a day, and at night before retiring.

Notice how you will then be able to eat without suffering from gas, heartburn, sick headache, bad breath, acid indigestion. Your food will then be able to nourish you. You will feel grand. At the new, lower price, the big package of Placidan costs very little. It is not laxative. Does not purge the bowels. Contains no sugar.—(adv.)

MASSACRE DEATHS LAID TO 3 OUTLAWS

"Pretty Boy" Floyd, Two Others Named in Kansas City Killings.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Three outlaws, all with records as killers, were named by the federal government today as men who dealt machine gun deaths to four officers and their prisoner here and investigation was pursued tonight into a possible connection with the recent ambush slaying of John Lazia, a political leader.

Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma desperado, his confederate, Adam Fichetti—both fugitives—and Verne C. Miller, who since has been killed near Detroit by gangsters, were accused of slaying the officers during an attempt to rescue the prisoner, Frank Nash, in front of the Union station June 17, 1933.

James La Capra, a small-time gangster who is held for protection in a death cell of the Jackson county jail after gangsters twice failed recently to kill him, supplied the government with startling information.

The Star says La Capra named Lazia, for long a right-hand man in Kansas City's democratic organization, as the man who arranged a meeting of Miller, Floyd and Richetti here the night before the station slayings.

Lazia Named as Aid.

The newspaper also says that Lazia men aided Floyd and Richetti in escaping from Kansas City after they had fled the Union station for a stay of 24 hours in a local hideout.

La Capra was an enemy of Lazia, reportedly because of being denied a larger share in the profits of certain "rackets."

"Although federal agents have weighed the prisoner's enmity with the Lazia group, they have investigated a part of his information and discovered it tallies with evidence they have obtained," the Star says.

The government, in its announcement today, named 12 other persons as involved in the station slayings through conspiracy.

Jack Gregory, another sought in the Lazia case, has been missing for weeks and reports have been current that he was the victim of Lazia's friends.

Additional indictments in the station slayings and others clearing up the Lazia slaying may be returned by the federal grand jury which meets later this month.

Fritz Mulloy, indicted on conspiracy charges in the Union station case, disappeared recently. After he returned home, reports were current that government agents had been questioning him. During the World Series in St. Louis, Dominick Binaggio, a friend of Lazia, was picked up by government agents there. He was questioned and released.

Freedom Attempt.

The quintuple slaying resulted from an attempt to free Frank Nash, an escaped federal prisoner who was being returned to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., after he was captured in Hot Springs, Ark.

As the officers placed Nash in an automobile outside the Kansas City Union station, about 7 a. m., for the last lap of their journey, a shout rang out:

"Let 'em have it."

The death-dealing blasts of machine gun fire followed immediately.

Otto Reed, chief of police of McAlester, Okla.; William J. Grooms and Frank E. Hermanson, Kansas City detectives, and Nash were killed instantly. Raymond J. Caffery, department of justice agent, received wounds from which he died shortly after being taken to the hospital.

Agent Wounded.

R. E. Vetterli, at that time agent in charge of the Kansas City office of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, and F. J. Lackey, another agent, were wounded.

A minute later the killers sped away in a motor car.

Officers theorized Nash had been slain accidentally by his friends because he was sitting in the front seat of the car, whereas they had expected he would be in the rear seat. An officer in the rear seat was injured.

Tracing the intensive investigation it launched immediately after the slayings, the department of justice said it had learned Miller, who was a close associate of Nash, had enlisted the aid of Floyd and Richetti in the attempt to free the prisoner.

Coincident with the capture of Nash in Hot Springs, Floyd and Richetti kidnaped Sheriff Jack Killingsworth, of Bolivar, Md., in an encounter at Bolivar. At Osceola, Mo., the outlaws held up Walter Griffin and forced him to drive them, with the sheriff still a hostage, to Kansas City.

Couple Released.

The sheriff and Griffin were released in the Kansas City industrial district, and Floyd and Richetti transferred to a sedan the two machine guns they were carrying. Later, they apparently joined their associate and went to the union station to await the arrival of the officers and Nash.

The solution of the slayings was announced shortly after the department of justice in Washington released the information that Richard Tallman Galatas and his wife, Elizabeth, who were arrested in New Orleans, September 22, had been brought to Kansas City for arraignment on conspiracy charges growing out of the killings.

Mrs. Galatas pleaded not guilty today when arraigned on a charge of conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice, and her bond was set at $25,000. Galatas did not face formal arraignment, as he has been indicted by a federal grand jury. No bond was fixed for him when he said he preferred to remain in jail.

William Stanley, assistant attorney-general, said ir Washington investigation had shown it was Galatas who informed Mrs. Nash her husband had been arrested at Hot Springs.

Mrs. Nash then communicated with "Doc" Louis Stacci, proprietor of a road house at Melrose Park, Chicago, Stanley said. Galatas accompanied Mrs. Nash to the home of Herb and Esther Farmer at Joplin, Mo., where last-minute telephonic instructions were given Miller for the attempt to free Nash, the assistant attorney-general said.

The 15 persons named by Maurice M. Milligan, United States district attorney, as implicated in the case are Floyd, Richetti, Miller, Harvey Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Farmer, Mrs. Nash, Stacci, Mr. and Mrs. Galatas, Robert C. Brady, Mrs. Louise Conner, Hot Springs, Ark.; Frank Mulloy, Kansas City; Wilbur Underhill, and Mrs. Vivian Miller, wife of the slain killer.

Underhill was slain some months ago in Shawnee, Okla. Brady was killed early this year near Paolo, Kan., as he fled from the Kansas state prison with several other convicts. Bailey, one of the kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire, is imprisoned in Alcatraz prison, in California.

Indian's 'Code' Hikes Price of Huckleberries

THE DALLES, Ore., Oct. 10. (AP)—An old Indian named Simon, who constitutes the Hood River district's one-man huskleberry industry, made his season call at the store of H. F. Linse here recently and bought some picket rope for his ponies. The price of the rope was up, and Linse explained the increase was due to the application of NRA rules to industry.

Today Simon returned with a picking of berries and stopped to sell three gallons to Linse. Simon rejected the customary $3 payment.

"Indian ketchum code," said Simon. "Code make huckleberry price dollar six bits gallon this year."

TENNESSEE GROCERS APPROVE FERA PLANS

Each County To Have Board To Fix Fair Retail Price on Items.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 10.—(AP) Tennessee's hundreds of retail grocers were enrolled Tuesday in a plan, seen as having national possibilities, for distributing food products to families on federal relief.

The plan, evolved by middle Tennessee grocers as an alternative to a proposed commissary method of distribution, already had the approval of FERA officials when a state-wide meeting of retail leaders unanimously voted its adoption today.

The keystone of the system, as explained to the food retailers, is a state grocery control board of three members.

Each county will have a county price control board, of varying membership depending on the needs of the county served, which will meet on Mondays "and fix a fair and reasonable maximum retail price on all food items for distribution by retail grocers to individuals and families on FERA relief rolls," as it is explained in the official description of the plan.

In addition to the items of supply from their own stock the grocers, under this set-up, will distribute without charge canned foods prepared in FERA canneries.

Among other rules in their 11-point agreement the grocers pledge relief officials that they will report to FERA headquarters any persons who "because of financial condition" or violations of food distribution rules may not be entitled to remain on relief rolls.

Grocers will give goods to relief families on order of FERA food vouchers. Other points in their agreement pledge them not to give cash for these vouchers, not to charge above the fixed price for the food distributed, to report unusually large supplies given to any one individual and to make regular reports on commodities distributed and who received them.

Rockefeller Arrives At Home in Florida

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Oct. 10. (AP)—With a cherry wave for the people gathered to greet him, John D. Rockefeller Sr. arrived here today in search of sunshine and peaceful quiet at his winter home, the Casements.

The 95-year-old philanthropist was lifted from his private Pullman car in a chair, but stood up to pose for photographers.

"Indeed, I am glad to be back," he told a newspaperman as he entered an automobile for the mile and half drive to his estate, the last lap of a journey from his summer home at Lakewood New Jersey.

Members of Mr. Rockefeller's household reported he was "feeling fine" and in good spirits. The aged Standard Oil Company founder appeared far more fit than last winter, when he came here to recuperate from a stubborn attack of grippe.

Insull Jury Is Told Of Stocks Writeoff

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The story of efforts to omit a $34,954,153 write off from the statements of Corporation Securities Company of Chicago was unfolded today in the mail fraud trial of Samuel Insull and 16 co-defendants.

A letter inquiring into the legal justification for the omission was added to the heap of the prosecution's evidence while Van Lamont, former comptroller of Halsey, Stuart & Co., occupied the witness stand.

Lamont also related that stock purchased by the concern Insull had founded immediately prior to the financial debacle of 1929 at a cost of $3,500,000 was written up on the books at a value of $15,000,420, and that stock bought at $13,000,000 was written up to a value of $30,000,000.

Further questioning by government attorneys elicited testimony from Lamont that while the corporation was selling its allotment certificates to the public at $75, it was buying them on the open market at $100.

OPERATORS FAVOR FEDERAL AIR RULE

Permanent Commission Is Needed, Policy Group Is Told in Capital.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Representatives of the Independent Aviation Operators' Association today told the federal aviation commission that a permanent government commission, charged with administrative control over all civil aeronautics, is needed to give the industry proper guidance.

Resuming its hearings of the formulation of a national air policy, the commission, headed by Clark Howell, Atlanta publisher, heard a recommendation from Oliver L. Parks, president of the association and the head of Parks Air College, that a permanent government agency of five members be set up to control civil flying activities.

Members of the proposed permanent commission, Mr. Parks said, should have a comprehensive knowledge of air problems and should be appointed for terms varying from two to ten years. He also urged the appointment of assistant secretaries for aviation in the war and navy departments and suggested that they be named ex-officio members of the permanent air commission.

Declaring that the aeronautical industry is moving ahead so rapidly that it is difficult to keep apace with the advancements being made, the witness cited this as further reason for the consolidation of existing air regulatory agencies into a single government commission.

George W. Orr, president of Roosevelt field, New York, and chairman of the airport division of the Independent Aviation Operators' Association, supported the recommendation of Mr. Parks for a permanent air commission.

Stressing the need for government aid in the maintenance of municipal and private airports, he said many such airports established in the early days of the industry are now being discontinued and that a crisis is being reached in airport development.

"Airport operations constitute a public function and should be so recognized by the government, the same as harbors for ships," said Mr. Orr. "Maintenance is becoming a pressing problem of the airport operators. Very few can be made to pay at present and some form of government aid is necessary."

Asserting that the privately owned airport is a hopeless commercial venture, the witness told the commission there is no possibility of air traffic becoming heavy enough in the near future to support airport investments as a whole.

S. C. Huffman, of Cincinnati, operator of a commercial flying service, the third witness of the day, joined with the other two representatives of the independent aviation operators' group in urging a permanent government air commission.

H. L. Bredauw, of Kansas City, head of the Bredauw-Hilliard Aeromotive Corporation, gave brief testimony at the close of the hearings regarding operations of organizations servicing commercial flying.

The commission Thursday will hear representatives of the National Association of State Aviation officials.

Australian Cabinet Undergoes Changes

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The Australian cabinet was reconstituted today following the general elections, most notable change being the inclusion of William Morris Hughes, wartime prime minister.

Following the breakdown of negotiations for coalition ministry in which both the united party and the country party would be represented, the ministry was reconstituted solely with supporters of the united Australia party.

The new cabinet follows: Prime minister and treasurer, Joseph Aloysius Lyons; attorney-general, Guy H. Manzies; minister of defense, Robert A. Parkhill; minister of external affairs, Sir George Pearce; customs minister, Thomas W. White; postmaster-general, Alexander J. McLachlan; minister of trade and commerce, Frederick H. Stewart; vice president of the executive council, W. H. Hughes, and minister without portfolio, Sir Henry Gullett.

U. S. COTTON LEADERS WILL MEET IN S. C.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Oct. 10.—(AP) The American Cotton Manufacturers Association has been called to meet here October 17 to discuss "matters pertaining to the industry."

The call for the meeting was issued by W. M. McLaurine, secretary of the association, at Charlotte, N. C. No statement was made of the particular matters to be discussed.

However, it was expected that conditions existing as the result of the recently-ended general textile strike would likely hold a prominent place in the deliberations of the meeting.

The meeting is expected to draw an attendance from all parts of the southern textile manufacturing region.

ANOTHER SERBIAN TRAGEDY

The death of King Alexander of Yugoslavia at the hands of an assassin writes another tragic chapter in the annals of the ruling house of the Serbs. No other royal family in Europe has lost so many of its heads by violence and, almost without exception, these tragedies have resulted in serious international complications.

None of these assassinations, with the single exception of the slaying of Archduke Ferdinand, which proved to be the spark that set off the World War, came when political conditions in Europe were more threatening than they are now. The rival ambitions of France and Italy, the threat of Hitler's domination of Germany, the disturbed conditions in Austria, and the antagonism between Italy and the nations of the little entente have given rise to a war scare that has hung over the continent for the past two years.

The most tragic phase, from the international standpoint, of the Marseille assassination is the fact that King Alexander's visit to France was for the purpose of bringing about the co-operation of Yugoslavia in the newly effected working agreement entered into by France and Italy. What effect the death of the king will have on the hoped-for smoothing out of the differences between his country and Italy will not be known until the policies of the new Yugoslavian regency are determined.

The Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia lies on one side of the Adriatic sea, with Italy on the other side of this comparatively narrow strip of water. Yugoslavia has accused Mussolini of having designs on some of its seaports on the Adriatic and there has been practically continuous friction between the two governments for several years. This friction was increased by the fact that Italy has been at outs with France and that the latter nation has had intimate financial and trade relations with Yugoslavia.

The reassuring feature of the assassination, from the viewpoint of European peace, is that the plot seems to have originated solely from internal dissatisfaction, the result of the refusal of the Belgrade government to grant the demands of the Croation population of the country for representation.

The government is now conducted by the 7,000,000 Serbs in the country, while the 5,000,000 Croatians and million and a half Moslems are disfranchised. Since the Serbs are cordially hated by all of the inhabitants of other blood, they face bitter opposition from forces practically as strong numerically as they are. This explains the prompt action taken by Belgrade to suppress rioting in the sections where the Croatians constitute the majority of the population.

Yugoslavia is a new nation, brought into existence as the result of the World War, but the movement to create it dated back as far as the ninth century, when the Croatians, the Slovenes and the Serbians were united under Ljudevit Posavaki. This confederation was broken up by the Frank and Byzantine powers. From the sixteenth to the eighteenth century the entire territory was under Turkish rule. With the remaking of the map of central Europe after the World War, the new nation of Yugoslavia—a term signifying the southern Slav state—was formed out of Serbia, Montenegro, Macedonia, Bosnia-Herzegovinia, Croatia, Dalmatia and southern Styria.

The real threat to European peace lies in possible disruption of the new understanding between Italy and France, further disorders in Austria and meddling by Germany should serious civil war break out in Yugoslavia as the result of the assassination of King Alexander.

For several years Alexander has been ruling with dictatorial powers and his assassination is directly attributable to the iron hand with which he crushed the opposition to the government. He was, in many respects, one of the ablest governmental leaders of Europe and has been regarded as a vital cog in the diplomatic machinery by which continental peace could be assured.

OVER THE TOP FOR THE CHEST

An encouraging indication of the general realization of the increased need this fall for prompt and liberal response to the annual appeal for the Community Chest is to be found in the report of the Postal Telegraph Company that it has gone "over the top" with a record of 100 per cent subscriptions by its employes.

The announcement is all the more inspiring since a large per cent of the Postal's employes are messenger boys, earning small sums —and most of them being at work because of the necessity that they contribute to the support of their families.

And yet these youngsters, 100 per cent strong, have signed Chest pledges, cheerfully promising to contribute out of their meager earnings toward the upkeep of unfortunates who are unable to care for themselves.

If Atlanta needs an inspiration to make this year's reply to the Chest appeal the most liberal yet to be made, it is certainly to be found in the action of these young workers in leading the way for their elders.

The demands upon the Chest during this winter will be heavier than ever before, and the suffering will be greater if the Chest fund is not completed in full.

In the spirit of these Postal boys, and the other members of the company's personnel, every Atlantan should give to his or her utmost ability in order that there shall be no need for food, shelter or proper attention in the city during the coming year.

FIGHT THE FIRE HAZARD

The Planters' Garden Club, of Atlanta, under the leadership of its president, Mrs. L. G. Daingerfield, has launched a laudable campaign for increased fire prevention activities by the residents of the city.

At the last meeting of the club various members stressed the threat of destructive fires in the existence of piles of trash and leaves at places where careless passersby may toss a burning match, and from the habit of burning trash and leaving while it is still in flames.

The action of this group of Atlanta women is timely, as the period of the year when frequent fires occur in fields and clumps of woods is approaching. During each fall the Atlanta fire department is kept busy extinguishing such fires, in many instances only after serious damage has been done to dwellings and their outhouses.

Automobilists especially should bear in mind that a carelessly tossed cigaret falling in dried grass or leaves may result in a conflagration that will bring heavy loss to property owners. This is especially so when such fires originate when families are away from their homes and gain considerable headway before they are reported.

When leaves or trash are burned, every precaution should be taken that the flames are controlled so that burning embers will not start fires elsewhere. There is no possible excuse for such a fire to be lighted and left to burn itself out.

The officials of the garden club wisely warn that "the common match is a most dangerous instrument in the hands of the thoughtless." It is no more than self-protection for those who strike a match, for whatever purpose, to see that its flame is extinguished before it is thrown down.

Every Atlantan during the coming months should co-operate to the fullest in the fire prevention campaign.

The western world didn't learn, until after Shakespeare's time, that elephants have knees. The old-time elephant never was photographed for the tabloids.

What's the difference? An idiot doesn't know his act will cause trouble; a sane person knows it will, but does it anyway.

But this idea of mixing alcohol and gasoline isn't new. A lot of rural filling stations have been at it.

Chicago celebrates a century of progress. A century ago, hardly anybody knew how to make a bomb.

A Christian nation is one in which city babies starve while farmers pour milk on the highway.

But you never see dumb brutes swallowing something they know will make them miserable.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

All Aboard!

In a few weeks' time I am off on a journey which wil' take about four months. Sailing in a rather frail craft from Bordeaux I am setting out for North Africa, through the Bay of Biscay, and will make a first landing place at Rabat in Morocco. That will be the first stopping place. From Rabat, overland to Meknes and Marrakesch, holy cities of Islam, eastward to Algiers and Tunis, by automobile and by camel from Tunis into Lybia.

The object of the trip is to reach Abyssinia. We have an invitation of the Negus of that country, his Majesty Ras Tafari, king of kings, Lion of Juda, descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, to visit his domains. We'll see the water again on the shores of the Red Sea opposite Yemen. We will ask the British there to put us across the water and set us ashore in the land of Ibn Saoud. The hope is to see Mecca, but whether a heavy enough disguise can be found to venture upon the perilous undertaking of an infidel going into the city of the Prophet, which is still barred to occidentals.

If the gods are kind—there is no reason why they shouldn't be—we will continue along the old Hedja railway, on camel-back, as far as Maan, Aman and Jerusalem. Thence into Syria and there taking the boat again to Odessa.

The Equipment.

No weapons are taken on this trip, which some predict will meet with disaster. If I can't talk the alleged robbers and bandits in the desert from murdering me, one lone rifle or revolver won't do it either. So no use taking along heavy hardware of that sort. But we are carrying a small radio receiver, specially built for us by a clever French engineer. Each night we will tune in on Madrid or Rome or Constantinople or Paris or London, to listen to the newsbroadcast and an occasional concert, of course. Should the broadcast indicate that serious trouble has broken out somewhere in Europe, the journey will be interrupted and we will make for the nearest port. Let us hope it won't be necessary.

It will take a few weeks to put things in readiness yet, for we are going into regions where few white men are encountered. Legendary Timbustoo, the Atlas region, the Congo region, straight across the Sahara to Lake Tsad, from oasi to oasis. There are three of us in the party. A Danish gentleman, an English captain and myself. There was a proposition to take a caterpillar auto along, but with my staggering knowledge of mechanics the loss of that machine would be a foregone conclusion. I'd sooner trust a camel than an automobile in the desert. My experience in the land of the Druses in 1926, when we stalled when they were coming for us, does not make me wish to repeat the sensation of sweating blood . . . of fear.

The Writing Business.

A typewriter is useless in the desert. It will be impossible to keep the sand out. Hence we will write our letters to this department by hand. All the postal stations have been picked up where letters are to be mailed. Some of them are 14 days travel apart. We will do our level best to secure a continuity, an uninterrupted flow of news of our whereabouts, but it may happen that a week or so slips by when we are away down there in the heart of the black continent, that we miss the connection. . . . If that happens, we ask you to be indulgent, not to write to the editor to fire us. It may be that we are fired or fired upon already.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

CAUGHT WITH THE PORES OPEN.

How about it, Doc, asks A. L. F., inclosing a clipping which tells how a man was poisoned by the spray which he was using on potato plants on a Friday. The man was better on Saturday, and Dr. So-and-So said the patient would probably be released in a day or two. The item goes on to explain that the man was poisoned by a solution of arsenic and nicotine entering the body through the pores of the skin.

I suspect the reporter contributed the explanation of the manner in which the poisoning occurred. Physicians are getting more cautious every day about committing themselves like that. How is the doctor to know in such a case that some parlor practitioner or other may not pounce on the thing and play it up in the papers as a humorous item?

In the same mail came another letter from a reader who incloses a clipping of a story about the rescue of the Connor child, and in this clipping another eminent colleague, the head of a hospital, is quoted as a strong believer in pores. This savant makes no bones of it at all, but comes right out in unmistakable quotation marks saying that a rainstorm on the night the child was lost may have saved the child's life, for he believed enough water could have entered the infant's system through the pores of his skin to prevent complete dehydration even though he found no water to drink.

But on sober second thought the doctor evidently decided to ease down a bit on that. Or other doctors, rushing into print, thought it well to temper the claim somewhat. One other doctor is quoted as follows: "He could have absorbed moisture through his pores when it rained and from the wet underbrush, but he could not get enough moisture that way . . ."

A pore is an opening through which something is absorbed or taken in. There are no such openings in the human skin. Don't take my word for it. Find a physiologist who will tell you there are pores in the skin. Find a textbook of anatomy or histology (microscopic anatomy) that describes pores. Find any evidence at all that anything, food, water, gas, air, medicine, poison, or any other substance is absorbed through the unbroken skin and I'll publish an apology for having attempted to mislead the public about this. But for heaven's sake, don't cite some long dead doctor or some slippery German medical writer who implies, without frankly saying so, that in some circumstances certain chemicals or poisons may be absorbed through the skin. No fun tilting with windmills.

The man poisoned by the spray either inhaled it or actually swallowed some of the poison. That's the only way painters, or others are likely to suffer from lead poisoning.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

ICE WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The gr-r-r-eat government drive to unfreeze the capital market has been accompanied by more ballyhoo than anything since the NRA. Jesse Jones, the RFC chairman, has talked himself hoarse. Even the staid old federal reserve board crowd took to the radio.

Together, they have done everything short of ramming money down the throats of businessmen in an effort to get rid of the $580,000,000 which congress authorized for this noble experiment in credit expansion.

No one will believe it, but today, after three months of effort, they have managed to put out less than $5,000,000. That leaves them only 575 more millions to go.

EVIDENCE The latest tabulations by the RFC and FRB are incredible, but official. On October 6, the RFC had exactly $2,357,000 outstanding in loans of this character. On October 3, the FRB total was $2,467,000. Add them together and you find that the government unfroze the capital market to the tune of $4,824,000 up to very recent dates.

The heat from that would not be enough to unfreeze an ice cream cone on a July day.

It is so bad you cannot blame the government agencies for trying to make it look a little better by giving more prominence to the amount of loans authorized, instead of loans actually made. The RFC has authorized about 12 millions and the FRB 10. If these loans actually are made later, the scope of success would be 27 millions, which might unfreeze something, but certainly not the credit structure.

TROUBLE There is just one reason for this—human nature. That is one of the few things which cannot be changed by ballyhoo. In the first place, no honest government official is going to make a bad loan, if he can detect that it is bad. Certainly, Jesse Jones and the federal reserve boarders are not. No one knows how many applications Jones has turned down, but there are figures to show that, out of the first 2,800 applications received by the FRB, about 1,300 (nearly half) were rejected. The reasons were that the borrowers could not offer good collateral, were not in good financial condition or were ineligible.

In the second place, no businessman with good collateral or in good financial condition is going to borrow money from the government or anyone else uless he thinks he is going to make a profit out of using the money.

This current experience is a rather conclusive indication that the people who want to bring back prosperity by artificial credit expansion are trying to make the horse run backward.

All the credit in the world will not move a bobbin industry unless it is accompanied by expectations of future business profits.

SCARE The state department has not been so frightened since the World War as when the first news of the assassination of King Alexander came through. The identity of the assassin was not known. Gray hairs turned white because everyone feared Italian sympathizers might be involved. That would have meant war.

Italy has been subject to a bitter attack in the Yugoslav press lately, even to remarks criticizing the bravery of Italian soldiers. The French were bringing Alexander to Paris in hopes of effecting a reconciliation for him with Mussolini.

All the insiders conjured up the possibilities of troops marching before nightfall, with no stops at the border line.

The inner tension relaxed when word came that the guilty were Croat revolutionists. The worst our officials expected then was civil war in Yugoslavia.

SINEWS Opponents of Upton Sinclair have sent a representative to the New York financial district to solicit campaign funds. This representative left the impression with certain callers that his crowd hoped to collect a half million dollars.

He did very well. Many New York investors have been worried about the effect of a Sinclair victory on California industries. Their fears already have been reflected in stock market prices and in the flight of capital from California.

Sinclair's friends in New York also are collecting funds, but they live in a different part of town.

NOTES Rumors flew thick and fast when Mr. Roosevelt canceled the radio broadcast arrangements for his speech to the bankers. The most likely inside explanation was that he did not have much to say.

No one mentioned the fact that Chief Justice Hughes did not participate in last Monday's decision against the Mellon aluminum company. The reason was that, in a brief filed by aluminum attorneys, it was pointed out that, some years back, the chief justice served as an attorney for the company.

Jesse Jones says that there will be no government ownership of railroads as long as they have collateral on which to borrow from the RFC, but the truth is the roads which are sagging do not have the collateral.

All Sport Will End When Loser and Winner Get the Same Reward

By Robert Quillen

When old Walter Johnson slouched out to his old familiar place to save a ball game and win a championship, the frenzied crowd roared its approval and admiration.

When the star halfback trots out on the playing field, every watching partisan feels a quickening surge of emotion that is closely akin to adoration.

Why does the crowd roar when the star appears? Because it dearly loves a man who knows his business. It delights in the skill of an expert.

Why was Babe Ruth able to command the largest salary in baseball when he no longer stood at the top? Other players were better hitters and faster in the field; others knocked more home runs. Why did Ruth deserve more pay?

Because his name was "catchy" and easy to remember; because the newspapers had given him world-wide fame; because he had been the best in his field; but, chiefly and finally, because thousands would pay to watch him play.

He deserved more money because his presence attracted money. The public's admiration made him an asset.

Sometimes the watching crowd throws bouquets or toses coins to express its approval; sometimes it sends gifts. More frequently, under present conditions, it pays tribute to the expert by buying tickets or consenting to his larger fees.

What is the significance of it?

It means that reasonable men feel a natural impulse to reward the superior man according to his merit.

That is good sportsmanship; that is fair play; that is human nature as it functions in present-day America.

Theorists may argue the justice of equal rewards for all endeavor, but the crowds will not have it so. If the man is a winner, let him have the prize.

There are some who call the winners "lucky stiffs" and "fortune's favorites," but those who have struggled to win success, in any trade or profession or business, know full well that the competition is cruel hard and every upward step a proof of superior merit. The few reach the top at last because they have something that others lack. They are experts who know their business.

And so long as Americans keep their sanity, unenvious justice will give the larger reward to the man who does the better job.

Tennesseean Promoted To Rear Admiralship

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Captain George Neal, now in command of the naval training station at San Diego, was reported by an informed navy department source tonight to have been promoted to a rear admiralship.

He became eligible for the promotion last December and was said to have been advanced when a vacancy occurred. Neal, whose home state is Tennessee, was assistant chief of staff of the United States fleet in 1928 and 1929.

TWO FAIR NOTABLES DENY ENGAGEMENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The liner Rex came to port today with two of its fairest passengers busily engaged in denying rumors of engagement.

First it was Kay Francis of the movies. Even the rumors were a bit mixed up as to Miss Francis. One report said, she was engaged to William Powell; the other had it Maurice Chevalier. She denied both rumors.

Pretty Eileen Gillespie—the Park Avenue maiden whose broken engagement to Young John Jacob Astor a year ago was publicized—was the other fair passenger who replied to inquiries with a denial or two.

"I'm not engaged to anyone," she said.

AUSTRIA MAY REVIVE COMPULSORY TRAINING

VIENNA, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Compulsory military service will shortly be introduced again into Austria, it was announced tonight by Josef Kresse, second vice burgomaster of Vienna.

Addressing an Austrian trade union meeting, Kresse said, "It will not be long before we begin to give our young boys military training."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Celebrities 'On Spot.' DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 10.—Sometimes your correspondent feels a slight cramp in his soul when he finds himself in the company of some celebrity who is being pulled and hauled by his admirers in a hotel lobby or other public place. It is an embarrassing thing. The people shove autograph albums or mere fragments of paper at the celebrity, usually offering a pencil or fountain pen, too. Sometimes, however, he has to furnish his own.

He signs with a weary smile of appreciation and they look at the signature—the actual signature and not a rubber stamp or a secretary's forgery —with a strange joy on their features. Then they direct a certain look at your correspondent. The look asks "Are you anybody?" and is always followed by an answering look which says, "No, you can't be. Your name probably is something like Mike Swift or Pete Fish or Westbrook Pegler."

That is the unkind part of it. Can't a man be an inveterate noneutity without its being rubbed in publicly by autograph hunters? After all, they are nobodies themselves and ought to have consideration for a colleague. They could even go so far as to ask for your correspondent's autograph just for the sake of his feelings. They could dispose of it afterward without any trouble.

What they do with all the autographs which they collect is beyond imagining.

Wearying Job. Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth have signed their names a hundred thousand times. It wearies them. They cannot pause in any public place without being interrupted, which becomes an annoyance after a while, and the physical strain of signing over and over is considerable. One night in Memphis, when Mr. Guy Lombardo had been imported at great expense to discourse music for a large public dance, there was very little dancing because there was almost no music because Mr. Lombardo was kept busy signing his autograph for people who loved to dance to his music.

Often at the World Series, the players and umpires give away as many as two dozen or three dozen new balls every day, all signed by players involved in the festival. Some of them are signed by entire teams. This runs into considerable trouble and sometimes involves a bribe of a dollar or two to the clubhouse boy to take the ball into the dressing room for the signatures. The clubhouse boy disappears and comes back with names scrawled all over the skin of the ball but then how can anybody be sure?

Boy Storms At Refusal. A boy once asked your correspondent to autograph a baseball during a World Series and got very cross at being refused.

"Come on, Joe," he said, "how's for signing this ball?

"Joe Dugan," he said. "Sure you are Joe Dugan."

"I am like hell Joe Dugan," said your correspondent.

"Oh, up-stage, hey?" he said. "High-hat Dugan, hey?" and followed your correspondent down the block yelling, "High-hat Dugan," the cur.

Celebrity seems terribly perishable. There were celebrities of a year ago and other years before that who are never asked to autograph things anymore. They are often to be seen around the lobbies on big occasions watching new celebrities do it and being intensively ignored themselves. It must make them feel peculiar.

Will Rogers Enjoys Position. Of all the celebrities, Mr. Will Rogers seems to enjoy celebrity most. Mr. Rogers is one of the most important men in America and one of the few philosophers to receive appropriate recognition during his life.

Mr. Rogers sometimes takes up a position in a well-frequented lobby or lounging room and makes himself accessible to anybody who wants to see him and hear him rattle on in his quaint but marvelously penetrating philosophy.

He is not as free with autographs as the lesser celebrities but he can't be. They would wear him down if he signed for everybody. The rarer the autograph, the greater its value.

It would be hard to guess what price will be set on a genuine Will Rogers' autograph say a thousand years from now when Plato, Aristolte, and Socrates have been forgotten and the philosophy of Will Rogers is being taught in all the great universities of the world.

Transportation Unity Of Regulation Urged

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Joseph B. Eastman again today advocated public regulation of all forms of transportation and envisaged a great increase in the business of agencies in that field.

The federal co-ordinator of transportation set forth his views in addresses before the Chicago Association of Commerce and the American Life Insurance Convention.

"Public regulation is needed for the welfare of industry itself, to promote order and stability, prevent exploitation and curb destructive competition and waste," he declared.

MORE OFFICE SPACE ACQUIRED BY HOLC

The Home Owners' Loan Corporation in the Silvey building at Marietta and Spring streets, has leased an additional floor in the six-story building, according to an announcement Wednesday by Jesse Draper, of the Draper-Owens Company, realtors.

In addition to acquiring the entire fifth floor for a period of ten years, the corporation has also increased its current lease on the second, third and fourth floors from five to ten years, thus increasing the total rental from $30,000 to $80,000 for the four floors. The HOLC has an option on the balance of the space on the first floor, which is now occupied by a lunch and soda grill, as well as the entire sixth floor.

STERN DISCIPLINE PLANNED BY SPAIN

'Everything Seems Over,' Communist and Anarchist Leaders Admit.

MADRID, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Bitterness among the leftist groups emerged from the ashes of the revolution today as the government planned stern disciplinary measures for arrested participants.

Eleven more deaths were added to the toll of uncounted hundreds tonight with reports from the war ministry that foreign legion forces imported from Morocco had completed a mop-up campaign at Oviedo, northern Spain.

It was reported warships operating off the Asturias coast had backed up the foreign legion troops with bombardments on rebel nests located near the coast on the Bay of Biscay.

Government information revealed tonight Major Bosch, commander of the Catalonian militia, had been sentenced to life imprisonment by a summary court-martial at Barcelona. It was added that nine similar cases are on schedule at Madrid, and that several death penalties were likely.

Several anarchist and communist leaders interviewed by the Associated Press for the first time manifested grave pessimism, admitting "everything seems to be over."

Although they refused a direct statement, the communists and anarchists were violently bitter against the socialists, upon whom they placed the blame for the collapse of the movement. They indicated the socialists failed to keep their promises, saying most of the fighting was done by communists and anarchists. They admitted, however, the socialists joined them in Asturias.

One significant statement was the risk "socialist leaders are running now, not from the government but from other sources; there is danger for them from the infuriated masses who were deceived by the movement."

From the provinces there came reports of restored order definitely in sight in Catalonia, the Beleariс islands, the Canaries, Albacete, Caceres, Badajoz, Toledo, Andalusia, Valladolid, Salamanca, Old and New Castile.

Attorney-General Antonio Callardo announced that Manuel Azana, Luis Companys, president of Catalonia and other officers arrested, will be brought to Madrid to be tried before the tribunal of constitutional guarantees. It was said in legal circles they will be brought to Madrid immediately but the trial may be delayed, pending the election of a new tribunal president.

Madrid for the first time in several days was free from disconcerting interruptions and rifle fire. The best evidence of a return to normal conditions was the large attendance in the cafes.

Practically no clashes were reported up until evening.

Leftists threats that "this is only the lull before the storm" are growing weaker, but the government has not relaxed its vigilance. Last reports were that the army in Asturias continues its domination in the mining districts.

The San Sebastian government is engaged in a determined effort to break a five-day strike, threatening workers with loss of their jobs if they fail to return. Troops protected strike breakers in the Basque province.

LUKE BOUND OVER ON MURDER COUNT IN THOMAS COUNTY

tests made by John Porter, fire chief, and John Huff, a policeman, and others with the 20-gauge shotgun with which Groover was killed.

They told of the powder burns and the size of the hole left in a cardboard box by shots from the gun at various distances. Testimony also was that the gun could not be fired with the safety catch on and that a scale test showed a weight of eight pounds was necessary to pull the front trigger and nine pounds for the rear trigger.

Huff said the gun would not stay on the shelf behind the seat of the car.

The widow of the dead man told of a visit to Luke the day of the funeral and described him as being very nervous. He told her, she said, he needed Groover then as he alone understood the records of the company.

She also testified her husband had told her Luke had burned some of the records of the company and produced a paper which she said contained notes of cash transactions of the building and loan company made by Groover. The paper was introduced as evidence but its contents were not disclosed.

Son on Stand.

J. I. Groover, Marietta newspaperman and son of Oscar Groover, said he was at home the day of the slaying and that Luke had been trying all day to get in touch with his father.

Yesterday the United States district attorney of the middle district of Georgia disclosed that Judge Luke was indicted last week in Albany on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

The indictment was returned in connection with the business of the building and loan company, the government charging misrepresentations had been made in matter sent through the mails.

INFLATION TALK STIRRED BY F. D. R.

it was pointed out that the definition in parity price in the agricultural adjustment act is the price relationship of farm commodities to other goods in the 1909-1914 period.

What form or how much, if any, currency experimentation would be resorted to was a matter for conjecture. Business, as represented by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, recently sought unsuccessfully Mr. Roosevelt's ideas about currency stabilization.

If there was no reassurance on that score today, the outline of the administration's position was held in some business quarters to be favorable in other matters.

There have been frequent reports in recent months that drastic debt deflation by legislation might be the administration's way of bringing about debt relief.

Mr. Roosevelt's signature of the Frazier-Lemke farm moratorium measure last session, a bill strenuously opposed by investment interests, was brought to mind in this connection.

It was revealed today, however, that proposals for the slashing of debt by the "rule of thumb," or arbitrary cancellation, has already been considered by the administration and rejected as unconstitutional.

Some easing of the debt pressure, however, has been brought about through the farm credit administration; the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and legislation such as that for corporate reorganization.

The administration's view is that these efforts were legal poultices as opposed to drastic and unconstitutional amputation.

An example of what the administration seeks to prevent after a satisfactory price level is reached can be found in such commodities as wheat, cotton and copper during the past few years. Price fluctuations in these products during a comparatively short period are, in some cases, 500, 800 and even 1,000 per cent.

Along with the study of methods to hoist prices has gone a scrutiny of means to curb them once they are at the desired height.

Although a general price increase is desired, administration advisers feel that there are exceptions in some industrial groups.

They have sought to convince the president that a rigid price structure in some manufactured products has been an important factor in prolonging the depression and causing unemployment.

Their recipe for such situations is an increase in output instead of a price ascent, but whether Mr. Roosevelt agrees with them has not been determined.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

(The reflections of this oriental beauty, who was a dramatic figure in silent pictures and who has since become the toast of Mayfair, provide more than passing interest as she substitutes for Mollie Merrick.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 10.—Only yesterday I was a typical Hollywood flapper.

Today, so some "experts" say, I am the most sophisticated woman on either side of the Atlantic.

How come?

Well, I will admit that I was a flapper. As for the sophistication—possibly, in one sense, but not in the popular use of the word. I learned about Hollywood in the days when a flapper was regarded as the most attractive type of young womanhood. Although Chinese, I did not let this hinder me in adding my name to the flapper roster. Now, I come back to the film capital and find the flappers gone. Gone, perhaps, for the same reason that I am no longer a flapper. I get a laugh out of those hectic years when I strung along with the flappers, to flap as much as the next girl.

Born of Chinese parents in Los Angeles, I received my initiation into the movies by watching the filming of silent pictures in Chinatown. I remember Mae Murray, being directed by Bob Leonard. And the first actress to whom I ever spoke was the late Alma Rubens. I remember crowding into an elevator with her and asking, "Are you really Alma Rubens?" From then on I was bound to get in pictures.

I was rounded up along with 150 other Chinese to act as an extra. I was a little girl, but if Hollywood needed flappers, I was determined to qualify. I had noticed that the sure way to flapperism evidently started in make-up. So I borrowed my mother's rice powder bag, wet a red Chinese paper and rubbed the color on my cheeks and lips. Then I curled my long, straight black hair. A director took one look at me, and screamed. I must have been the strangest looking flapper in all his flapper experience.

But it didn't take me long to pick up the flapper secrets—real make-up, short skirts, fast patter and an attempt to be blase.

Had I remained in Hollywood I do not know where this sort of exterior, and its automatic mental influence, would have taken me. But, at the height of flapperism, I had a chance to go to Germany. At about the same time, I was walking in Hollywood one day when a truck driver nearly ran over me and shouted "Chink!" Right back at him—without thinking—I "called" him in no uncertain terms.

Both are "big" events in my life —going to Germany and shouting at that driver. The first was a turning point in my career; The second a turning point in my mental outlook. I seemed to regain some of my Chinese philosophy—that of not hurrying through life, of not struggling.

In Europe, I started taking it easy, forgetting to flap and finding more enjoyment in the study of the languages and music than in doing the night spots.

With the result that when I returned to Hollywood studios, this time to appear with George Raft and Jean Parker in "Limehouse Nights," I was decreed the most sophisticated woman by the Mayfair Mannequin Academy of Manhattan.

I don't know just how to take it. I am no longer a flapper. That is certain. But, at the same time, I do not feel I am sophisticated in the sense the term usually denotes—blase.

I feel sorry for blase people. They irk me. True sophistication should not mean this. It should describe a person who is at ease in any situation, who has an avid interest in people and things. In life. As a true sophisticate, I am proud to be one.

And, in the same regard for the word, Hollywood has, on and off the screen, several charming sophisticates. On the screen, I believe, Elissa Landi and Kent Taylor are the outstanding ones among the persons I have met since my return from London. In private life, Marlene Dietrich and Carl Brisson are my choice.

As for me, I am not a flapper. Nor do I ever want to see the return of flapperism to this or any other country. I just want to be myself.

And in being myself I can only be one thing—Chinese.

Little Gloria Treated Like Orphan By Her Mother, Witness Charges

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Ten-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt, heiress to millions, was treated "substantially" like a "poor orphan" by her mother, it was charged today in testimony during Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's court fight for custody of her child.

Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, mother of Mrs. Vanderbilt and grandmother of little Gloria, made the statement behind the closed doors of the courtroom where the action is being tried with public and press excluded.

Supreme Court Justice F. Carew summarizing testimony at the close of the session, said that Mrs. Morgan had given "substantially" the same testimony she gave in an affidavit in which she described Gloria's treatment by her mother as that of a "poor orphan."

"Mrs. Morgan testified in general terms that the child's mother was lacking in maternal affection and instincts," he said.

The justice disclosed that he may see and talk to Gloria, to help him determine whether the girl would be better cared for by her mother or her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who now has her in charge.

Mrs. Whitney's attorneys want him to question the child, he said, whereas Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorneys have emphasized that a child of this age is "very susceptible to surrounding influences."

If he does talk to Gloria, Justice Carew said he preferred to do it in the presence of everyone concerned.

A report that the case, which has aligned mother against daughter and brought accusations against the character of Mrs. Vanderbilt, had been settled out of court was denied today by attorneys for both sides and the justice as well.

Other rumors spread about as Justice Carew, the attorneys, and Mrs. Morgan went to his chambers. The justice said later he had moved the hearing there so witnesses subpoenaed by Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorney would not hear the testimony.

"I did it partly because it was obviously embarrassing for Mrs. Morgan," he added.

Mrs. Morgan wept several times during the day, saying she loved her daughters. Justice Carew said that Mrs. Vanderbilt, too, "showed amotion, as she heard her mother attack her own maternal fitness.

Sigma Nus Plan Chapter in Atlanta

An alumni chapter of Sigma Nu Phi, a legal fraternity, will be installed in Atlanta at a ceremony to be held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Members of the active chapter and the Atlanta alumni club of the fraternity will take part in the ceremony, which will be conducted by an official delegate from the executive council of the national chapter at Washington, D. C. Following the installation dinner will be served at 6 o'clock and members of the active chapter of the Atlanta Law school and honorary members will be guests of honor.

INITIAL MEETING OF SEASON HELD BY MUSIC CLUB

The Atlanta Music Club held their initial meeting of the season in the form of a morning musicale Wednesday morning in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Mrs. Harold McKenzie, the president, extended greetings to the audience, which was of nice proportion in spite of the inclemency of the weather, and introduced Mrs. Harold Cooledge, chairman of all the morning programs; Mrs. Alex King Jr., the chairman of the day, and George Lindner, the speaker of the morning.

Mr. Lindner gave a brief outline of the composers for the string quartet, and added to the historical sketch his own personal views on this form of composition.

A string quartet composed of local artists, the personnel being Elinor Whittemore King, first violin; Frances Collins Hutcheson, second violin; Senta Mueller, viola, and Priscilla Warren Loemker, 'cello, rendered a program which was designed to correlate with the program of the Curtis string quartet, which will be the first artist attraction of the club on Wednesday evening, October 31.

Thit quartet of artists proved their ability both as soloists and as ensemblists in a performance that was noteworthy. Credit goes to their art, individually and collectively, for this is an ensemble unit that was organized for the presentation of this one program, and ensemble playing of this nature is no easy accomplishment. They opened the program with six numbers from Handel's "Water Music." Both the "Berceuse," by Osten-Sacken, and "Perpetual Motion," by Cesar Cui, revealed the quartet in better performances than the first group, and in the last number, the Beethoven quartet in B flat major (in its entirety) the performers merged their art into an interpretation that was rich in feeling and lofty in thought, indeed, a memorable work.

LEAGUE WILL HEAR DR. SAMPEY SUNDAY

The Business Women's League of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church, will have as its speaker at the October meeting, Dr. John R. Sampey, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, of Louisville, Ky. The meeting will be held at 5 o'clock in the main church auditorium Sunday afternoon.

Circle B will be in charge. Miss Elsie Kuettner, chairman, and Mrs. George P. Allen, co-chairman. An attractive musical program has been arranged by Mrs. Mattie Ellis Cooper when Mrs. Raymond E. Johnson, soprano, will sing, accompanied by Mrs. Victor Clark.

The Business Women's League has charge of the evening worship of the church each second Sunday, at which outstanding speakers will be heard and excellent musical programs enjoyed. The public is invited to all meetings of the league, and especially to hear Dr. Sampey.

RECORDS SENT COURT IN 'SCOTTSBORO CASE'

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 10.—(AP)—General Robert F. Ligon, clerk of the Alabama supreme court, today forwarded to Washington the voluminous records of the "Scottsboro case" which again will be considered by the United States supreme court.

The records, showing the progress of the cases of Haywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, sentenced to die December 7, cover several thousand pages.

They will be filed in United States supreme court for the court's information in considering the request of defense counsel for a review of the cases.

In Georgia's FIELDS and STREAMS
By H. A. Carter

BEAVER.

Let's leave the squirrels now for a while and pay some attention to the family Castoridae, which is composed entirely of the beavers.

Possibly no other animal in the history of this continent played such an important part in its development. Beaver fur is among the most highly prized of all pelts and found instant favor in the capitals of the old world during the early days of the new. Therefore the Hudson's Bay Company began to press trappers for more beaver. Prices jumped in this country; in Europe they leaped with the agility and speed of a sky rocket. Trappers pushed further and further into the unknown; cold, snow, ice, hostility, even death they braved to get the precious fur. Beaver became the standard unit of exchange; you could buy this blanket or that coat for so many beaver. Gold? Money was despised, but the trapper in from the forests was a capitalist and was entertained as such. When he was properly intoxicated by the dealer, trading began, with the inevitable result that the trapper returned to the deep woods with a strong resolve never to drink and be robbed again. Often this resolve lasted for two months, when it became qualified by the additional phrase, "until I get back to the post again!"

Thus a rodent aided in the penetration of the forbidding north and the consequent establishment of outposts where Indians could trade furs. How many of the cities of the north had their origin in trading posts I do not know; I would be willing to venture that most of the important cities of the Lakes had their beginning as fur stations.

The Georgia beaver has never been important commercially because of their relatively poor pelts. They do have a value, however, and I am amazed that they have been able to survive at all. There are a few colonies in the state, the whereabouts of which I am guarding jealously, for I do not doubt that someone would go in and kill the last one if he knew where to go.

Georgia's beaver are animals worthy of protection. Isn't there some legislator among the readers of these lines who would introduce a bill for me at the coming general assembly giving the beaver a five-year closed season? Can't we make it possible for the game department to take over the existing colonies and put the animals on a fully protected list? In short, can't we save these valuable animals indefinitely?

JUST AS YOU DEMAND Fresh MILK—

. . . demand FRESH aspirin!

When you buy milk for yourself and your children, you always demand it be absolutely fresh. You wouldn't think for a moment of accepting it otherwise, at any price.

Today, science tells you that it is just as all-important to demand that the aspirin you take for pain is absolutely fresh.

Here's what the United States Pharmacopoeia, recognized national authority, says about aspirin: "In dry air it is stable, but in contact with moisture, it gradually decomposes. Preserve in well-closed containers."

That's why each package of St. Joseph Aspirin is wrapped and sealed in moisture-proof Cellophane to keep its purity and full effectiveness intact.

You can always depend on St. Joseph Aspirin to bring faster, more complete relief from pain and colds than ordinary, unprotected aspirins. Demand St. Joseph. Each 10-cent tin contains twelve genuine pure tablets of fresh aspirin. You can get even greater economy by asking your druggist for the large 25c and 50c sizes.

CAROLINAN IS NAMED ARCHIVIST OF U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today appointed Professor Robert D. W. Connor, of North Carolina, as archivist of the United States, a new position in the federal government.

Dr. Connor is principal professor in American history at the University of North Carolina and formerly was archivist of that state.

His job will be to keep the official records of the government and to make plans, estimates and recommendations for such historical works and collections of sources materials as seem appropriate for publication at public expense.

Ringling Circus Will Show In Atlanta on October 24

"Joey" Tyler and "Big Ben," members of the huge congress of entertainers with the greatest show on earth.

The circus is coming to town! The Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined shows will be in Atlanta Wednesday, October 24, with a new assortment of skilled performers and the "largest host of clowns" ever seen in one display.

The human projectile, known as the Great Hugo, is perhaps one of the greatest thrillers with the circus this year, and he has added his brother Victor to his act. The Great Hugo and Victor are fired from a repeating cannon. They are catapulted out of the big bertha in two sweeping arcs to land in a net many yards away.

The "largest host of clowns" ever seen together will swarm throughout the big top oval in celebration of Humpty's Dumpty's centennial, an event as important as the Fourth of July to all children from the age of 6 to 60.

Many new foreign acts never before seen in America are being offered this year. Among them is the Otari troupe of 10 persons who fly, pass and somersault from a giant malteze cross high in the air; Mlle. Gillette, who leaps from the top of the big tent to a flying trapeze far below, and Amerika, who stands tip-toe on a flying trapeze. Besides these there are many other thrillers such as the Loyal-Repenskis, Europe's foremost bareback riding family, and the Willows, flying double perch whirlwinds.

Performances will be given at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock at night, but the doors will be open an hour earlier to permit a leisurely inspection of the 1,009 rare animals that are in the menagerie this year.

ART GUILD EXHIBIT TO BE OPENED MONDAY

The Atlanta Art Guild will give its first public exhibition starting Monday and continuing through Saturday on the sixth floor of Davison-Paxon's.

Charles F. Naegele said that it was the belief of the guild that only by and through the arts can a people grow rich and prosperous.

A private showing of the exhibition and tea will be given to the patrons of the guild and the press at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The showing opening Monday will be free to the public and will show what Atlanta talent can create.

Garland-Lindsay Race Is Forecast

Probability that the names of Reuben Garland and Paul Lindsay will be on the ballot in the November general election in DeKalb county as regular democratic nominees for a house post was seen Wednesday.

Lindsay nosed out in the September 12 primary with a majority of 307 votes on the face of a consolidation by the DeKalb county democratic executive committee, and Garland contested. The DeKalb county committee stood by its count and refused to allow the contest.

Garland then appealed to the state convention held at Macon and was declared the nominee. The state committee asked the DeKalb committee to certify Garland as the nominee of the party for the November election.

The DeKalb committee refused to do so and instead certified Lindsay. The state committee countered by certifying Garland, and Vess Morgan, DeKalb ordinary, now has two regularly certified names before him. The decision is his, and there was every indication that he will place both on the ballot and let the people decide the issue at the polls.

8 Lottery Winners Unpaid, Boykin Says

At least eight persons who guessed the correct figures in the "number" game in Atlanta Wednesday failed to receive their money from the lottery companies, Solicitor-General John A. Boykin announced.

The solicitor said eight persons telephoned him during the day complaining that the "number" game had not paid off. He said the names of three big companies were given him as having failed to fullfil obligations.

For the last several days, it was reported, the "number" game operators have not paid off when several persons "hit the bug" on the same day. Solicitor Boykin urged all those who fail to receive their money to report to him, adding that there is no penalty for persons who play lotteries and they need not fear prosecution.

Shirley Temple Plays Buckhead, Hilan Today

"Baby, Take a Bow," starring the wonderful child star, Shirley Temple, and with James Dunn and Claire Trevor also in the cast, will play today at two of Atlanta's most popular neighborhood theaters, the Hilan and the Buckhead.

Little Miss Temple has never appeared to finer advantage than in this production, which recently scored such a success at its uptown first showing that it will be held over for a second week.

Both Buckhead and Hilan managements had to make special booking to secure this attraction and have added to their programs for today an exceptionally attractive group of short subjects.

GOVERNOR TALMADGE TO ADDRESS AD CLUB

Oscar Strauss Jr., President, Urges Large Attendance for Success of Organization.

For the fall opening of the Atlanta Advertising Club, Governor Eugene Talmadge, billed as "Georgia's Best Advertiser," will be the featured speaker, it was announced Wednesday by Oscar Strauss Jr., president. The luncheon meeting will be held today at 12:30 o'clock at the Capital City Club.

Mr. Strauss expressed the belief that it was particularly fitting that Georgia's greatest advertiser, the governor, would formally open the season. Political preference played no part in the selection, Mr. Strauss says, Mr. Talmadge having been asked to speak as a man who knows and values publicity and not as governor.

In discussing the club and programs scheduled during the coming season, Mr. Strauss says:

"Again the advertising craft assembles to meet once a week in a common pursuit—the betterment of advertising.

"Advertising, as a science, is a servant of industry that in today's conditions is badly needed in greater quantities and better quality.

"Individuals may preach incessantly on the improvement of advertising, but unless a concerted effort is made by the advertising craft of America in general and Atlanta in particular, this servant of industry cannot properly function.

"The Advertising Club is not a social organization; it is a civic one serving to tell in a better way of the progress, initiative and improvement of mankind. It is an organization banded together for educational purposes.

"To accomplish anything at all, the club must have the support of its members. Attendance at the meetings is the most desired factor.

"The program committee has outlined an excellent campaign and has ruled that all speeches must pertain directly to advertising in a manner that will be beneficial as well as entertaining.

"Such men as Edgar Kobak, chairman of the board of the Advertising Federation of America; George W. Kleiser, president of Foster & Kleiser, San Francisco, advertising agency, and others are being brought to town to address your club.

"Local talent, such as Dean Raimundo de Ovies, Dr. Sinclair Jacobs, Harrison Jones, Preston Arkwright and other well-known Atlanta citizens, have offered their services."

GOVERNOR WILL LEAD MOTORCADE FRIDAY

Governor Talmadge will lead a motorcade starting at the state capitol at 10 o'clock Friday morning for Factory Shoals, Douglas county, to inspect a proposed national park site. The party will return to Mt. Gilead, near Ben Hill, where Governor Talmadge will speak at an old-fashioned basket-lunch and barbecue.

The motorcade will travel along the Eugene Talmadge highway from Lee street to the old Austell ferry, where a new bridge is to be erected across the Chattahoochee, and will continue to Douglasville.

The trip and dinner are being sponsored by the Southwest Boosters Club, of Ben Hill. J. E. Hughie, president of the club, will accompany the governor and his party.

21 OUT OF 23 ST. LOUIS CARDINALS SMOKE CAMELS !

by FRANK FRISCH

They sure made it hot for us this year, but the Cardinals came through in great style clear to the end when we needed every ounce of energy to win. We needed it—and we had it! There's the story in a nutshell. It seems as though the team line up just as well on their smoking habits as they do on the ball field. Here's our line-up on smoking: 21 out of 23 of the Cardinals prefer Camels.

PLAYER-MANAGER — Frankie Frisch of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals.

The World Series is over. The Cardinals are on the top—supreme in the baseball world! Their astounding achievement will go down in history—a sensational charge from 7 games behind to win the pennant . . . and then the series! Timely hitting . . . great spirit . . . abounding energy . . . tell the story.

They are champions—and popular champions. Frankie Frisch, Carleton, Rothrock, Orsatti, Leo Durocher, Bill Walker, Medwick—all America knows this Cardinal team by heart and applauds its stirring victory.

"What do the World Champions smoke?"

A natural question. And above you get Frank Frisch's answer. The preference is overwhelmingly for Camels.

Camels have a delightful way of renewing energy. They have the mildness, the flavor. They don't interfere with healthy nerves.

The Cardinals' virtually unanimous preference for Camels is worthy of every smoker's attention. Be guided by their experience. Enjoy Camel's "energizing effect" which science has studied and confirmed. Camels are milder—made from a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS. They never get on your nerves!

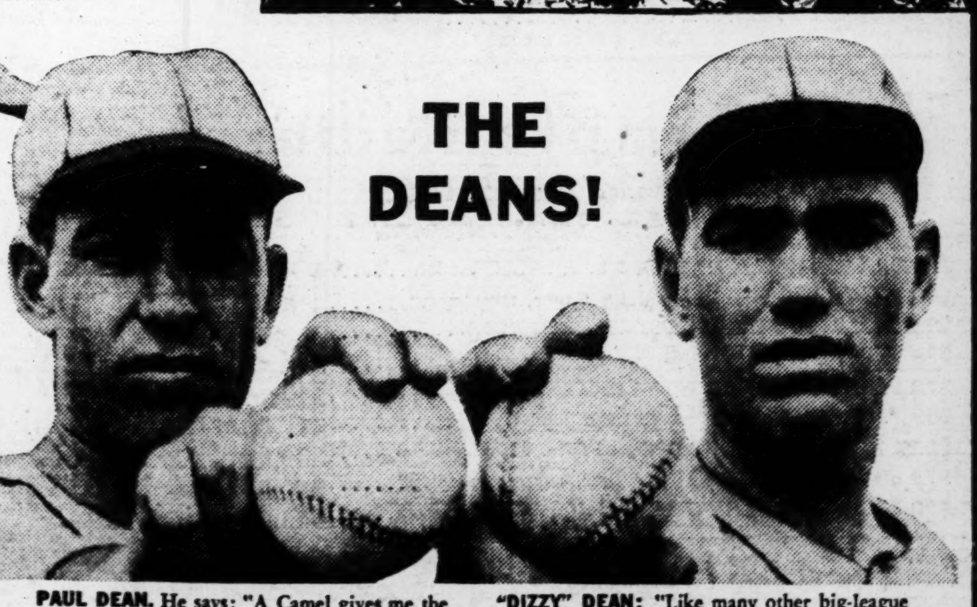
1934 WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

"DUCKY" MEDWICK: (At left) "A Camel takes away the tired feeling as soon as I leave the field, turns on my 'pep' again."

"PEPPER" MARTIN (Right) says: "You'll almost always find me with a Camel when I'm not playing. When I light a Camel I can feel all tiredness slip away."

"RIP" COLLINS. (Right) He says: "A Camel has a way of 'turning on' my energy. And when I'm tired I notice that Camels help me to snap back quickly."



PAUL DEAN. He says: "A Camel gives me the feeling of having more energy. I think any Camel smoker will agree with this. Camels never leave a 'cigaretty' aftertaste!"

"DIZZY" DEAN: "Like many other big-league pitchers I smoke Camels. A Camel brings back your energy after a hard game, or any time you are tired, and Camels never frazzle the nerves."

LEAF-TOBACCO EXPERTS AGREE:

"Camels are made from finer, More Expensive Tobaccos—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."

REV. SIMPSON HEADS PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD

90th Session in Thomasville Will Continue Through Today.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Rev. T. W. Simpson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Brunswick, today was elected moderator of the synod of Georgia at the ninetieth session which opened here last night.

Presbyterian leaders are here from all parts of the state for the meetings, which will continue through Thursday. Dr. William Huck, retiring moderator, delivered the opening sermon.

A. M. E. CONFERENCE OPENS AT VALDOSTA

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 10.—The south Georgia conference of the A. M. E. church, convened in annual session in St. Timothy A. M. E. church, here today with Bishop W. A. Fountain presiding.

Bishop R. A. Grant, of Alabama; Bishop J. S. Flipper, of Florida, associated representatives from the five conferences of the state assisted the bishop and his presiding elders in the opening of the conference.

The conference devotional was conducted by Revs. J. L. Lewis, J. Byrd, C. P. Cole and E. Bivins. The annual sermon was delivered by Rev. A. D. Harderman, of Fitzgerald, who followed with the administration of holy communion, assisted by Dr. I. G. Glass, H. E. Davis, G. H. Dunn, A. R. Easter, E. Lowry, D. W. Norman, presiding elders; Bishop Fountain, celebrant.

The bishop's Episcopal annual address before the conference was directed to the social evils of today and the "much needed Christian leadership." "We have more big churches in Georgia than we have big preachers," declared the bishop.

The conference organization was perfected as follows: Secretaries, Drs. H. E. Davis, S. A. Laing, C. S. Wingate; marshals, J. B. Brown, W. M. Cole, J. W. Fulgin, I. J. Jones; on church periodicals, Revs. J. E. Reese, J. H. Hall, A. W. White; to the Secular Press, Dr. J. A. Hadley; Dispatch-News reporter, Dr. W. O. P. Sherman and Dr. C. A. Wingfield.

FLOYD SCHOOLS PLAN VOTE ON TAX ISSUE

ROME, Ga., Oct. 10.—An election will be held Saturday in the new Mt. Alto school district to determine whether a maintenance tax is to be levied by the district to provide a nine-month school term. The amount of the tax, not to exceed five mills, will be determined by the trustees.

The new Mt. Alto district embraces the territory formerly included in the Mt. Alto, West Rome and Holbrook districts. A consolidated school will be built for the new district within the next year or two, according to Superintendent A. N. Swain.

Seventy-five per cent of the school children in Floyd county are now attending schools with nine-month terms, Swain said. The three schools in the new Mt. Alto district are operating only six and seven months.

Archaeologist Speaks.

THOMASTON, Ga., Oct. 10.—Dr. A. R. Kelley, directing archaeological explorations at Macon for the Smithsonian Institution and the Society for Georgia Archaeology, gave a talk on archaeology Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. H. Hightower, president of the John Houston Chapter, Daughters American Revolution.

Cycle Races Planned.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., Oct. 10. In addition to the three days of horse races that have been announced for the Pulaski county fair to be held here from October 29 to November 3, contracts have just been signed for a motorcycle race event for Saturday, November 3.

Fifteen entries have already been made by some noted racers and more are expected to enter this week. This will make up four days of races for fair week.

Smith Reunion.

TENNILLE, Ga., Oct. 10.—The Washington county members of the Smith family held a family reunion yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith near Dublin. A number from Tennille attended.

Columbus Schools Gain.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 10.—Enrollment in the Columbus schools this year totals 10,472 pupils as compared with 10,098 last year, according to Dr. Roland B. Daniel, superintendent. Of the number, 7,481 are white pupils.

Bridge Site Selected.

AMERICUS, Ga., Oct. 10.—The site for the new bridge to be erected on Route 30 over Flint river has been selected. The site is north of the present Huguenin ferry site, and was selected by a committee composed of C. N. Crocker, state bridge engineer; M. R. Blair, state highway architect and bridge designer; Allen Chappell, state senator from the thirteenth district; Charles Wheatley, Sumter county engineer, and Dock Holt, FERA engineer at Americus.

Sumter Gin Tickets.

AMERICUS, Ga., Oct. 10.—Farmers in the vicinity of Leslie and DeSoto in Sumter county will receive their gin allotments during Thursday. The certificates will be distributed through J. K. Luck, county agent, at the Woodmen's hall in Leslie Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. All farmers who ginned their cotton at gins located either in Leslie, DeSoto or Cobb, will be included among those scheduled to receive their allotments and are expected to be present and claim these promptly.

Veterans' Sons to Meet.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 10.—Francis S. Bartow camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, is to meet Monday night and a new commander will be elected. Dr. Thomas Savage Clay was recently elected commander, but due to the lack of time to attend to the duties of the office, he has declined. Harry S. Dreese is acting commander.

Revival at Valdosta.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 10.—Dr. M. M. MacFerrin, of Augusta, a widely known Presbyterian minister, will conduct a revival service at the First Presbyterian church here, commencing Sunday, October 21.

Dr. L. R. Scott, pastor of the church, will assist in the services, and much interest is already being manifested in the plans for the revival. This marks the opening of the fall revival meetings in Valdosta.

New School Annex.

THOMASTON, Ga., Oct. 10.—R. E. Lee Institute is erecting an addition to the school, which will have 14 classrooms. This new annex will take care of the grammar grades of the school. The city officials, together with the aid of FERA, are erecting this modern building. It will be heated with natural gas.

PAGE IS MADE EDITOR OF COLUMBUS PAPERS

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 10.—(AP)—R. M. Page, general manager of the Columbus Ledger and Enquirer, has been made editor-in-chief with direct supervision over the editorial and news departments of the two newspapers.

M. R. Ashworth, assistant to the publisher, succeeded Page as general manager and will take over the business office duties formerly assigned to him. W. E. Page Jr., son of the federal collector of internal revenue for Georgia, was made business manager and will supervise the accounting and collection departments.

In announcing the changes, J. E. Page, publisher of the two papers, said they were made "in order that the work of the different executives can be more evenly distributed."

W. E. Page is president of the R. W. Page Corporation, which owns the two local newspapers and papers in Bradenton, Fla., and Wilmington, North Carolina.

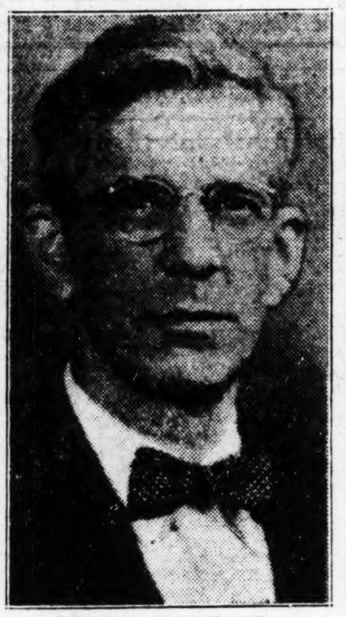
GEORGIA TRAIL CLUB MEETS AT CLOUDLAND

Benton MacKaye, Founder of Appalachian Route, To Speak.

CLOUDLAND, Ga., Oct. 10.—Benton MacKaye, nestor of the Appalachian trail, will be the principal speaker at the fifth annual meeting of the Georgia Trail Club, which will be held at the Cloudland Park Club hotel here October 13-14.

Among the other prominent speakers will be Colonel Richard A. Gilliam, executive secretary of the conservation and development commission of Virginia, who will speak on "what has been done in Virginia by the department on the acquisition and the development of state parks and other recreational areas—the making of historical sites and the economic value of this work."



BENTON MAC KAYE.

MacKaye, a native of Connecticut, is a Harvard grduate, regional planner, member of the Society of American Forestry, vice president of the regional Planning Association of America, and is an author of note. He has written several books that deal with natural resources.

The idea of the Appalachian trail was conceived over 30 years ago by Mr. MacKaye as "a foothpath for those who seek fellowship with the wilderness." Inspired by Thoreau's dictum that "the best way to become acquainted with any scenery is to engage in some pursuit in it which harmonizes with it," the organization has completed 2,050 miles of trail building—a "harmonizing pursuit" which has cleared the ridge of the Appalachians from Maine into Georgia. Only 30 miles in Maine and 40 miles of trails in Tennessee remain to be cleared.

The southern terminus of the trail is at the Tate Mountain Estates. The club is composed of young people who several times a month get together for a hike to some place within a radius of 70 miles from Atlanta, according to Miss Maude H. Sewell, Atlanta, publicity chairman.

The Atlanta section, under the leadership of Warner W. Hall, Decatur, Ga., president, is expected to bring a large delegation to the meeting here.

H. E. Weatherwax, southeastern district officer of the national park service, and J. C. Kircher, regional forester of the southeastern region of the national forestry service, Atlanta, will be among the speakers.

MOORE TRIAL OPENS AT JEFFERSONVILLE

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ga., Oct. 10. (AP)—In surprise testimony of witnesses placed on the stand early tonight, attorneys for John P. Moore, 45, who is on trial for murder in connection with the slaying of Appleton Harris, 53, last April 13, sought to impeach the state's star witnesses.

M. H. Faulk and John Faulk, brothers whose version of the fishing party which ended in the tragic death of Harris is the bulwark of the prosecution's case, were quoted by defense witnesses as saying that Harris caused the trouble which ended in his death and that Moore was justified.

While on the stand under cross-examination by Moore's attorneys, the Faulks denied having made any such statements as were attributed to them by the witnesses for Moore who were heard later in the day.

Judge Luther Kent, of Wrightsville, who is presiding at the trial, ordered work on the case to be resumed at 9 a. m. tomorrow and the jury is expected to begin its deliberations tomorrow afternoon.

State Deaths And Funerals

W. E. HARTLEY.

TENNILLE, Ga., Oct. 10.—Funeral services for W. E. Hartley, well-known traveling salesman formerly of Tennille but recently of Augusta, who died Sunday night of a heart attack at his home in Augusta, were held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Crump in Tennille and were conducted by Rev. W. M. Marshall, pastor of the Tennille Baptist church.

Mr. Hartley was reared in Washington county.

E. M. STERLING.

MOULTRIE, Ga., Oct. 10.—E. M. Sterling, 79, pioneer Colquitt county farmer, died at his home near here yesterday following a long illness. He was a native of Hancock county, but came to Colquitt when a young man.

He is survived by two sons, J. M. Sterling and John Sterling, Moultrie, and one daughter, Mrs. A. C. White, Atlanta.

GEORGE W. EDDINGS.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 10.—George W. Eddings, 72, died at his residence Monday night after an illness of one week and funeral services were held this afternoon. Rev. M. Wilson officiated and interment was in the Pine Grove cemetery.

Mr. Eddings was born in Dodge county and married Miss Mattie Wade, who survives him. He is also survived by three sons, Harry Eddings, Carl Eddings and Arzo Eddings; four daughters, Miss Opal Eddings, Mrs. Ann Bettis, Mrs. Rosa Brock and Mrs. Jewel Price.

E. J. HARRIS.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 10.—Funeral services for E. J. Harris, 55, who died Monday in Birmingham, were held this afternoon in Columbus. Rev. H. E. Wilson, pastor of the Trinity Methodist church, of Phenix City, Ala., officiated and interment was in the Riverdale cemetery.

Mr. Harris was formerly of Columbus, having moved to Birmingham in 1916. He is survived by his wife; three sons, H. C. Harris, Cecil Harris and Claude Harris; three daughters, Mrs. S. C. Douglas, Mrs. H. Hopkns and Miss Ada Lee Harris, and two brothers, B. C. Harris and J. L. Har-

FLOOD WATERS DAMAGE INDIAN SPRINGS SITE

INDIAN SPRINGS, Ga., Oct. 10. Five inches of rain fall during last night and this morning caused Little Sandy and Big Sandy creeks passing through the Georgia State park to overflow the lowlands, doing considerable damage to the thousands of shrubs and trees planted last spring by the CCC members, carried away a 50-foot bridge leading to the swimming pool and a service bridge used by the CCC camp in carrying material to the new stone casino and pavilion now under construction.

A break in the embankment protecting the spring basin allowed water to cover the spring house to a depth of 12 or 14 feet, eight inches higher than in the flood of 1929, and 10 inches higher than the flood in 1922. The open air theater was covered with from two to six feet of water.

The full extent of the damage to the state property cannot be estimated until the flood waters subside. The entire CCC camp was on duty all day moving cement and lumber to places of safety, saving the playground equipment and rescuing the tents of the mess hall. Most of the tables and benches of the mess hall were washed away.

A near-fatality occurred when L. G. McClellan, miller at old Red Mill, fell from the sluice box and was carried over the turbulent waters of the shoals, and saved his life when he grabbed a tie-rod under the steel bridge on Route 42, the bridge being at the confluence of the two streams.

During the afternoon hundreds of people came to view the sight of the pounding water over the dame and the shoals.

LABOR CONCILIATOR ENDS VISIT TO ROME

ROME, Ga., Oct. 10.—P. W. Chappell, conciliator for the department of labor, Washington, D. C., has left Rome after a visit in connection with the 12-week strike at four stove foundries.

Chappell said that he could give out no information other than to say he was just here to "look the situation over." Representatives of employers and labor indicated that no progress was made toward settlement of the strike.

Meanwhile, finished products are being shipped out as rapidly as possible from the plants, under orders left by Colonel L. C. Pope, who was here last week in command of five companies of the 121st infantry, sent here at the request of Sheriff O. L. Betts.

VALDOSTA PHYSICIAN HEADS DISTRICT BODY

WAYCROSS, Ga., Oct. 10.—Dr. B. G. Owens, of Valdosta, has been elected president of the Eighth District Medical Society, succeeding Dr. C. M. Stephens, of Waycross. Dr. W. D. Mixson, of Waycross, was elected vice president. The election was held at the annual fall convention of the society held here.

Speakers were Dr. C. L. Ayers, of Toccoa, president of the Georgia Medical Association; Dr. J. E. Paullin, of Atlanta, president-elect of the Georgia Medical Association; Dr. T. V. Willis, of Brunswick; Dr. L. W. Holloway, of Jacksonville; Dr. M. J. Eagan, of Savannah, and Dr. W. W. Turner, of Nashville.

Following the scientific session a cancer clinic was held at the Ware County hospital, conducted by Dr. J. L. Campbell, of Atlanta.

The visiting physicians were guests at a banquet at the Hotel Ware last night, with the Ware County Medical Society as host.

The feature of the banquet was the presentation by the Ware County Medical Society of a handsome cup to be awarded each year by the Georgia Medical Association to the physician doing the most for the control and eradication of the hookworm.

SAVANNAH MAN'S BOND REFUSED IN TAMPA

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A $7,500 bond for Charles E. Lemons, of Savannah, Ga., under indictment for murder in the slaying of Jerry M. Bacalis, bottling company president here, was turned down by Sheriff W. C. Spencer.

Spencer received the bond yesterday, signed by two men from Savannah. The sheriff said he had no court order or other legal instructions to accept the bond and that he would approve no bond without authority.

Peter Frank also was indicted in the slaying. Court officials said if Lemons acquired bond it would have to be through the process of habeas corpus proceedings, the manner in which Frank obtained his release in the same amount of bond during trial.

SIEGE OF SAVANNAH CELEBRATED TODAY

Warships of Three Nations To Join in Observing Event.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Vessels of three nations will join in an international celebration of the anniversaries of the siege of Savannah, one of the bloodiest battles of the American Revolution, and the death of General Casimar Pulaski, Polish hero, who died defending Savannah against the British.

The French dispatch boat d'Entrecasteaux is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow to join the British sloop Dundee and the American destroyer Hovey.

The Dundee arrived on October 9, the exact anniversary of the siege of Savannah, while the French vessel is expected to reach here tomorrow on the date of General Pulaski's death.

Officers of the three vessels will be guests at an international dinner Friday night with the city as hosts. Meanwhile, the officers and men are being entertained.

This will be the 155th anniversary of the battle.

FLORIDAN IS NAMED HEAD OF G. S. C. W. BODY

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 10. (AP)—Miss Elizabeth Pollard, of Jacksonville, Fla., has been elected president of the first student government association at the Georgia State College for Women here.

Other officers chosen at a meeting of the student body were Miss Viola James, Atlanta, vice president; Miss Grace Webb, Quitman, secretary and treasurer, and Miss Billie Jennings, Augusta, clerk of the court.

STATE TAX REVISION URGED BY COMMITTEE

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A commission appointed to study the city and county tax systems has adopted resolutions urging revision of the state tax system as promptly as possible.

The commission concluded that the first measures of relief must come from the state legislature. The resolutions asked that legislation to reduce taxes on real estate be given favorable consideration by the next session of the legislature.

Mayor Thomas Gamble was asked to urge mayors of Georgia's principal cities to unite in bringing similar resolutions before the legislature.

ANDERSON TO ADDRESS VALDOSTA TRADE BODY

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 10.—W. T. Anderson, of the Macon Telegraph, has accepted an invitation to address the annual meeting of the Valdosta Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday evening, October 16. A large attendance is expected.

The annual meeting of the chamber of commerce immediately precedes the annual election of directors, and the ballots will be mailed out during next week for the primary in which 14 nominees are to be selected from which seven directors will be chosen.

MACON RITES TODAY FOR MRS. DUNWOODY

MARIETTA, Ga., Oct. 10.—Funeral services for Mrs. Annie LeRoche Dunwoody, 84, prominent citizen of Marietta and member of a widely known Georgia family, who died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Glover here, were held Wednesday afternoon at the Glover home. Rev. Charles Wood officiated. Interment will be in Riverside cemetery in Macon Thursday morning at 11:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Dunwoody is survived, in addition to her daughter, by three sons, W. E. Dunwoody, I. L. Dunwoody, of Macon, and J. Marion Dunwoody, of Eatonton.

Excise Tax Threat Cuts Beer Dealers

Threat of the federal government to impose a $1,000 excise tax on all dealers in 3.2 beer in Atlanta has reduced the number of licensed dealers from 400 last quarter to about 100 thus far this quarter, it was announced Wednesday by J. Henson Tatum, city clerk.

It appeared that a large majority of local dealers will await the outcome of the petition for an injunction filed in federal district court here to prevent the government from collecting the announced levy.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of the federal district court, will hear the injunction arguments Saturday, under the present plans. If he decides that a permanent injunction should be allowed, city revenues will rise again. If, however, he declines to grant the petition, a long-drawn-out out court battle impends.

Tatum Wednesday said he will begin a survey of Atlanta dealers Friday with a view of forcing those who are still selling the beverage to pay up.

He also announced that Friday is the last day for payment of business licenses for the last quarter.

Collections for the first six months have exceeded those of the same period last year by about $10,000.

GEORGIA STUDENTS END AIR SCHOOL TRAINING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The war department announced today that 76 students will be graduated on October 13 from the air corps advanced flying school at Kelly field, San Antonio, Texas.

West Point graduates from Kelly field will be transferred immediately to the air corps of the regular army, and the other graduates, with the exception of two Mexicans, will be placed on duty with air corps tactical units as flying cadets for one year.

Among graduates are: Georgia—Franklin S. Henley, Eastman; Thomas S. Moorman Jr., Fort McPherson; William L. Travis, Savannah.

HUNT FAILS TO FIND DARIEN NEGRO'S BODY

DARIEN, Ga., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A two-day search by Sheriff A. S. Poppell and other McIntosh county officers today had failed to locate the body of Curtis James, negro, shot in his home 12 miles from here early Sunday by masked men.

James, mortally wounded, was taken away from his home, the sheriff said, despite the pleas of his wife that he be left ther to die. The sheriff said he now was convinced the body was burned after he had completed a search of the surrounding territory.

Two negroes were arrested in connection with the crime and are being held in jail here. Sheriff Poppell said he had evidence of their connection with the death of James.

The sheriff said the masked band of 12 white men and two negroes, all wearing masks, went to the James home and shot him through a window. He said they entered the house and announced "this is one body the undertaker won't get."

MISTRIAL IS DECLARED IN FORT VALLEY CASE

FORT VALLEY, Ga., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Judge J. L. Brown today declared a mistrial in the case of Dewey L. Varmette, charged with the slaying of James Dixon, young bakery clerk, here August 6, when the jury failed to agree.

The case was given to the jury at noon yesterday and it deliberated far into the night before being locked up. It reported today that it was unable to reach a verdict.

10TH DISTRICT SCHOOL PLANT IS TO BE SOLD

SPARTA, Ga., Oct. 10.—The commissioners of Hancock county are advertising for bids on the old Tenth District A. & M. school property, which was turned back to them by the state board of regents when the school was abolished. The farm contains over 265 acres and has a number of valuable buildings on it, including the girls' dormitory, which was not torn down when the other two buildings were razed by FERA forces.

If This Be Daffiness, Where Can One Learn How in 10 Easy Lessons?

It so happens that our ranking heroes, the Dean boys in baseball, and Maxwell Baer in the heavyweight fight division, are all three listed with the daffodils, in a manner of speaking.

Which is to say they have found that a reputation for daffy actions and sayings pays big dividends when backed by a fast ball or a good right-hand punch.

Perhaps it is best right here, before going on any farther, to suggest you take hold of my hand. I am going off the deep end into a discussion in which I may wander and we don't want to get lost.

They have found, unconsciously or consciously, I know not which, that the public dearly loves for its heroes to be a bit daffy because it gives the public a sort of complex—a lad making $5 per week can guffaw at them and say, "Can you imagine a big dumb cluck like that?" Of course, the big dumb cluck is salting away what the boys call serious dough all the while the crowds are laughing at him. And in later years he can travel around in first-class passage and have the stewards and the porters yes-siring him and running errands for him for tips. But right now they are just three big daffies who went great in a World Series and we all love them and laugh at them and tell everyone how illiterate they sounded over the radio. "And can you imagine a big daffy guy like that?"

As I said, maybe we are lost here in an impenetrable wilderness of amateur and very poor psychology but that is the way it seems to me after working around the big crowds at the big sport spectacles where the daffy ones have performed.

BAER THE BEST DAFFODIL.

The arrogant egotist who utters his boast and takes it on the chin is most unpopular. But the fellow who says he will and does it is also unpopular unless he does it with a daffy sort of sideline.

Max Baer, with all his fondness for blondes and for tossing away his money, comes nearer being the true daffodil. He will be lucky if he emerges from the game with enough to tide him along for the remainder of his days. But one can't escape the fact he is in the big money and will be there for quite a while.

Baer announced that Carnera was nothing but a big clown and that he, Baer, would knock him out with a modicum of ease. Now Carnera was not a clown. He was training industriously where Baer was sloven.

Yet in the end Baer did make him look like a clown and he did knock him out.

And I can see Baer yet, the fight over, standing at the ropes blowing a kiss at some blondes, waving his big bloody, wet gloves and saying, "Share that amongst you."

He is daffy and conceited and all that but he backs it up with being the best heavyweight fighter in the world until someone proves he isn't.

So where do we go from there?

THE DEANS NOT DAFFY.

The Dean boys aren't daffy. They have learned that a little bit of popping off gets into the newspapers and brings out the crowds. And so they live up to the part and put on the act.

I have read an article quoting Mrs. Dizzy Dean and she says she is salting away the money as fast as Dizzy earns it so they will not have to part at the fork in the path which leads, left to right, to the Old Men's home and the Old Ladies' home.

They will clean up some $40,000 each this winter and then sign for a sum which will run around $12,000 each next spring.

I do not call that daffy or dizzy at all and if it is I hope someone will open up a correspondence school and teach the art of daffiness in ten easy lessons.

I wish very much to take all ten lessons.

SAY IT ISN'T SO!

In one of the Detroit papers of Monday, after Dizzy Dean had been defeated on Sunday, there appeared a statement which said:

"Dizzy Dean is really a better pitcher than he appeared in the series."

The trouble was the elder Dean was to appear once more. He was around there on Tuesday, wasn't he?

This reminds me of a newspaper crack which I heard some years ago. When Red Grange was running for touchdowns in his sophomore year at Illinois he was not placed on the All-American by one of the pickers of that year who wrote: "All Grange can do is run."

An an Illinois paper came back, printing beneath that statement:

"All Galli Curci can do is sing."

At that, though, I suspect the statement about Dean was correct. He probably is better than he was in the series. But the important factor was he was good enough.

The pitching performance of Schoolboy Rowe in winning his 12-inning game for Detroit was the best individual pitching performance of the series. But when the Schoolboy was called on in the important game which would have won for the Tigers he didn't quite have it.

In all the series I think the Cardinals had the upper hand in confidence. The Detroits were all set to beat the Giants. But the Cardinals did that first.

FRISCH'S CURIOUS RECORD.

Frankie Frisch, Cardinal manager, played his 50th World Series game last Tuesday. He had played, before this last series, in 17 games with the Cardinals and the remainder with the Giants.

The curious thing about his record is his failure to hit in the series. While playing for the Giants he hit well above his season average in the World Series games, batting for the tremendous figure of .376 in 26 games.

In 1931 Pepper Martin batted a bare .300 for the season and in the series hit the ball for the prodigious average of .500.

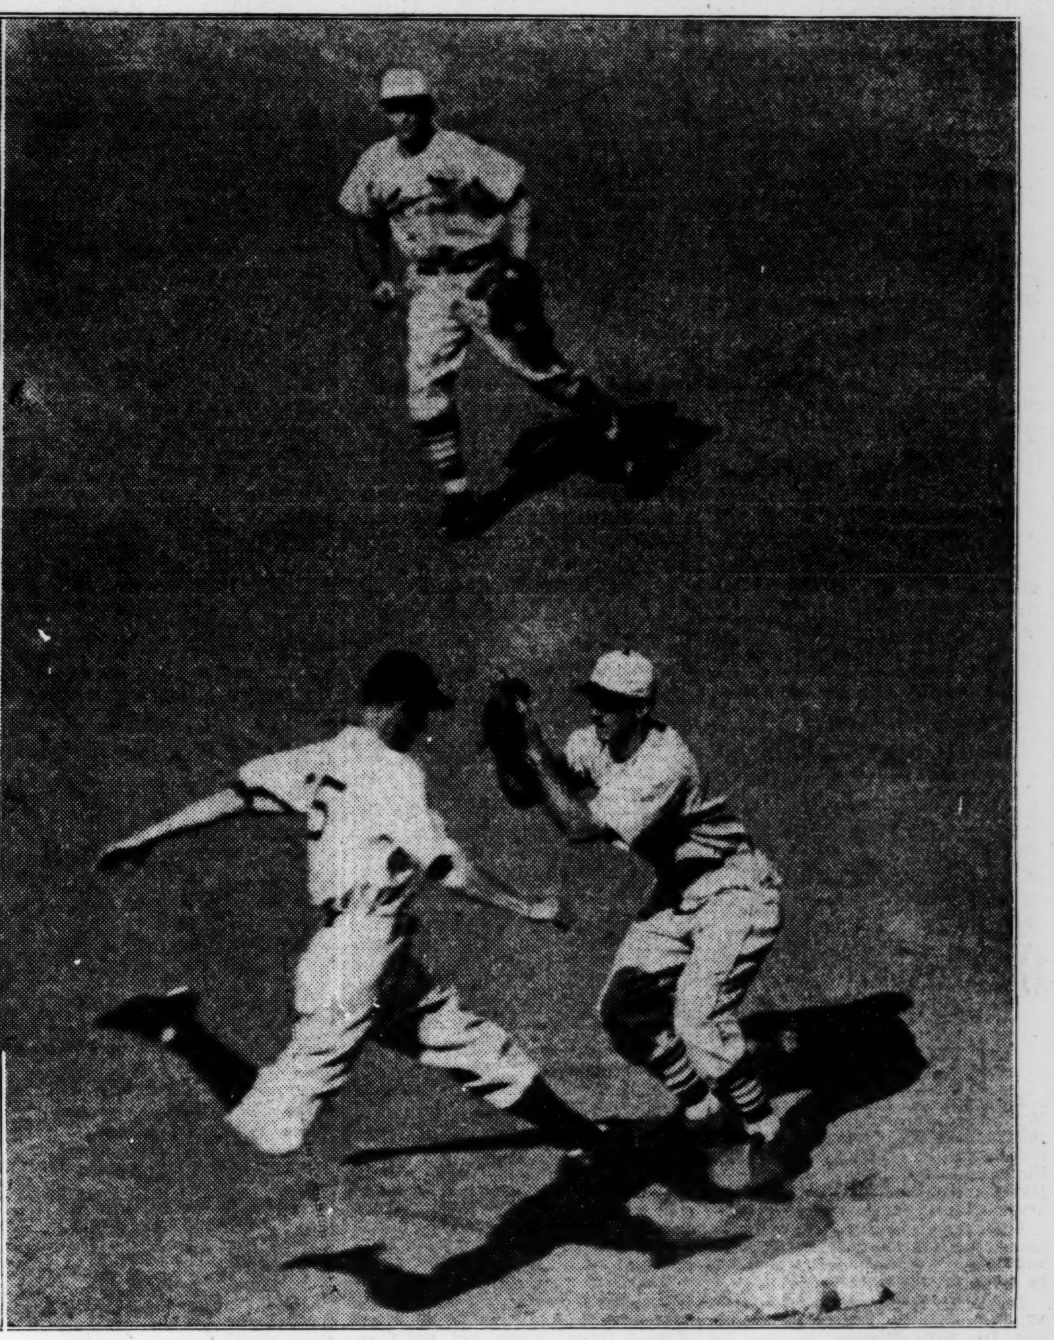
This year Martin batted .289 for the season and .353 for the series.

The series is different. Ty Cobb, for instance, was never a series star. The player who is prone to worry rarely does as well.

WAS THE CIVIL WAR ON THE LEVEL?

It is distressing to hear grown men insist the series was framed to go seven games. I am quite sure there are several who insist the Battle of Gettysburg was "fixed" in advance.

Diz, Frankie---Pals! Jo Jo a Step Late



Remember when Dizzy Dean missed that train and Frankie Frisch was very, very harsh with Diz? All is forgiven now. This was posed just after Dizzy won the series and he and Frisch, the Cardinal manager, met in the clubhouse. He can miss a train next year if he wishes. At the right is Atlanta's star in the series, Joyner (Jo Jo) White, Detroit outfielder. He was a step late on this, going out at first in the first inning of the final game. Looks as if he had it but then you know how umps are.

CHEERING CROWD GREETS CHAMPS

Dizzy Arrives Sporting White Sun Hat and a Rubber Tiger.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—(AP)—St. Louis today acclaimed the world champion Cardinals as the city's heroes.

A parade over streets strewn with paper and debris of the celebration which began yesterday afternoon and extended through most of the night, was the city's tribute to the conquerors of Detroit's Tigers.

Near the front of the line of parading automobiles, just behind the car reserved for Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann and club officials, rode triumphantly the brothers Dean—Dizzy, exuberant, bizarre; Paul, having just as good a time in his more quiet manner.

Dizzy wore a white African sun helmet and carried a toy rubber tiger. On the long tail, as Dizzy pointed out to admirers, were four knots, each representing a Dean victory over the American league champions.

GLAD TO BE HOME.

"Glad to be home, with the World Series in the bag," Dizzy said.

"This hat," as he called the helmet, "is to wear when I go fishing down in Deanville, Fla.," which used to be Bradenton.

"Wanta banana?" a loud-voiced youth shouted to Joe Medwick, who yesterday was the target for fruit, vegetables and glassware from the left-field bleachers at Navin field, Detroit.

Like her famous husband, Mrs. Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean enjoyed the excitement immensely.

"Everybody was so nice," she said. "At first, Paul seemed to think it rather silly, but before the parade was over he was the worst cut-up of the lot."

OFF TO A GAME.

The rubber-armed Deans hurried to their hotel, gathered up their belongings and boarded an airplane for Oklahoma City to pitch tonight in an exhibition game. They arrived safely.

Mayor Dickmann; President Sam Breadon, of the Cardinals, and a group of players and their wives were guests of the Coronado hotel at a dinner tonight. Later the group, numbering 28, were to be the mayor's guests at a horse show.

Tonight many of the Cardinals had left for their homes. Manager Frankie Frisch will remain here several days to talk over plans for 1935 with club officials.

Mrs. Hill Defeated By Young Golfer

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Jean Bauer, young Providence (R. I.) star, leaped into prominence today as a "dark horse" contender in the competition for the Berthellyn golf cup by crushing the trans-Mississippi champion, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, 5 and 4, in an upset result.

The defending trophy-holder, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former national champion, also went into the quarter-finals when her scheduled opponent, Mrs. Dan Chandler, of Dallas, Texas, defaulted.

Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., eliminated Mrs. Leon Solomon, Memphis, Tenn., 1 up in 19 holes; Deborah Verry, Worcester, Mass., downed a former national titlist, Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck, 1 up; Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., defeated Mrs. Thomas O'Reilly, New York, 4 and 2; Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, former national crown holder, conquered Mrs. Charles Dennehy, Chicago, 7 and 6; Mary Rogers, Jacksonville, Fla., crushed Jean Kyer, Ann Arbor, Mich., 5 and 4, and Mrs. W. G. Hamilton Jr., Philadelphia, trounced Mrs. Arthur Harrison, Buffalo, N. Y., 5 and 4, to complete the quarter-final bracket.

Thompson Gets Chance And Plays End Well

Atlanta Boy Realizes Long-Waited Opportunity to Perform for Georgia Tech.

By Ralph McGill.

It is more than likely that this young man Oscar Thompson may do a lot of end-playing for the Georgia Techs this fall.

And if he keeps on in the manner of his play against those Vanderbilt Commodores last Saturday he will be rated as one of the very best ends we have. Because there was nothing wrong with his end work against the Commodores.

This is one of the great things in football, to see a boy come like this one has. He was rated as a good end at Riverside. At Tech it was figured he was a little light last year. He subbed a little.

In the Clemson game his work was just fair. And that is where the kick comes in this football business. He came storming back to play one of the greatest games on the field against Vanderbilt. And that when his team was getting itself defeated.

I saw several Commodores go flying into the air and most of the time this young fellow Oscar Thompson was latched onto their legs, hanging on hard.

THOMPSON TO PLAY.

He should keep going against Duke. In fact, when the list of good players is reported I expect to find Oscar Thompson's name up there near the top.

He has something of a story behind him. All his life he has wanted to be a football player. He has worked and dreamed toward that end—of some day playing good football for a college team with Georgia Tech as that team if possible.

And now he has that chance and it doesn't appear he is going to lose it. He will be in there at end quite a lot.

This happens to be one of Tech's big problems—the development of end play. I think that Captain Henry Robinson has done a good job. But the ends must advance more than they have. They will, of course. And I think Oscar Thompson will move right along with them.

TECH MUST PASS.

The Tech team will depend quite a lot on its ends next Saturday at Durham where the odor of fresh cigarets fill the air and the Duke eleven is to be played.

The ends must help stop Corky Cornelius and they will have to catch some passes.

I am not trying to help Mr. W. A. Alexander, who is as capable as anyone I know, coach his football team. I am merely advancing Oscar Thompson, an Atlanta boy by the way, as an end who has made a lot of progress and who looked great in the Vanderbilt game as one who will help out.

Second Pigeon Race Is Set for Sunday

The second of a series of pigeon races sponsored by the Atlanta Homing Pigeon Club will be flown Sunday from Roberta, Ga., to Atlanta. Other races are scheduled for October 21 from Oglethorpe, October 28 from Cordele, November 4 from Tifton and November 11 from Valdosta.

A special race consisting of the first two clock birds will be flown from Valdosta, the 200-mile station, on October 20.

Edward Moor's "Speeding Wings" won the initial race last Sunday, flying the 50-mile course in one hour and 20 minutes. There were six lofts represented and 85 birds competed in the race.

The Pigeon Club is open to all persons who wish to fly homing pigeons. E. M. Johnson is president of the club, with Edward Moor, secretary.

FOXX RECOVERING.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Jimmy Foxx, first baseman of the Philadelphia Atheletics, was still in a hospital here today recovering from injuries suffered Monday when he was hit on the head by a pitched ball in an exhibition baseball game. He probably will not be released for two or three days.

UMP FINED $50 BY JUDGE LANDIS

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—(AP)—An umpire was fined, for the first time in at least 14 years, and the romance of Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe and his childhood sweetheart from Arkansas again was in the limelight today, as widely divergent aftermaths of the late World Series.

Kennesaw Mountain Landis slapped the $50 fine on William J. Klem, senior National league arbiter, for what baseball's high commissioner described as "over-ripe words" directed publicly at Leon (Goose) Goslin, Detroit Tiger outfielder.

Landis said it was the first time in his 14 years as baseball commissioner he had had to chastise an umpire in that manner.

Of even greater interest to Detroit fans, who have followed with sympathetic interest the romance between Rowe, their Tiger pitching hero in victory or defeat, and Miss Edna Mary Skinner, of Eldorado, Ark., was the question of when and where they would wed.

An attorney who said he represented them applied for a waiver of Michigan's five-day law so the couple could be married without delay. Although Rowe, visiting in Flint, Mich., professed not to have known of such a plan, there was a widely held belief that a secret, and early, marriage was planned.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Landis slipped away on a fishing trip to northern Michigan after disposing of three of the four misconduct charges that were hang-overs from the World Series. Awaiting decision after he returns to Chicago is the case of Joe Medwick, who was banished from yesterday's final game during a near-riot that followed his clash with Marvin Owen, Detroit Tiger third-baseman.

Landis fined Bill Delancey, St. Louis catcher, $50 for hurling too pungent language at Umpire Clarence (Brick) Owens in St. Louis, but that was a reduction of $150 from the fine Owen had assessed at the time.

He closed, without penalty, the case of Gerald Walker, Tiger pinch-batter, who was charged with casting aspersions at the eyesight of Umpire Jack Reardon.

Memphis Pro Team Signs Centre Star

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Coach Frosty Peters, of the Memphis Tigers, American football league pro eleven, today announced the signing of Dallas Long, fullback, former Centre College star, a resident of Augusta, Ark. The Tigers will play the Louisville, Ky., member of the league here Sunday.

GEORGIA LOOKS MUCH BETTER

By Bill Ray.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 10.—Making up for lost time the Georgia Bulldogs scrimmaged both offensively and defensively against the scrubs and freshmen this afternoon as Coach Harry Mehre drove the squad through the hardest workout of the week.

The scrubs, employing North Carolina plays, gained considerable ground over the varsity line but the veterans looked much better than yesterday, when Coach Mehre, disgusted with their poor playing, sent them to the showers one hour ahead of time.

CHAPMAN ON DEFENSE.

Aubrey "Buck" Chapman, who was held out of the Furman game due to a muscle injury, was back at his fullback position on the defense but Coach Mehre did not let him play when the ball came into the hands of the Bulldogs. John Bond was also in the first string lineup and performed with usual running perfection despite his convalescent knee injury.

The four horseman backfield of Bond, Cy Grant, Jack Griffith and Buck Chapman aided in stopping the hard charges of the two frosh stars, Pete Tinsley and Lewis Young, while the varsity skirmished 40 minutes against Coach Carl Inaveley's Tarheel plays.

Working with spinners, power plays and passes the scrubs baffled the Bulldogs although Alec Ashford, 150-pound end, and John Bond, Toccoa halfback, threw several Tarheel plays for losses. The scrubs made up of the star freshman prospect and Red Devil men gave a formidable imitation of the strong and deeptive North Carolina attack.

GRANT GOOD.

When the varsity got the ball for a short offensive drill, Cy Grant, Cornelia's side-stepping right halfback, was running with his effortless stride, which ate up the ten-yard markers. Johnny Bond, left halfback, showed little effects of the knee injury which kept him off the field for one week and slithered down the muddy field for neat gains. The Bulldogs' passing attack also seemed to be improved.

Scrimmaging on a field made slippery by a three-inch rain, the Bulldogs got plenty of practice in mud work which should stand them in good stead if the field is wet Saturday.

North Carolina's unbalanced line formations, a thorn in the varsity's side yesterday, gave them little trouble this afternoon. The Tarheels' passing attack, however, worried the secondary defense and several passes were completed by the scrubs.

Before the scrimmage the backfield worked on an adequate defense for North Carolina's strong passing attack. The backs were working on kicking with Grant, Bond and Green getting off the best boots.

FOUR INJURED.

Only four Bulldogs remain on the injured list, Frank Johnson, guard, is nursing a thigh bruise; Julius Caesar Hall, sophomore tackle, has a

Dorothy Kirby To Defend Title

Dorothy Kirby, Georgia's young golf champion, will defend her title next week on the Radium Springs course at Albany, Ga. Mrs. O. B. Keeler, president of the Georgia Women's Golf Association, will accompany Dorothy to Radium Springs and will compete in the tourney.

Several other Atlantans are expected to participate in the annual state tourney, although no definite announcement has been made regarding their entry.

Qualifying rounds will be played Monday morning, with match play scheduled during the remainder of the week.

As an added attraction to the week's activities, a driving, approach and putting contest will be held.

The perpetual Barron Collier trophy will be presented to the winner, with suitable trophies and prizes to the winner and runner-up in each flight. There will be as many flights as necessary to take care of the entries.

The annual meeting of the state association, which was organized six years ago at Radium Springs, will be held during the week. Election of officers and selection of a site for the 1935 tourney will feature the annual meeting.

Jess Neely, Aids Sign Long Contracts

CLEMSON COLLEGE, S. C., Oct. 10.—(AP)—The Clemson College Athletic Council today announced Jess Neely, head coach at Clemson, and his assistants, Joe Davis, Frank Howard and Bob Jones, have signed long-term contracts to remain at Clemson.

The council did not announce the number of years stipulated by the contract.

PURPLES PLAY CADETS TONIGHT

Boys' High, Tech High and G. M. A. football teams completed their week's football practices Wednesday with long signal drills and blackboard sessions and lectures indoors. The scrimmaging was completed Tuesday afternoon.

Boys' High plays Marist College Thursday night at Ponce de Leon park, Tech High meets Decatur Friday night and G. M. A. journeys to Monroe, Ga., to play Red Barron's Aggies Friday afternoon. Those are the major games for the week, with Russell meeting Griffin Friday night at Griffin, and Druid Hills playing R. E. Lee at Druid Hills Friday afternoon in the other games.

GOOD GAMES.

Both the Thursday and Friday night games at Ponce de Leon park should be well worth seeing.

Boys' High, with one of its greatest teams, faces a much improved Marist squad, which won the north Georgia interscholastic conference title last year. It will be a battle of the offenses, as both teams will stake everything on their scoring opportunities.

A "tag day" will be observed at the Boys' High-Marist game. A collection to help raise funds to send the Boys' High band to Chattanooga early in November, will be taken up during the game.

Tech High and Decatur will renew

Tharpe To Scout Wolverine Team

While the other Tech coaches, most of them anyway, are accompanying the squad to Durham, N. C., for the game with Duke Saturday, Mack Tharpe, the Jackets' highly valued scout and freshman coach, will be riding the rails in another direction.

Tharpe is scheduled to leave the city tonight for Chicago, where Harry Kipke's University of Michigan team, Tech's opponent of October 20 at picturesque Ann Arbor, will play the University of Chicago, coached by Clark Shaughnessy, Saturday.

Tharpe, one of the most capable and thorough scouts in the south, may be counted on to bring back a good report on the Wolverines, who lost last Saturday to Michigan State, coached by Charley Bachman, ex-Florida coach, 18 to 0.

This loss, however, is not indicative of the Wolverines' strength this year. They have their usual powerful line and a great punter in Ragezi, who has been injured. They lost some good men from last year's line and are expected to improve as they go along.

World Series Echoes.

A somewhat eminent poet wrote a piece about the embattled Lexington farmers who fired shots that were heard around the world.

The noise and the tumult of this last World Series may not have been heard around the world, but it has caught and held the attention of the country from coast to coast. It has been the biggest boost that baseball ever has known since a burly, bulky young fellow by the name of Babe Ruth began hammering home runs and splashing the game with color 15 years ago.

There still remain the glint of shining spikes—the flash of steel—the impact of colliding bodies—the roar of the wrathful mob—the hurtling beer bottle—the smear of blood from open wounds—the color, the action and the emotional upheaval that make a gay and gaudy pageant far beyond any vital statistics or final result.

The Tigers had their share of stars, including the game and gallant Mickey Cochrane—but the Cardinal side had the edge in color with the two blasting Deans, the dynamite kids, Pepper Martin, Ducky Medwick and Bill Delancey, the first-year catcher who had all the poise and swagger of a 10-year veteran, riding the crest.

Here was a series where the two Deans came on and Pepper Martin came back—where Medwick came in and then went out—where Leo Durocher gave one of the finest exhibitions of play at short any series ever saw—where Jo-Jo White, the Red Oak antelope, wearing a Tiger skin, came near stealing the series with his famous split sid, where two flying feet scissor out as they reach the base with the explosive force of a hand grenade. It was a rough, tough, rowdy, ripping, slashing, mauling, "get-the-hell-out-of-my-way" exhibition that brought baseball back where it belongs.

You could see the spikes of Ty Cobb, hitting flesh or dirt—the swagger of Turkey Mike Donlin—the snarl of John McGraw—the poisoned barbs of Johnny Evers—all the colorful factors of the past.

Ships That Pass.

I left the two young Deans on their way to growing fame and I came back with Babe Ruth—ships that pass in the night—one outbound for gold and adventure—the other heading back to port. It was a strange coincidence that, as Babe Ruth announced his retirement from active play, two kids from the cottonwood trail should suddenly step in to take his place and catch the headlines from Pacific to Atlantic ports.

"They are the greatest that ever come along in my day," Babe Ruth said. "They are not only fine, smart pitchers but they are the type that baseball needs."

For example, in the third inning of the final game, in the midst of a winning seven-run rally, Dizzy Dean beat out a close one at first. As he crossed the bag, he turned immediately to see whether he had been given his hit—and, when the big "H" was flashed on the scoreboard, his smile was close to six inches wide.

There is nothing either boastful or offensive about either Dean—they are two friendly, happy-go-lucky country kids who happen to be baseball "naturals," not only decked out with a pair of sling-shot arms, but having, on the side, an uncanny instinct for all the finer points of the game. In addition to pitching, they can hit, field, run and cover each given assignment without a second's delay.

I asked Babe Ruth how two such kids could have all the elements that usually belong to experience—to years under fire.

"You have to be born that way," the Babe said. "No one can give it to you. Paul is 21 and Dizzy is 23 or 24 and they were as cool and as smart as any veteran I ever saw. I don't mind telling you they knocked me over. And they are the two friendliest, politest kids I ever saw in my life."

DOCTORS PLAY FINALS TODAY

Members of the Fulton County Medical Society will hold their final golf tournament of the year this afternoon on the East Lake courses. Finals in the annual tourney will be played and a "losers pay" dinner tourney will also be a part of the program.

A dinner at 6:30 o'clock will close the activities, after which trophies and prizes won during the year will be given to the winners.

Dr. L. H. Kelley plays Dr. George W. Fuller for the society golf trophy and Dr. Bill Warren Jr. and Dr. Harry Ridley will captain the teams in the dinner tourney.

Finals in all other flights in the tourney will be completed today.

Reservations for the dinner should be made at the Academy of Medicine or by calling Hemlock 6468. Plates for those who do not participate in the golf tourney will be $1 and every member of the society is invited to be present at the dinner.

THREE MATCHES AT RIVERSIDE

Promoter Frank Bettis announced that all matches for this week will be held Friday night at the Riverside wrestling arena beginning at 8:15 o'clock. There will be three main matches on the program.

Terrible Turk will wrestle Son Almand in the main event in a no-time-limit match.

In the second match, Hugh Winn will meet the Scandinavian, Alex Headlin, in a 60-minute go.

JORDAN AFTER TED RADCLIFFE

Tarzan Jordan hopes by no later than Friday night at the city auditorium to cop a large share of the city wrestling glory that he believes to be his.

Jordan feels that Ted Radcliffe has been too much in the spotlight. And that a large part of it belongs to him. He intends to do something about it when they meet.

The Jordan-Radcliffe match is one of two headliners on the card, which begins at 8:15 Friday night. Jack Ross, a rugged Greek star, and Clayton Fischer, a newcomer from San Diego, Cal., clash in the other 90-minute feature.

In the opener, Dynamite Joe Dillman, another classy Greek wrestler, takes on Honeyboy Hackney, of Jersey City, N. J.

It is to be a six-star program. With Radcliffe and Jordan likely to take the leading interest of the fans.

This is really a grudge match. Jordan has challenged Radcliffe many times in the past. And only last week did his taunts fall on appreciative ears.

Radcliffe, who has beat every wrestler matched with him at the Key arena, is continuing his winning ways at the new stand at the auditorium.

So great has been his success that he willingly agreed to meet Jordan and eliminate another rival in his path.

They have never met before and since each has perfect records, it was but logical that they would be matched sooner or later. It would have been sooner but for the fact that Radcliffe apparently wanted no part of Jordan.

Tickets are on sale at the regular low summer levels at the Five Points Soda Company or may be reserved by calling Dearborn 3932.

Virginia Champion Enters Semi-Finals

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Miss Lily Harper, of Portsmouth, young Virginia women's champion, advanced today to the semi-final round of the middle Atlantic golf championship here by defeating Miss Susan Hacker, of Washington, 6 and 5.

Mrs. David H. Clark, of Washington, and a former Virginia titleholder, who was medalist in the qualifying round Monday, defeated Mrs. J. H. Dowdall, Washington, 6 and 5.

In the second flight, Mrs. Christine Wessels, Norfolk, Va., won from Miss Ellen Kincaid, Washington, 2 up.

sprained ankle, and Charlie Harrold, sophomore end from Macon, is still out with a leg bruise. Paul Causey, the Seville (Fla.) left halfback, who scored two touchdowns against Stetson, has a foot sprain, which may keep him out Saturday. Al Minot was working at left half along with John Bond in the scrimmage today while Causey looked on.

Causey and Johnson are probably the only members of the ailing group that will get a chance to play Saturday. Captain Charley Turbeyville, left end, and Allen Shi, guard, were taking part in the strenuous skirmish, practically cured of their bum knees.

Tomorrow afternoon a long offensive workout will wind up the rough work for the week, with a light signal drill scheduled for Friday.

All Players in Good Shape Following Hard Drill in Rain.

By Jimmy Jones.

After a thorough drenching and a rather thorough scrimmage on the rainsoaked terrain of the Rose Bowl yesterday afternoon, Coach William Alexander returned to his office, shed his slicker and announced the list of Georgia Tech football players he will carry to Durham, N. C., for the game with Wallace Wade's Duke University team Saturday.

By way of reward for a lot of hard work and to be entirely sure that he will not overlook some deserving young man, Coach Alexander announced that he would carry the entire squad on the Seaboard train leaving Atlanta at 7:10 p. m., Friday.

ALL GOING.

Even Carl Shaw, the center who has been out all season with a sprained ankle, is going along. Coach Alexander posted the list by positions as follows:

Tackles—Williams, Eubanks, Dean, Lindsey, Smith, Gardner.

Ends—Gibson, Thompson, Boulware, Ponder, Stacey, Katz.

Quarterbacks — Roberts, Boyd, Moore.

Halfbacks—Ferguson, Perkerson, Street, Martin, Hays, McKinley.

Fullbacks — Phillips, Tharpe, McKay.

This constitutes a sizeable party in itself. Then when the managers, coaches, school officials and alumni followers are added, it makes quite an entourage for the invasion of the Carolinas.

The scrimmage yesterday, which was the last hard one by the way, was fully as rigorous as that of the day before and held under the trying circumstances brought on by the unfavorable weather.

TRYING DAY.

It rained all through the practice and the Tech coaching staff was rigged out in everything from Cap'n "Robby" Robinson's familiar cowl and leather jacket to Mike Chamber's sea-going outfit of seaman's hat and sou'wester.

Although the ball was slippery and the field was sloppy, the Jackets were put through a complete offensive and defensive scrimmage, in which Decatur Jack Phillips, the Tech captain and fullback, who was among those missing in the Clemson game and who was far from himself in the Vandy game, again distinguished himself.

HE "PLOUGHS," TOO.

Phillips was "ploughing" the ball through the freshman line as Dizzy Dean ploughed his celebrated fast one past the Detroit hitters. Twice Phillips cracked the line wide open for what would have been first downs in a regulation game and he was driving with the old drive which brought a silver lining through the clouds and smiles to the coaches' fialing.

If Decatur Jackson can play himself one of his old-time games at fullback Saturday it will greatly enhance Tech's chances against the big blue team of Wallace Wade.

Jerry Perkerson, the halfback, was another slippery ball carrier for the freshmen to stop, also. Jerry is beginning to improve on his gains with better blocking and he is getting it with Phillips back in there and the line improving on its charge under the indefatigable urging of the Tech coaches.

CARMACK IS TOUGH.

But for the presence of a stout little guard from Decatur High school named Eddie Carmack, the varsity backs might have been gone to town several times in the scrimmages of Tuesday and Wednesday. Carmack, a game little rooster, has been making it rather tough on the varsity with his innumerable tackles in the line.

The varsity spent considerable time on defense again yesterday. Several times young Harry Appleby, from Boys' High, a very good back who isn't eligible this year, got away on the quick opening Duke plays, as did Johnson, the elusive little freshman back from Chicago. Then the varsity secondary tightened up and began to stop them.

The tackling and blocking on both sides was rather spirited, but outside of several players having the wind knocked out of them, there was nothing that approached an injury, which, of course, made Mike Chambers very happy despite the chilling rain.

The mental attitude of the Tech squad for the Duke game is vastly improved with Phillips back in his old swashbuckling form again and do not be surprised to see an improved Tech team take the field Saturday. They made mistakes against Clemson and Vanderbilt which they will not make against Duke.

LIGHT TODAY.

The workout today will be comparatively light, but there will be about a ten-minute scrimmage of the varsity on defense. The work thus far has dealt in the main with Duke running plays and little time has been taken up with the Duke passes, which are a considerable threat, by the way, with "Corky" Cornelius, the halfback, alternating at throwing and receiving them.

PURPLES PLAY CADETS TONIGHT

their athletic battles Friday night. Tech High won last year, 37 to 26, in one of the greatest exhibitions of offensive play ever seen at Ponce de Leon park. Both teams threw defense cautions to the winds and resorted to an offensive game every time the ball changed hands.

SAME STYLE.

Practically the same style of play will be featured again Friday night as both teams are seeking to improve their running and passing attacks.

It will be the second game of the week for Decatur. The DeKalb team battled Commercial to a scoreless tie Monday night in a postponed game from last Friday.

Stronger Line Play Aids Petrel Chances

Small Squad at Full Strength for Moccasin Scrap at Chattanooga.

By Jack Troy.

You may have noticed that while Oglethorpe has a very small football squad, indeed, the supporters aren't having to use crying towels after the first three games of the season. The Petrels have won two out of three.

There have been bigger squads at Oglehorpe, and no later than last year. Fact is, one year not so long ago Oglethorpe had such very fine prospects that everybody was talking about the banner this and banner that. And what did that very fine squad do but go out and lose the first four games.

This is just by way of showing what coaching, shot with youthful fire and enthusiasm, will do when accompanied by the proper spirit of the players.

Oglethorpe's coaches can't draw on substitutes for some positions because there aren't any—substitutes, that is. But that isn't keeping the Petrels away from victory row. And Saturday at Chattanooga you can safely name your bet that Oglethorpe will be in the ball game right to the end. And not in name only.

The Moccasins of Scrappy Moore won the ball game last year, 16 to 12. On the strength of a fairly good passing attack and a susceptible Petrel defense.

It was somebody's bright idea to send in a substitute halfback just at the time that Chattanooga passes were clicking. Before the halfback had planted his two feet solidly in the turf, the Moccasins had passed right over his position to victory.

Virtually the same players of Oglethorpe will be in Saturday's game. And there is unlikely to be any repitition of that sort of thing.

Then, too, Oglethorpe is going to have the advantage of better tackle play, better line play on the whole. And more effective ground gaining maneuvers.

ROBISON DEVELOPS.

Willie Bell Robison has developed into a great defensive tackle. He has been good in every game. He comes around from the other side of the line to make tackles. The Petrel ends, Hank Freeman and Tubby Thompson, are very consistent. Jack McNeely is a particularly fine running guard.

Auburn had very little success in stopping Captain Frank Mitrick's powerful rushes into the line and it is unlikely that Chattanooga will either. The big, splendidly built fullback has come into his own this year.

Cecil Moon, Jack Puryear, Sully Sullivan, Belton Clark, Sam Leslie and Hoyt Farmer are other fine backs. Clark and Puryear are strong kickers and good passers.

FULL STRENGTH.

Oglethorpe will enter the game with full strength available. Which means that the first eleven is intact. It was thought for a time that Leslie would be out with an ankle injury but he has come around rapidly.

It has been fully a decade since Oglethorpe has beat Chattanooga and Coach John Patrick, first alumni leader in Petrel history, thinks the smallest squad in many years will pull this one out of the fire.

The Petrels worked indoors yesterday. New plays were polished and the old ones shined up. There will be a short scrimmage today.

Last year Oglethorpe authorities sent the squad over by bus on the day of the game, but this year they'll go over a day ahead of time. The difference will be discernable in the Petrels' play.

The Ladies' Commercial Duckpin league, with eight teams of feminine duckpin smashers, is getting away to a big start with the individuals out to boost averages and attempt to set new record marks.

The Gulf Refining Company and Pinson Tire Company, two new member teams of this loop, are making an excellent showing.

Miss Johnnie Carter, of the Gulf five, had an 88 average for last week, and opened in the first game last night with an even 88 to retain this average. Miss Carter was one of the highest average bowlers in the Gulf Refining Company's Mixed Doubles league last season.

Miss Louise Estes, of Pinson Tire Company, opened with a big 98 in the initial game last night and was instrumental in aiding her team to victory.

Six teams of men and four teams of ladies will get the Power Club Duckpin leagues off to a big start in their bowling season's opening at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

The schedule for the opening is Transportation vs. Accounting; Operating vs. Distribution; Lighting Department vs. Sales.

The team rosters are Campbell, Brown, Strong, Snead, Ginn, Pirkle, Goolsby, with Transportation; Ed Thornton, Gene Thornton, Langdon, McCrorey, Senkbeil, McKinney, Rudeseal, Vogel, Dyer, with Accounting; Hirleman, Hammond, Chambers, Baker, Reynolds, Edmond, with Sales; Woodall, Moore, Turner, Settle, Reynolds, Schmallmaack, Cooper, with Distribution; Hood, Smith, Maness, Davenport, Sires, Boyd, with Operating; Hanby, Davis, Long, McKinley, Peake, Peek, Richards, with Lighting.

The complete rosters or schedules of the Power Club Ladies' league is not available, but they will bowl on adjoining alleys to the men's league.

The 12-team Bell System Duckpin league, one of the city's largest duckpin circuits, will have teams named as Equipment Engineers, General Accounting, Plant Engineers, Western Electric Company, Maintenance Engineers, District Maintenance, Georgia Plant, Atlanta Walnut, General Traffic, Atlanta Main, General Plant, A. T. & T. Company scheduled in the third week of play, at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

M'DUFFIE MEETS POWELL TONIGHT

Center Hill arena will offer one of its best cards of the season tonight, the main match featuring Turk Powell and Reenie McDuffie.

Two other wrestling matches and a boxing bout are on the card. Charles Norman will meet Speedy Baker in the semi-windup match. Pat O'Brien, who recently won the lightweight belt from Smitty Anderson, will face Glover Powell in the opening mat match.

A four-round bout between Young Cranford and Harold Monroe has been added to the card as an extra feature. The Center Hill arena is located at Hutch's place on Bankhead avenue.

ATLANTA ACE, MEMPHIS STAR LEAVE LEAGUE

Crackers Lose $1,000 as Pitcher Goes at Regular Price.

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 10.—(AP)—The drafting season for the Class AA baseball leagues got under way today with Toronto, of the International league, drawing on the Southern league for two players, Pitcher Harry Kelley, of Atlanta, and Infielder Calvin Chapman, of Memphis. The announcement was made by headquarters here of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues.

Kelley, a veteran who has given a decade of service to the Southern loop, has been one of the league's most dependable pitchers. He won 23 and lost 11 for Memphis and Atlanta during the past season. Chapman, a young infielder, batted .304 for Memphis.

Kelley Slated As Red Hurler.

Directors of the Atlanta baseball club last night expressed regret and disappointment over the drafting of Harry Kelley, looked upon as the ace of the 1935 Cracker staff, by the Toronto club.

"We thought we were safe on Kelley after the majors passed him up in their draft and it is certainly hard to lose him to a double-A team at the $4,500 price," Hughes Spalding, one of the directors stated.

Atlanta officials, including Business Manager Earl Mann, who returned from the World Series with Eddie Moore, two days ago, were inclined to think that the Cincinnati Reds, which is affiliated with the Toronto club, had the latter to draft Kelley for them, to escape the $6,000 price which major league clubs must pay.

The Crackers paid Memphis $5,500 for Kelley late in the season and he won four games for Atlanta after coming here.

ALEXANDER'S BODY STARTS HOMEWARD

interior, for failure to prevent the assassination.

Motion pictures of the assassinations and the disorders at Marseille which followed have been banned from French theaters.

Members of the chamber finance committee decided to ask Doumergue that the films be preserved so that they can be examined later for evidence as to police measures to protect the king.

Continent Apprehensive.

Police seized seven films of the assassination on their arrival at Cherbourg while a package of photographs of the bodies of Alexander and Barthou lying in state as well as other views destined for London were seized at LeBourget air field near Paris.

At Rome a 21-day period of state mourning was decreed as Premier Mussolini repeated his offer for an understanding with Yugoslavia, traditionally Italy's foes.

British statesmen in London eyed the continent for possible political repercussions of the assassinations the while Londoners cheered young King Peter, pulled out of bed at his English school this morning to be told his father was dead and he was king. He left for Paris, to join his mother.

Neutral observers in Vienna believed that the change of regime in Yugoslavia will bring a decline to French influence in the Balkans and that a new Balkan federation may result.

The "back to the Balkans" movement, which would result in France, Germany and Italy withdrawing from the zone of political influence, undoubtedly will be stimulated by the recent events at Marseille and Belgrade.

Such a result also would mean dissolution of the Little Entente, for Czechoslovakia would not be included in the Balkan group, and probably would remain faithful to her ally, France.

Reports from Belgrade indicated that a wave of anti-French feeling existed, under the impetus of the pro-German groups of Yugoslavia. Though maintaining great reserve concerning possible ramifications of yesterday's assassinations, German circles in intimate personal conversations made no secret of the fact that King Alexander's death hit Germany hard.

They considered him a counter force to Premier Benito Mussolini's plans for close alliance between Austria and Italy.

A flower and flag-draped coffin on the afterdeck of the Yugoslav destroyer Dubrovnik carried the body of the ruler, shot down yesterday as he entered France to seal new compacts for the preservation of Europe's peace.

The weeping, widowed Queen Marie turned toward Paris, to join her eldest son, Peter, Yugoslavia's new king, after a dramatic farewell aboard the vessel. The 11-year-old boy left his English school early in the morning to return home.

French Escort.

A squadron of two French cruisers and six destroyers escorted the Dubrovnik as it swung its prow out into the Mediterranean. Francois Pietri, French minister of navy, was aboard the Colbert, one of the cruisers.

Huge throngs stood on the shore with bared heads—the same throngs that just 24 hours before had sent "Vive Le Roi" roaring again and again as Alexander came ashore.

A military band, in last salute to the monach, played the Yugoslav national anthem as the last rays of the setting sun glinted through the shrouds of the Dubrovnik and the hundreds of fishing boats swinging at mooring in the harbor.

Queen Marie came ashore from the Yugoslav destroyer just before it sailed, after mounting to the after deck to bend over the plain oaken coffin trimmed with silver and to kiss the dead king's face. She watched the funeral fleet put to sea before turning to prepare for the trip to Paris tonight to meet young Peter and her mother, the dowager Queen Marie of Rumania.

Ileana Joins Sister.

Also en route to Paris to join her were her sister, Princess Ileana, of Rumania, and her husband, Archduke Anton, of Hapsburg, who took off for the French capital in Anton's private plane.

Here in Marseille was Alexander's aunt, the dowager Princess Nathalie of Montenegro, sister of his mother, who motored to this city from her home in Antibes.

The toll of the assassin reached five today with the death of Madae Dubrec, one of 15 persons wounded. Physicians indicated their confidence that General Alfonse Joseph Georges, one of those most gravely hurt, would recover.

Meanwhile authorities continued efforts to identify definitely the 35-year-old fanatic, Petrus Kalemen, of Zagreb, Yugoslavia, whose modern pistol-like sub-machine gun spread consternation in Marseille's festive streets yesterday before police sabers and bullets mortally wounded him.

Two Men Sought.

Authorities at Aix-En-Provence were seeking two men said to have registered with him at a hotel there. They learned that Kalemen and one companion named Chalny had breakfast in their room yesterday morning and afterward drank considerable liquor.

Kalemen read eagerly everything pertaining to Alexander's visit, the hotel proprietor said. He said he was a brother of a companion who gave the name of Egon Kramer, said he was 24 years old and declared he was born in Fiume of Croatian nationality.

Marseille police described Kalemen as the man chosen by lot among Balkan terrorists to slay Alexander. A skull and crossbone was tattooed on his right arm, and printed under them in Croat letters was "Imro" or "Ymro"—the initials of the famed Macedonian revolutionary society.

He wore new clothes, and police recalled that terrorists, once the fateful choice has fallen on one of their number, customarily outfit him in new clothes, knowing that his mission almost certainly means death to him.

Passport Forged.

The surete national announced it had found Kalemen's passport, ostensibly issued by the Czechoslovakian consul at Zagreb and visaed by Yugoslav authorities, was forged and consequently his nationality had not been definitely established.

Police in Paris and other French cities began raiding residences of Yugoslavs and other Balkan suspects in an effort to determine Kalemen's affiliations in France as the shock of the assassinations threatened grave political consequences in France.

The government Alexander left in charge when he set out on his tragic journey watched keenly for symptoms of revolt of the Croatian regions of the land, while they made preparations for Alexander's funeral, and the nation, recalling his old World War gallantry, mourned him.

Hardly secondary in importance to Alexander's assassination was the death of Louis Barthou, France's sprig, spry, 72-year-old foreign minister, for whom the terrorist's fast-firing gun also spoke death.

Barthou's Body on Way to Paris.

His dramatic dashes about Europe to mend French political fences forever at an end, the body of the little full-bearded diplomat was en route to Paris, accompanied by former Premiers Andre Tardieu and Edouard Herriot, on a special train that left only a few minutes after the queen's train.

The state funeral for Barthou was set for Saturday, but an ordinary "40-and-8" box car was his hearse.

The queen was on the verge of collapse as she went to her compartment, the blinds of which were pulled down.

A few minutes earlier, the king's body started its homeward journey through streets silent and grief-stricken in sharp contrast to yesterday's short-lived enthusiasm.

The cortege passed by the Stock Exchange square, almost over the exact spot where Kalemen shouted "Vive Le Roi" and jumped to the running board of the king's automobile firing, and almost 24 hours to the minute later.

As the slow procession passed the eyes of the crowd instinctively turned toward the fatal place.

Physicians Attend Queen.

The queen, who already had suffered several heart attacks, was under the constant care of physicians and only the imperative need of her going to Paris kept her from taking to bed.

She had been supported by the ladies of her court several times when grief overwhelmed her.

The Dubrovnik was moored at the pier for the last ceremony while the French submarine Nautilus cruised by, saluting.

Young King of Yugoslavia Completes Trip to Paris

PARIS, Oct. 10.—(AP)—A grief-stricken little boy, mourning his royal father whose assassination yesterday made him king of Yugoslavia, came secretly to Paris tonight to meet his widowed mother.

Throngs jammed Paris' central station as authorities put on an elaborate show of precautions to cover the entry into Paris of 11-year-old Peter II, of Yugoslavia, and his grandmother, Dowager Queen Marie, of Rumania.

Dead King Alexander's eldest son expected to greet his mother, the stricken Queen Marie, as soon as she reaches Paris from Marseille where today she saw Alexander's body start on the journey homeward.

Peter was awakened today at his English school, told of his father's slaying and his own accession to the throne and left immediately for Paris with his grandmother who had been visiting Britain's royal family.

French and Yugoslav notables, including Minister of War Henri Petain and the Paris prefect of police, M. Langeron, were among the crowds that awaited the boy king's arrival at the station.

Police helped preserve the illusion that the royalists would arrive there, heavy forces holding back the curious and other squads shepherding newspapermen into the baggage room until all passengers were off the London train.

But the special car in which Peter and Marie were traveling was detached from the train at St. Denis, outside Paris, where Etienne Flandin, minister of public works, was waiting with an automobile of the government. Thus they slipped into Paris unobserved.

The 11-year-old lad was visibly moved, his eyes filled with tears, at the sudden tragedy that brought his accession to the throne.

As the channel boat pulled away from English shores Peter stood on the deck looking back toward the land where only a few weeks ago he arrived to begin his school life.

The queen, apparently sensing that his carefree school days were over and that it might be years before he saw those shores again, took him gently by the shoulder and said: "Look, my boy."

Tears rolled down Peter's cheeks as the land faded from sight.

LEHMAN GRANTS N. J. EXTRADITION

$46,681 Accounted For.

The department, coincident with its withdrawal, disclosed it had accounted for $46,681 of the $50,000 ransom bills.

While it offered no complete explanation of computing the total of bills accounted for, the department said $26,016 had been deposited by Hauptmann, individually or in the names of other persons, in banks or brokerage accounts. Other items included the $14,570 found cached in the garage of Hauptmann's Bronx home.

The extradition papers, including a warrant signed by Governor A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, were given by Governor Lehman to Arthur Corscadden, an aid, who left Albany at once to hand them over to Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine, of New York.

Although Captain John J. Lamb, of the Jersey state police—commissioned by Governor Moore to take charge of Hauptmann's removal from the Bronx jail across the Hudson—was on hand, there apparently was no chance that the prisoner would be removed tonight.

If a habeas corpus writ is granted to Fawcett tomorrow, Hauptmann would have to be brought into the jurisdiction of the New York court pending the hearing.

In the presence of newspapermen, departments aids and his secretary, Joseph Canavan, Governor Lehman affixed his signature to the extradition papers at 5:04 p. m., eastern standard time.

His hand was slow and steady. Finished, he handed the papers to Canavan, saying merely:

"I have signed them."

He made no further comment.

The New Jersey officials, who went to Albany early today from Trenton prepared for an extradition hearing, left the state capital two hours before the signing on the same train as Fawcett.

With Captain Lamb were Assistant Attorney-General Joseph Lanigan and Anthony M. Hauck, prosecutor of Hunterdon county—where the indictment charging the kidnap-killing of the Lindbergh baby up to Hauptmann was returned two days ago.

In the Jersey country town of Flemington, county seat of Hunterdon, the trial denouement of one of the most sensational crimes in history will be held if extradition is carried through.

Lanigan and Hauck are prepared to go into court at once to fight the habeas corpus proceedings.

That the New Jersey authorities were prepared for the extradition court test was seen in a declaration tonight of District Attorney Samuel Foley, of Bronx county.

Shortly after the extradition request was granted at Albany, Foley said he would go into Bronx county court tomorrow and ask for a week's postponement of the trial of the charges that Hauptmann extorted $50,000 ransom from Colonel Lindbergh when the flyer's son was already dead.

Previously, Foley said he would ask for an indefinite postponement.

His statement tonight was interpreted to mean that Jersey officials had anticipated a court test of the extradition and that, if the transfer is held up longer than a week, Foley would proceed with the extortion trial.

cathedral the coffin will be borne with pomp and splendor to the royal memorial church at Toplo, where the slain king only a few weeks ago completed his own sarcophagus beside that of his illustrious father, King Peter. A movement is already afoot here to canonize Alexander, who is regarded as a martyr to his country.

So uncertain was the political situation here tonight that careful observers refused to predict whether the old members of the cabinet would be reinstated or whether regents would replace some members in the new government.

Several sources expressed misgiving as to the members of the regency, inasmuch as they are regarded as men little known outside of their own districts.

This was taken to mean that the Yugoslav army built up by Alexander would remain all powerful even in civil affairs.

Mourning for the dead king, bitterly opposed though he was in life by some factions in Yugoslavia, was virtually nation-wide tonight as even his former opponents expressed admiration for him. His brilliant World War record was recalled by many.

There was anxiety, too, for the future is sure to contain many dangers for Yugoslavia's continued unity and that prospect cast gloom over the faces of many Yugoslavs tonight.

Those who foresaw revolution or disorders as an aftermath of Alexander's slaying proved false prophets. Except for the black borders on morning newspapers announcing his death, no stranger would suspect anything unusual had happened.

It was made known unofficially here today that existing friendly relations between France and Yugoslavia will not be altered in any way by the king's assassination, but the man on the street outspokenly condemns what he described as "the inexcusable carelessness" of French police.

Yugoslavs also tended to suspect Italian influence in the crime. The government, however, sought to deprecate any attempt to place blame abroad because of the delicate international situation.

Authorities today ridiculed an old, thread-bare story which had been popping up abroad for the past 10 years, that Prince George, Alexander's eccentric elder brother, had escaped from his confinement near Nish.

A miracle alone could let the deposed wayward prince regain his liberty, they said, because the house in which he has been confined by the king since 1925 for mental abberations is carefully guarded by soldiers with machine guns, by stone walls, barbed wire and electric flood lights.

It was not believed likely that the new regency would reverse the late king's judgment in keeping George in confinement.

The dead king's seeming premonition of death was seen in the fact that one of his last acts before leaving Belgrade was to supervise completion of his marble sarcophagus in the magnificent family mausoleum at Popolo, the home town of the Karageorgevitch family.

A hill 40 miles south of Belgrade is the site of the royal memorial tomb, the most colorful in all Europe, in which are interred all members of the late sovereign's family, including the original Karageorgevitch or Black George, foe of the Turks and founder of the dynasty.

The cabinet left in charge when Alexander departed for France notified Yugoslavia today that Peter is its new king, who will rule under a regency, and at the same time took steps to prevent an uprising in the Croat region as hundreds of Croats fled over the Austrian border fearing reprisals.

Mobilization of troops rumored in foreign countries was denied by the government but it admitted that greatest precautions were being taken in Croatia.

LABOR LAUNCHES ASSAULT ON NRA

Bargaining Clause Used Against Workers, Convention Is Told.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—(AP)—A three-pointed attack on the NRA as it applies to workers was launched before the American Federation of Labor convention here today.

Robert J. Watt, a Massachusetts delegate, charged the collective bargaining clause of the recovery act had been "used against the workers themselves." He asserted employers, including Henry Ford, had been permitted to interpret the act as they pleased.

Matthew Woll, of New York, a federation vice president, said the recovery act virtually required employers to organize among themselves but said there was no comparable requirement that labor join in a majority movement for its own benefit.

Labor, said Woll, must obtain the same right to organize as capital "or labor will be enslaved under the NRA instead of mad free."

Labor Board Criticized.

Decisions of the national labor relations board were criticized by Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union.

"If we are to have a vital application of the NRA to the right of organized labor unions to bargain with employers," said Howard, "the federation will have to get a proper interpretation of the recovery act."

After hearing the criticisms, the convention adopted its executive council's report on unemployment, which placed the total number of unemployed at about 10,000,000.

Before the outbreak of NRA criticism, the convention approved the council's recommendations favoring changes in the recovery setup to strengthen the hand of labor.

An incipient clash over a remark on the floor yesterday that "rubbish" had come into certain labor organizations during the last year was sidetracked by the rise of NRA criticism.

During a jurisdictional argument yesterday between the brewery workers and the International Teamsters' Union, Daniel J. Tobin, of Indianapolis, president of the latter organization, said:

"Our organization is made up of staunch unionists. We have none of the rubbish that has come into other organizations during the last year."

Gorman Scores Remarks.

Francis J. Gorman, a leader of the recent textile strike, asked the convention to expunge from its record the Tobin remark.

Tobin was not present at the time and the federation president, William Green, asked Gorman not to press his case until the teamster executive could reach the floor.

Green then addressed the convention, saying:

"Every one of these workers from mass production industries is welcome to the ranks of the federation.

"They are splendid men and women. I have met them from the textile, rubber, automotive and other mass industries.

"We can help them and we desire to do so. We will secure, by force, if necessary, through organization, the payment of a decent wage so that they can live in a manner commensurate with American ideals."

The executive council's report brought out recommendations for a long-term viewpoint in rebuilding the recovery administration, more careful attention to re-employment, higher wages and enforcement.

Its recommendations were:

"1. The NRA should be reorganized from the point of view of a longer period than to June 16, 1935. It becomes increasingly evident that some action will be necessary for perhaps a long time to come. Policies therefore should be considered from a long time rather than from a purely emergency point of view.

"2. Codes should be reopened for such changes as will bring about the original purpose of the act—re-employment and increased wages.

"3. Codes should be reopened upon petition by labor as well as upon the initiative of industry or the administration.

"4. Compliance machinery should be divorced more completely from the NRA administration. An independent compliance board, answerable directly to the president, would be better able to assure unbiased and prompt action.

"5. Every resource of the government should be used for the enforcement of the code provisions and the decisions of the labor relations board.

"6. Collective bargaining between bona fide trade unions and employers must be assured through enforcement of section 7-A and the destruction of company unions.

"7. Adequate information, reporting and planning agencies must be created by the government.

"8. Labor must be made an active partner in the supposed partnership of government, industry and labor.

"9. Service industries should be included under codes. The distinction between intrastate and interstate commerce is not a legitimate basis for the extension of protection to some workers and the denial of protection to others.

"10. The entire agricultural labor population has so far been left without protection in regard to wages, hours, organization, or in dealing with employers. Some extension of the national recovery act to the field of agricultural labor should be made, either through a broadening of the act now in existence, or a supplementary act pertaining to agricultural labor."

All Saint's Church Is Setting For Stamps-Collins Wedding Rites

Before a representative assemblage of relatives and friends, Miss Hazel Stamps became the bride of Charles D. Collins at a ceremony taking place at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at All Saints' Episcopal church on West Peachtree. Rev. J. Mitchell Taylor, of Fort Pierce, Fla., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony. Joseph Ragan, church organist, was in charge of the musical program, playing the wedding march from "Lohengrin" as the processional, Mendelssohn's march as the recessional, and "Liebestraum," by Liszt, during the ceremony.

Ascension lilies were placed in two vases on the altar, which was draped with ropes of asparagus fern. At either side of the altar palms were grouped forming a background for the seven-branched candelabra in which burned lighted tapers. Cybodium ferns were banked in the choir stalls, and at the foot of the steps leading into the chancel, palms and ferns were banked, interspersed with seven-branched candelabra. Bows of white satin ribbon marked the pews occupied by members of the families.

Wedding Party.

Miss Carolyn Stamps, niece of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and Mrs. G. A. Taylor, of Rome, served as matron of honor, while the bridesmaids included Misses Mamie Raine, Phoebe Rhett, Virginia Bellamy, of Wilmington, N. C.; Mrs. Jack Van Lindley, of Greensboro, N. C., and Miss Agnes Cleveland, of Spartanburg, S. C. The bride's attendants were gowned exactly alike in models of peacock blue taffeta, fashioned with standing Queen Anne collars and short petal-like sleeves. The gowns were moulded to the figures to below the hipline, where they flared to add graceful fullness to the skirts. A large bow was tied at the center back of each gown at the waistline, the ends falling over the brief train. Little Miss Stamps wore a matching taffeta beret and matching slippers, while the other attendants wore brown taffeta berets and brown slippers. The attendants carried bouquets of golden souvenir roses and talisman roses combined with peach, orange and coral-tinted gerbera arranged in loose, artistic bouquets and tied with bronze satin ribbon.

Bride's Blond Loveliness.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, W. O. Stamps Jr., was a picture of blond loveliness in her wedding gown of ivory-tinted satin fitted closely to her slender figure, and flaring slightly just above the hemline. The neckline was high and the sleeves, long and tight, finished with points over the wrists. The train was built into a short jacquette, which reached waist length, and exquisite lace was inserted at the shoulders in the back, widening as it extended into the train at the back. She wore a beautiful veil of rare Brussels lace posed over many folds of filmy tulle and fastened to a fitted cap of the lace. The face veil was attached to the cap in the front and the lace and tulle in the back extended the length of the long satin train. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies showered with valley lilies.

Mrs. W. O. Stamps Sr., mother of the bride, wore a gown of black velvet made with new flowing sleeves, and roman-striped sash marking the waistline. Her imported velour hat was of black and trimmed with two elongated brilliant ornaments. She wore a spray of deep purple orchids. Mrs. J. Harry Collins Sr., of Miami, Fla., mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in marron brown velvet trimmed with gold, and her hat was of brown with gold trim. Her shoulder bouquet was of bronze orchids.

Mrs. J. Harry Collins Jr. was becomingly gowned in black velvet with matching velvet hat and a shoulder cluster of purple-throated orchids. Mrs. W. O. Stamps Jr. wore a gown of black velvet made with cream-tinted lace yoke and worn with a black velour hat and a spray of lavender orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. Collins and his bride left for New Orleans, La., where they will board the S. S. Santa Marta on Saturday for a Caribbean cruise. For traveling, Mrs. Collins donned a brown woolen suit trimmed with luxurious blue wolf fur. The coat reached to finger-tip length and she wore an eggshell satin blouse. Her brown felt hat was made in modified tricorne shape and her other accessories were in brown. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Collins will reside in the Della Manta apartments on Piedmont avenue.

National Council Of Jewish Juniors.

Of great interest is the announcement that an Atlanta section of the National Council of Jewish Juniors is to be sponsored by the Atlanta Council of Jewish Women. Mrs. Alvin Ferst, chairman in charge of the organization of the junior council, announces that the first meeting of the group will be held Friday, October 12, at 4 o'clock at the Standard Club. Membership is open to girls from 15 to 21.

Junior sections in a large number of cities throughout the country have been active for a number of years. The young girls in these groups engage in various forms of social service and philanthropic work. A close link exists between the various sections, since a feature of the work of each is the support of two national projects.

Miss Rhoda Kaufman, director of the Family Welfare Society, and outstanding in the field of social work, will speak on Friday. Anyone wishing further details is asked to call Mrs. Ferst at Dearborn 2092-J.

Visitor Honored.

Mrs. Edward Broadnax Lewis, of Virginia, was central figure on Wednesday evening when Dr. and Mrs. Grady Poole entertained at a bridge-supper at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue. The entertainment is one of a series complimenting Mrs. Lewis, who is visiting Mrs. Granger Hansell.

Petal pink dahlias combined with blue ageratum was effectively arranged in the reception rooms. Invited to meet the honor guest were 24 members of the social set.

Mrs. Pennington is the daughter of Mrs. Ethel Smith and George Frederick Guest, pioneer residents of Wilkes county.

Mr. and Mrs. Pennington left for a motor trip through North Carolina, after which they will be at home in Atlanta.

Californian Visits Here

Attractive Miss Jacquita Leggat, of Pasadena, Cal., who is being feted by members of Atlanta's younger contingent as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun McDougall at their home on Andrews drive. Miss Leggat, who accompanied her mother, Mrs. John Leggat, and her brother, Jack Leggat, to Atlanta, spent the past year in Europe studying art. Blonde and lovely, Miss Leggat is a decided addition to any gathering. Staff photograph by George Cornett.

Michigan Visitor Is Honor Guest..

Mrs. Richard Joy, of Gross Pointe, Mich., who is spending several days here at the Biltmore hotel is being honored at a number of informal parties by a group of Atlantans who were fellow passengers aboard the S. S. Statendam last spring on a cruise of the Mediterranean. Sharing honors with Mrs. Joy at a luncheon given Tuesday by Mrs. Noel Park at the Capital City Club was Mrs. Winship Nunnally, whose marriage was an event of recent interest. Covers were placed for a group of 10 close friends.

Mrs. Fannie Durand Williams entertained at an informal dinner party at the Georgian Terrace hotel on Sunday evening in compliment to Mrs. Joy.

On Sunday afternoon Miss Ellen Wolff and Frank Rowsey entertained at a tea in honor of Mrs. Joy.

This popular visitor was central figure at the informal tea at which Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Daley entertained on Saturday at their home on Powers' Ferry road.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGonigal were hosts at a dinner at their home on Andrews drive on Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Joy.

On Tuesday afternoon Daniel Whitehead Hicky was host at an aperitif party at the Piedmont Driving Club in honor of Mrs. Joy.

Miss Nancy Sweet Weds Mr. Cheves.

The marriage of Miss Nancy Sweet and Arthur Cheves was solemnized quietly last Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Druid Hills Baptist church. Dr. Louie Newton performed the ceremony.

Isaac Cheves was best man. He entered with Mrs. Lloyd Nelson Smith who was the bride's only attendant. She wore a brown crepe dress with gold ornaments. Brown accessories completed her costume.

The bride wore for this occasion a lovely skipper blue boucle suit. Dark blue accessories completed her attractive costume. The only ornament worn by the bride was a handsome broach worn by the bride's of her family for the past three generations. She wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

Mr. Cheves and his bride left early in the evening for New Orleans. On their return they will be at home on Eighth street.

Among out-of-town guests present were Mrs. S. S. Cheves, Mrs. E. J. Wilson, Palmer Cheves, of Montezuma; Miss Mildred Chambliss, of Americus; Rodney Cheves, of Macon, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Cheves, of Gainesville; Marshall Cheves, of Rome; Mrs. B. F. Sutton, of Macon; Mrs. B. F. Sweet, of Louisville, Ky.

Camp Fire Council To Meet on Monday.

The Atlanta Council of Camp Fire Girls meets Monday, October 15, at 6:30 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's Club, with Mrs. J. C. Malone, president, presiding. The following chairmen will give reports of activities of their committees since the last meeting of the council on May 23: Mrs. Willis Westmoreland, extension committee; Dr. Harvey W. Cox, finance committee; Mrs. H. W. Morrow, education committee; M. E. Coleman, camp activities; Mrs. J. Bonar White, health committee; Mrs. Fred Hodgson, social committee, and Mrs. H. C. Stakeley, committee of awards.

A demonstration of Camp Fire activities will be given by the Camp Fire Girls of Decatur, under the direction of Mrs. Arthur Gresham. Mrs. Tom Brooke, past president of the local organization and member of the national board of directors of Camp Fire Girls, will report on her attendance at the recent meeting of the national board held in New York city. Miss Eva Hancock, local executive secretary, will present plans for the fall "membership regatta," the harvest festival and Christmas activities to be carried out in group work.

A board of sponsors has recently been organized in Toccoa, and this group has been invited to attend the Atlanta council meeting and to carry back with them inspiration for further work at home. Ben Cheek is president of the board of sponsors and will bring the report of the Toccoa group.

Wesleyan Alumnae.

Group 4 of the Atlanta Wesleyan alumnae meets Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. T. A. Stephenson in College Park. The program will be the first of a series under the general subject, "Plays, Playwrights and Players." The first paper, "History of American Drama," will be given by Mrs. Horace Garner. The subjects to be studied for the next seven months are: "Folk Plays," "The Little Theater," "Eugene O'Neill," "The New Stage Craft," "Theatrical Dynasties," "Motion Picture Drama" and "The Theater of Tomorrow."

Miss Barrett Feted At Prenuptial Parties

Miss Mary Louise Barrett and her fiance, Fred W. Stover, are being honored at numerous social affairs preceding their wedding which takes place Saturday. Mrs. James J. Foy and Miss Jane Boyd were hostesses at a buffet supper and bridge party last evening honoring this couple. Mrs. A. M. Boyd Jr., presided at the coffee table, and Mrs. A. M. Boyd Sr. assisted in entertaining the guests who included 12 friends of the honor guests. A silver bowl holding white roses and flanked by silver candlesticks holding white tapers adorned the lace-covered central table.

A number of other social affairs have already been given in compliment to this couple. On Monday evening Miss Sarah Adams, of Norcross, and Miss Kathleen Rush Peebles entertained at a shower at the home of the former. Others who have entertained include Miss Louise Dorsey, of College Park; Mrs. Guy H. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Roberts.

Wesleyan Alumnae Install Officers.

Group No. 1 of the Atlanta Wesleyan Alumnae Club met Monday at the Henry Grady hotel with Mrs. Harvey Jordan hostess. This group is composed of the Atlanta and Decatur alumnae of Wesleyan College prior to 1900, and the principal business of the afternoon was the installation of Mrs. C. C. Jarrell, newly elected chairman of the group, and the election of the following officers and chairmen: Mrs. C. C. Jarrell, chairman; Miss Julia Sparks, secretary; Mrs. C. E. Brewer, treasurer; Mrs. Harvey Jordan, chairman of programs; Miss Kate Neal and Miss Lura Simmons, telephone chairmen; Mrs. Robert Stephens, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Edward G. Warner, president of the Atlanta Alumnae Club, spoke of the work of the club and announced a merchants and manufacturers luncheon on Tuesday, October 23, at 12:30 o'clock in the dining hall of the First Methodist church. The price of the luncheon will be 35 cents and the proceeds will go toward the Wesleyan scholarship fund in the Atlanta club. The public is invited and tickets will be sold in the groups and by the alumnae generally.

Mrs. A. Worth Hobby, second vice president in charge of groups, outlined the work of the groups and explained in detail the points for which credit will be given and the permanent percentage basis which will be used in awarding the silver loving cup that is given at the annual meeting each May to the group doing the best work for the year.

It was voted to have monthly meetings of the groups on the second Friday in each month at 3 o'clock, with interesting programs arranged by the program committee. The next meeting will be held on Friday, November 9, at the residence of the chairman, Mrs. C. C. Jarrell, 1079 Oxford road.

Holy Communion.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of Our Savior will meet at the church, corner North Highland and Los Angeles avenues, Thursday morning, October 11, at 10:30 o'clock for a celebration of the Holy Communion. Canon W. S. Turner, the rector, will celebrate.

This service will take place at the same time the united thank offering of the Woman's Auxiliary of the entire United States is being presented at the meeting of the general convention in Atlantic City. This offering is the gift of grateful women for the furtherance of the work of missionaries both at home and abroad. It is used to build and maintain hospitals, schools, to meet salaries, buy equipment and for any other need of the mission field.

T. E. L. Class.

The T. E. L. class of South Side Baptist church met recently at the home of Mrs. J. W. Slade.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. J. W. Harper, teacher; Mrs. Cornine Hucks, president; Mrs. J. A. Granade, first vice president; Mrs. Sam Aaron, second vice president; Mrs. T. W. Denson, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles Cater, treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Slade, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. A. Chandler and Mrs. R. Cater, group captains.

Sefton-Stevenson Wedding Plans Are Announced

Miss Frances Sefton and John Brooke Stevenson have selected Friday, October 12, as the date of their wedding which will be solemnized at the Centrol Congregational church, at the corner of Ponce de Leon and Piedmont at 6 o'clock in the evening. Dr. Witherspoon Dodge will perform the marriage service in the presence of relatives, friends and guests from a distance.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her brother, Frank Noble Sefton, and her sister, Miss Aline Sefton, will be her maid of honor and only attendant. Charles Townley will act as the best man for Mr. Stevenson. The ushers will include Robert B. Martin, Carl Bernhardt, Jack Carrol and Malvin Stokes, Joseph Ragan, organist, will render a program of nuptial music. Mrs. Frank Stokes will sing "I Love You Truly," prior to the ceremony.

Following the wedding Misses Emma and Mabel Bernhardt will entertain at a buffet supper at their home on Moreland avenue, honoring the members of the bridal party. Miss Laura Russell and Mrs. Cecil T. Mason will assist in entertaining.

The bride and bridegroom will leave for a wedding trip, the destination of which will not be revealed. Upon their return they will make their home on Myrtle street, where they will be attractive additions to the ranks of the younger married set.

Mrs. Robert Beecher Martin entertained on Wednesday evening at a buffet supper at their home on Huntington road, complimenting Miss Sefton and Mr. Stevenson. Pink roses and ageratum were effectively arranged in the dining room and white tapers in silver candlesticks encircled the floral decoration. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Frank Sefton, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Ann M. Martin, sister of the hosts.

Randolph-Macon Club.

The Randolph-Macon Alumnae Club meets Saturday, October 13, at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Alan Ramsey, 744 Sherwood road, N. E. An interesting program is planned, the feature to be a talk on Russia by Miss Mildred Converse. Miss Converse recently returned from an extensive trip through Europe and Russia. Mrs. Ramsey and Miss Elizabeth Colbert will act as hostesses.

Miss Mary Ann Carr Will Make Formal Bow at Reception Nov. 19

Miss Mary Ann Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell Sr., and one of the most feted members of the debutante set, will make her formal bow to Atlanta society at the reception to be given Monday afternoon, November 19, by her mother and by her sister, Mrs. Clark Howell Jr., at Pine Hill, the home of the former on West Wesley road.

Guests for this affair will include a group of prominent Atlanta matrons, to whom the honor guest will be introduced by her mother and sister. Miss Carr will be presented to members of the younger set at the dance on December 26, at which she will share honors with Miss Frances Weinman. The dance will be given at the Piedmont Driving Club by Mr. and Mrs. Howell and by Mr. and Mrs. William J. Weinman.

Miss Carr will be central figure at the tea to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie Sadler and Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Barnett on Saturday afternoon, November 17, following the Georgia Tech-Alabama football game. Numerous other parties will be given during the season to compliment this popular debutante.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Weinman, of Cartersville, will entertain at the Piedmont Driving Club dinner-dance in November, the exact date to be announced later, in honor of their sister, Miss Weinman, and also for Miss Carr.

Another popular debutante for whom many social courtesies are being arranged is Miss Frances North, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Frank G. North. Mrs. William J. Davis has planned a tea in her honor for Friday, October 26.

Mrs. John Glenn will entertain at a bridge party November 20 at her home in Ansley Park in honor of a group of debutantes, including Misses Lamar Peschau, Louisa Robert, Octavia Riley and Louise MacIntyre.

Miss Elzie Grace Brown, who is attending Hollins College and will join the club during the Christmas holidays, will be presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown, at a tea-dance to be given December 27 at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Lithonia Woman's Club Holds Carnival.

LITHONIA, Ga., Oct. 10.—Friday, Oct. 12.—The main street of the city will be turned into a midway under the direction of the Lithonia Woman's Club, and the annual street fair and carnival will be held. Mrs. I. M. Starr, president of the garden club, and chairman of the flower show, announces the opening at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the clubhouse. Mrs. Judson Philips has scheduled the opening of the needlework and canning exhibit at the same hour.

Mrs. Thurmond Nash, in charge of the doll and pet parade, reports many entries, and has set the time for 4:30 o'clock, when the children will march down the main street past the judge's stand.

Toby Grant, of Scottdale, will be in Lithonia from 9:30 o'clock till night. The proceeds from her readings will go into club's treasury. Mrs. D. P. Philips is in charge.

Other side shows and booths open at 6:30 o'clock, will occupy both sides of the street, all operated by clubwomen assisted by members of the Junior Woman's Club. Mrs. Charles L. Davidson, president, extends an invitation to other clubs. Mrs. C. J. Tucker is past president and general chairman of the fair and carnival.

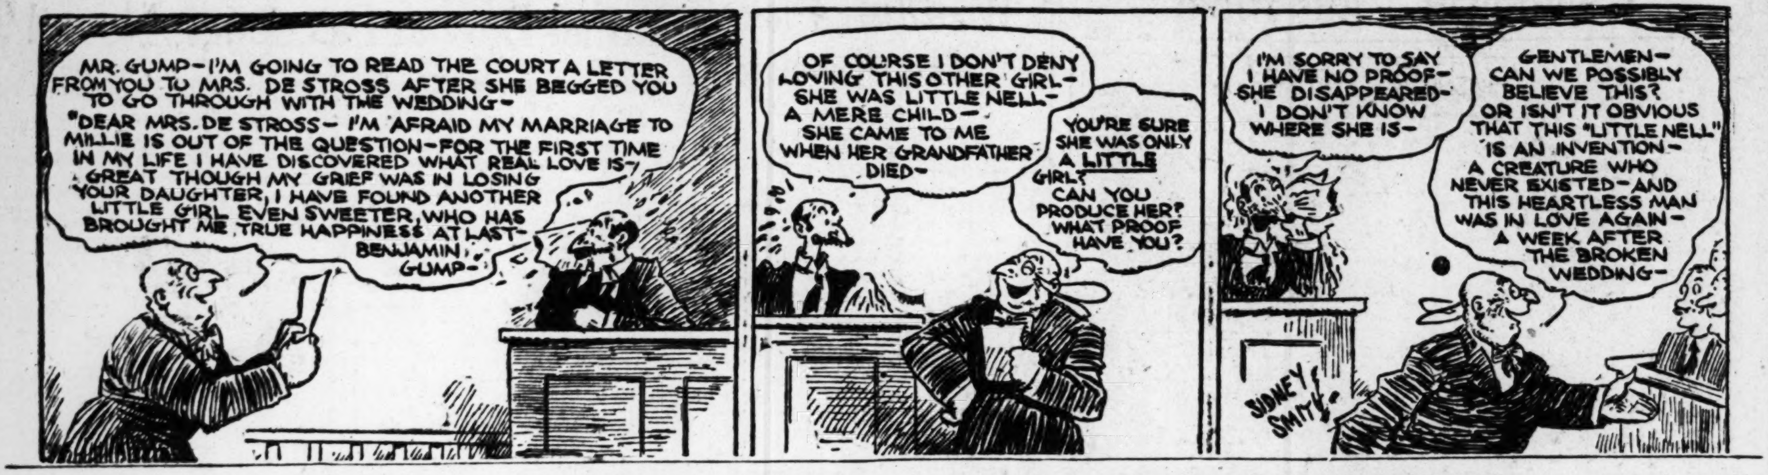
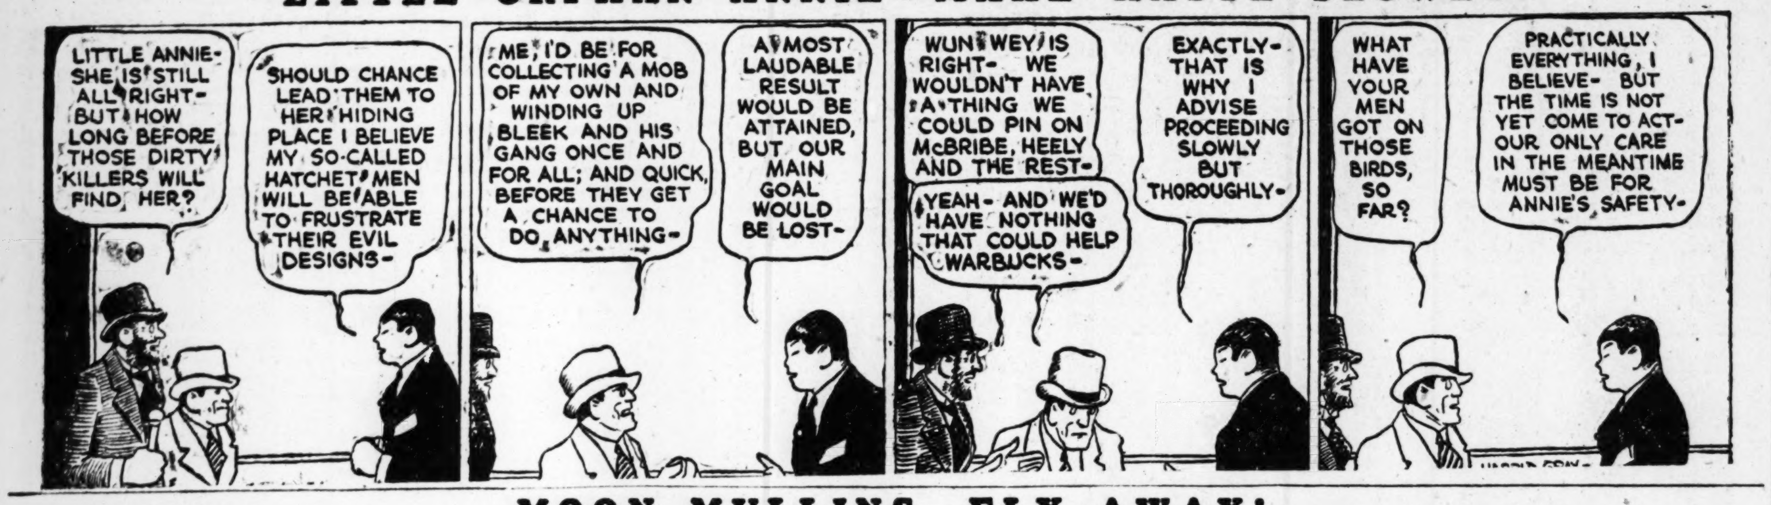
THE GUMPS—SPARE MY BLUSHES



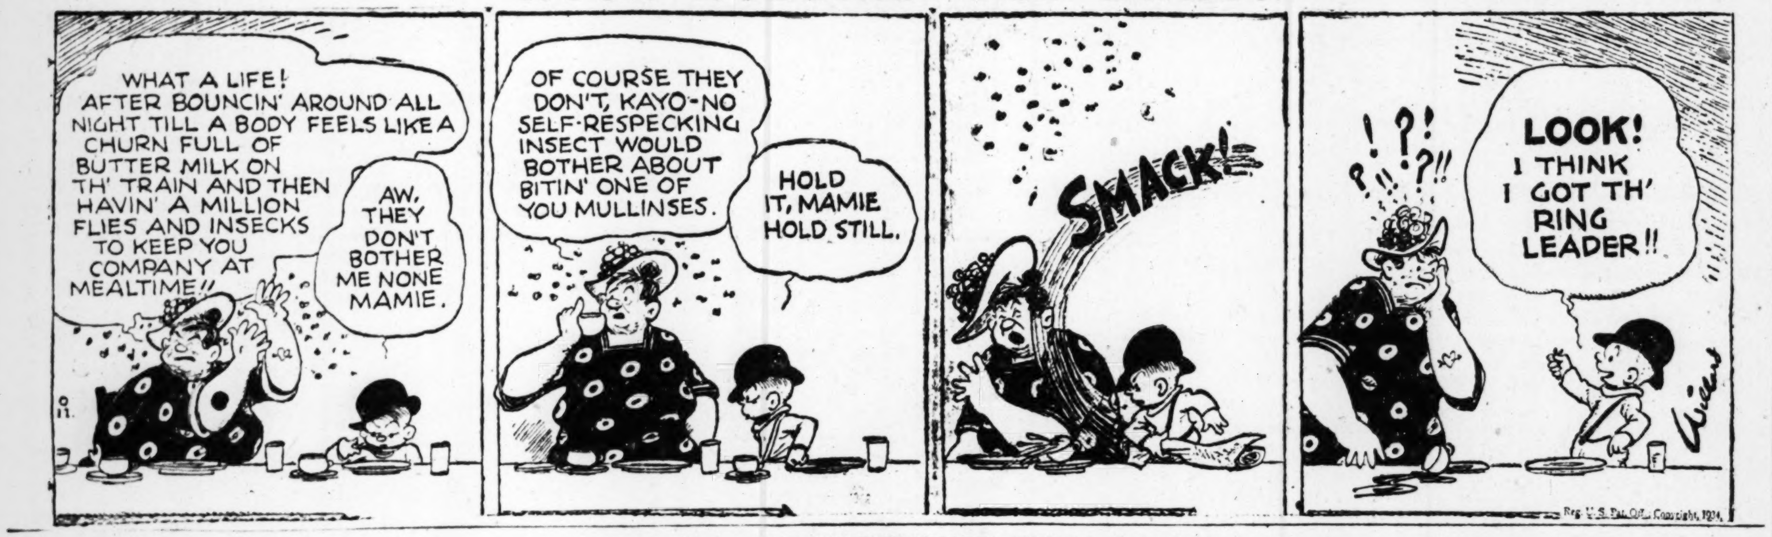
MR. GUMP—I'M GOING TO READ THE COURT A LETTER FROM YOU TO MRS. DE STROSS AFTER SHE BEGGED YOU TO GO THROUGH WITH THE WEDDING—
"DEAR MRS. DE STROSS— I'M AFRAID MY MARRIAGE TO MILLIE IS OUT OF THE QUESTION—FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MY LIFE I HAVE DISCOVERED WHAT REAL LOVE IS— GREAT THOUGH MY GRIEF WAS IN LOSING YOUR DAUGHTER, I HAVE FOUND ANOTHER LITTLE GIRL EVEN SWEETER, WHO HAS BROUGHT ME TRUE HAPPINESS AT LAST— BENJAMIN GUMP—
OF COURSE I DON'T DENY LOVING THIS OTHER GIRL— SHE WAS LITTLE NELL— A MERE CHILD— SHE CAME TO ME WHEN HER GRANDFATHER DIED—
YOU'RE SURE SHE WAS ONLY A LITTLE GIRL? CAN YOU PRODUCE HER? WHAT PROOF HAVE YOU?
I'M SORRY TO SAY I HAVE NO PROOF— SHE DISAPPEARED— I DON'T KNOW WHERE SHE IS—
GENTLEMEN— CAN WE POSSIBLY BELIEVE THIS? OR ISN'T IT OBVIOUS THAT THIS "LITTLE NELL" IS AN INVENTION— A CREATURE WHO NEVER EXISTED—AND THIS HEARTLESS MAN WAS IN LOVE AGAIN— A WEEK AFTER THE BROKEN WEDDING—
SIDNEY SMITH

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—MAKE HASTE SLOWLY



LITTLE ANNIE— SHE IS STILL ALL RIGHT— BUT HOW LONG BEFORE THOSE DIRTY KILLERS WILL FIND HER?
SHOULD CHANCE LEAD THEM TO HER HIDING PLACE I BELIEVE MY SO-CALLED HATCHET MEN WILL BE ABLE TO FRUSTRATE THEIR EVIL DESIGNS—
ME, I'D BE FOR COLLECTING A MOB OF MY OWN AND WINDING UP BLEEK AND HIS GANG ONCE AND FOR ALL; AND QUICK, BEFORE THEY GET A CHANCE TO DO ANYTHING—
A MOST LAUDABLE RESULT WOULD BE ATTAINED, BUT OUR MAIN GOAL WOULD BE LOST—
WUN WEY IS RIGHT— WE WOULDN'T HAVE A THING WE COULD PIN ON McBRIBE, HEELY AND THE REST—
YEAH— AND WE'D HAVE NOTHING THAT COULD HELP WARBUCKS—
EXACTLY— THAT IS WHY I ADVISE PROCEEDING SLOWLY BUT THOROUGHLY—
WHAT HAVE YOUR MEN GOT ON THOSE BIRDS, SO FAR?
PRACTICALLY EVERYTHING, I BELIEVE— BUT THE TIME IS NOT YET COME TO ACT— OUR ONLY CARE IN THE MEANTIME MUST BE FOR ANNIE'S SAFETY—

MOON MULLINS—FLY AWAY!



WHAT A LIFE! AFTER BOUNCIN' AROUND ALL NIGHT TILL A BODY FEELS LIKE A CHURN FULL OF BUTTER MILK ON TH' TRAIN AND THEN HAVIN' A MILLION FLIES AND INSECKS TO KEEP YOU COMPANY AT MEALTIME!
AW, THEY DON'T BOTHER ME NONE MAMIE.
OF COURSE THEY DON'T, KAYO—NO SELF-RESPECKING INSECT WOULD BOTHER ABOUT BITIN' ONE OF YOU MULLINSES.
HOLD IT, MAMIE HOLD STILL.

THE LAUGHING GIRL MYSTERY

By Viola Paradise

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

As Sheridan Dinard is hurrying up the stairs to the New York studio apartment of his fiancee, Adelaide Sayre, a girlish burst of laughter is cut off short in the ground-floor apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Coggs, who own the building. While they are at their country place a beautiful girl is found dead from a stab wound in their rooms. When Sheridan hears the laughter he remarks to Oswald, the colored superintendent, that the girl is a blond with lavender eyes and a short upper lip. This is an exact description but before the discovery of the murder and in the presence of Adelaide and Lester Wilcox, but Sheridan laughingly says it is easy for an archaeologist to reconstruct a girl from her laugh. Both Sheridan and Wilcox are connected with the private museum of Dr. Coe, an Egyptologist. Police Inspector Higgins demands that Dinard tell who the girl is. After the murder a beggar holds Dinard up, knocks him out, and shoots, but misses him. An Egyptian statuette, taken from Dinard's desk, had been used as a door knocker to hide a newly-bored peep-hole in the Coggses' hall door. A Florentine dagger is missed from the museum and Marlin, the English caretaker, disappears. Dr. Coe, supposed to be at his country place, appears at the museum in a daze. Adelaide destroys a cerise baggage check which appears mysteriously on her desk. Assistant District Attorney Alby learns that a trunk with such a check was delivered to a man registered at the Hotel Astrakan as Dennis Swift, and that he took a packet of letters from it before disappearing. Alby questions Wilcox. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XII.

Adelaide shook her head. "I know I shouldn't have done it," she said. "I tore it up in tiny pieces and threw it down the toilet."

"But, darling? Why, that might have been the one real clue! We'll have to tell Alby—"

"Oh, no, Sherry, please don't! It will get me into trouble—both of us. Because they'll ask why, and I can't tell them."

"You can tell me."

She shook her head. "Please don't be cross, Sherry. My nerves are all on edge."

"I'm not cross, dear. But it's so unlike you—and it may make trouble."

"Not if you don't say anything about it. Why, just think—they might have found it!"

"But they should have found it!"

She looked away and swallowed, before replying, "Right on my desk, Sherry?"

Sherry laid down the fork and leaned back. "Good heavens!" he exclaimed. "You don't think!"

"No, I don't! I won't let myself think. I'm sure you have some good reason for keeping anything from me that you like. I don't doubt you for a minute, Sherry, not a minute."

"Yet, because I went upstairs to get your letter from that desk—"

"I didn't say it—"

"You thought it."

"I don't think it now, Sherry. It was just a new attack of jealousy. I remembered the way you looked at that girl."

And suddenly I felt that it was her baggage check. And then my feelings got all mixed up. They had been questioning me about that scratch in the linen cabinet. And whether you had been in the apartment alone at any time yesterday. And I said only for a moment when you'd gone up to get my letter—and suddenly it occurred to me, Sherry, that some one must be trying to 'frame' you—that's the right word, isn't it? Somebody who knew you knew something about that girl—"

"But I don't!"

Adelaide ignored him. Her voice, though still very low, was excited. "And if my life depended on it, I couldn't tell if it was jealousy, or if it was an instinct to protect you which made me destroy that check!"

He made no answer. He just looked at her, the muscles of his face taut.

"Sherry, dear!" suddenly her voice was soft and appealing. "Please don't look at me like that."

"You can hardly expect perfect facial control," he said bitterly, "when the person dearest to you in the whole world won't believe your honest word."

"But I do!"

He laughed shortly. "Just what did the check look like?"

"It was pink, or rather cerise, on coarse-grained cardboard. Otherwise it was like any other baggage check."

"I don't suppose in your moment of protectiveness and jealousy you thought to keep track of the number?"

"I can't bear it when you talk to me like this, Sherry! But I do remember the number. As if it were etched on my eyeballs. If you want to know, the number was 8 dash 14 dash 663."

Without another word they left the restaurant and got a taxi headed downtown.

"I got their number," said its driver. "We'll pick 'em up at the next stop light."

At the district attorney's office Joe Harrod was waiting for Alby. "Caswell replaced me at the museum right after you phoned," he reported. "I came back here and got busy on your instructions. Stevens is trailing Dinard. I cabled Scotland Yard for information about Marlin. And look at that," he added, indicating a sheaf of papers in a desk tray, weighted down with the jewelled Florentine dagger.

"Quick work at the lab," said Alby, but postponed an examination of the tray's contents. "Any new developments at the museum?"

"No. Dr. Coe fell into a heavy sleep. They'll call us the minute he wakes. Higgins' men are on the job there. Higgins is for arresting the whole museum force. I ordered you some lunch." Harrod explained as a man named Smith appeared with a tray of sandwiches and a pot of coffee.

"No time for sandwiches," said Alby. "But I'll drink this as I dictate. Ready?"

He sank wearily into his desk chair, for he had had neither food nor sleep since he had been called on this case last night. The coffee, however, picked him up, and he rattled off this morning's findings with speed, conciseness and yet a wealth of detail. A few conversations he summarized, but most he gave verbatim, for his mind was as accurate as a dictaphone.

"Now for these," he said, and pulled the desk tray to him. "Too soon for much luck, I suppose, especially on a Sunday."

"Three swell pieces of luck." Harrod's eyes gleamed and Alby sat forward in his chair.

"First the report on this baby." Harrod picked up the dagger. "It's the one that did the job. And what a clue-catcher! It was washed with a well-known brand of colored soap, some of which obligingly snuggled in with as much of the blood as didn't wash off, right between the rubies and emeralds. So did some particles of wool. And paper. It was evidently wiped dry on one of those cleansing tissues."

"Who uses that kind of soap?"

"It's in the museum washroom. Also in Dinard's bathroom."

Alby gave a noncommittal grunt and poured another cup of coffee. "What else?"

"Plenty. The girl's English."

Alby set the cup down. "You located the florist! Good work."

"I hitched four men to telephones. We took Dinard's tip and called only the best. Got the right one within half an hour. The clerk at Abalado's remembered an English lady, because they had a long conversation. He's at the morgue now, identifying her. He'll be here soon. Said she said she'd just arrived from England.

"Grand. That explains her silk-and-wool underwear. Check up on ships—"

"It's being done. The Berengaria, the Majestic and the Paris all docked yesterday. Police headquarters are trying to locate ships' officers and stewardesses, and check up her description with the passenger lists. It may take a day or two, though. But if it's the same girl, we'll be able to tell our Mr. Dinard who the lavender eyes and short upper lip belonged to, which he doesn't know maybe."

"What else?"

"What about this!" Harrod almost purred as he handed Alby some typed sheets. "Imagine finding the Quapatuck grocery store manager as well as the florist on a Sunday! And the train conductor. The Coggses' alibi is perfect."

Alby's quick eye picked out the essentials of a four-page report.

"Terrence McKinnon, store manager, remembers Coggs couple distinctly yesterday. Mrs. C. came in about twelve, right after train arrived, as usual Saturdays. Says you can't forget her marketing. Haggles above price and weight. Often insists scales must be wrong. McK. didn't remember Mr. Coggs' coming in in the morning, but his assistant, Joe Quigley, did. Also a neighbor. Both McK. and Q. remember the afternoon shopping, because Coggs himself did the buying, and he and Mrs. C. argued whether it would be round steak or kidneys. Quigly wrapped up the round steak and Mrs. C. said, 'All right, Papa, but you can see for yourself it comes to two cents more than the kidneys.' So Coggs changed his mind, and had the kidneys wrapped. Then there was an argument about the weight. . . . Time about six. Verified by neighbor, Mrs. Hanely Stuart, who lives next door to Coggses. In store at time, and drove out behind Coggs car. Saw them turn into their driveway about 6:30. . . . Further verification by gas station in Quapatuck, where Coggs buys his gas. Says they filled up about 5:45. Coggs got out of car, and held hose up himself to make sure he got every drop of gas.

"Interviewed James Cling, conductor, who happened to be on both runs. Said Coggses used last two rides of fifty-trip ticket on way down, and on return trip last night paid cash for tickets. Quarrelled about extra expense, each blaming the other for having forgotten to buy a new trip ticket."

"Water-tight, what?" Harrod said.

Alby nodded, scowling.

Harrod grinned. "Yeah, too bad. It'd be sweet to hang it on those two old toads. And you really like Dinard."

"You agree with Higgins that Dinard's the man?"

"Look at the evidence. Don't you?"

"The evidence—if you can call it evidence—is just as black against Coe, Wilcox, or for all we know, Marlin. I'm keeping an open mind till we catch both Marlin and a motive."

"We can make a hot guess at a motive."

"What's your guess? Fire away."

"O. K., boss. Let's go at it this way. An attractive young man, connected with a museum, has access to daggers. He also is familiar with the Twelfth street house, and could easily know that the Coggses go away weekends. Breaking into the Coggses' would be a cinch. He's engaged to be married. Suddenly—this is where the guessing begins—who turns up but this foreign fancy-dress dame, that he fell for maybe on one of those previous expeditions. She barges in just in time to stop the wedding bells. He's got to rub her out. Otherwise his latest romance and his reputation both crack up."

"A pretty long and elaborate guess."

"Not so long. At his apartment house they say he gets lots of foreign mail."

"So do we."

Harrod ignored the interruption.

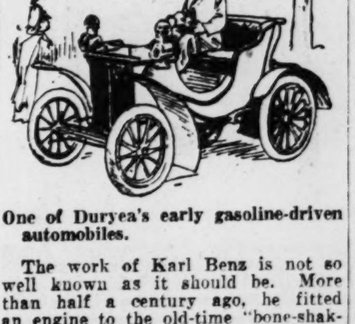
THE STORY OF LAND TRAVEL.
IX—The Gasoline Automobile.

Who should have credit for giving us the automobile?

Not one man, but many men. Yesterday I named a few of the early pioneers. Among the others are those who invented or worked on gasoline-driven automobiles—Narkus of Austria, Benz and Daimler of Germany, and Selden and Duryea of the United States, among the great company.



One of Duryea's early gasoline-driven automobiles.

The work of Karl Benz is not so well known as it should be. More than half a century ago, he fitted an engine to the old-time "bone-shaker" type of bicycle. This was not very successful, but he went on to build a motor-driven, three-wheeled automobile, or "motor tricycle." With this he won fair success in a public test.

Benz's little car would seat two persons. Its high speed was eight miles per hour. That is slow by modern standards; but the work of this German inventor marked a step in the progress of the gasoline motor car. Benz lived to a ripe old age, and died only five years ago. His first automobile is on view in a museum at Munich.

Charles B. Duryea has been called "the father of the American automobile." In 1892 and in later years, he built gasoline motor cars which would run. He is given credit for being first to place air-filled tires on automobiles, thus providing easier riding.

Two years ago Mr. Duryea wrote me a long letter (from his home in Philadelphia) telling what the public thought about his early automobiles.

"People would get out of the way in a panic," he said. "Almost everyone was sure that gasoline was as dangerous as gun-powder. When we took them by surprise, they would run to the fence and fairly tumble over it to get to the other side.

"As we approached a bridge (one day), a horse pulling a wagon with a whole family in it, stopped. The people tumbled out over the side and back, and ran to the wider part of the road at the near end of the bridge. We stopped the auto. I got out, went to the horse, and led him by. They begged me to be careful."

Many persons made fun of the efforts of the pioneers; but year by year, automobiles became better and better. Those built at present will go faster than a sensible person cares to drive them.

The old slow-moving wagons and ox-carts have given place to motor cars and railroad trains. In addition, we have the airplane—but we do not take it up in this series, for the whole earth is its field, and it zooms over the sea as well as over the land.

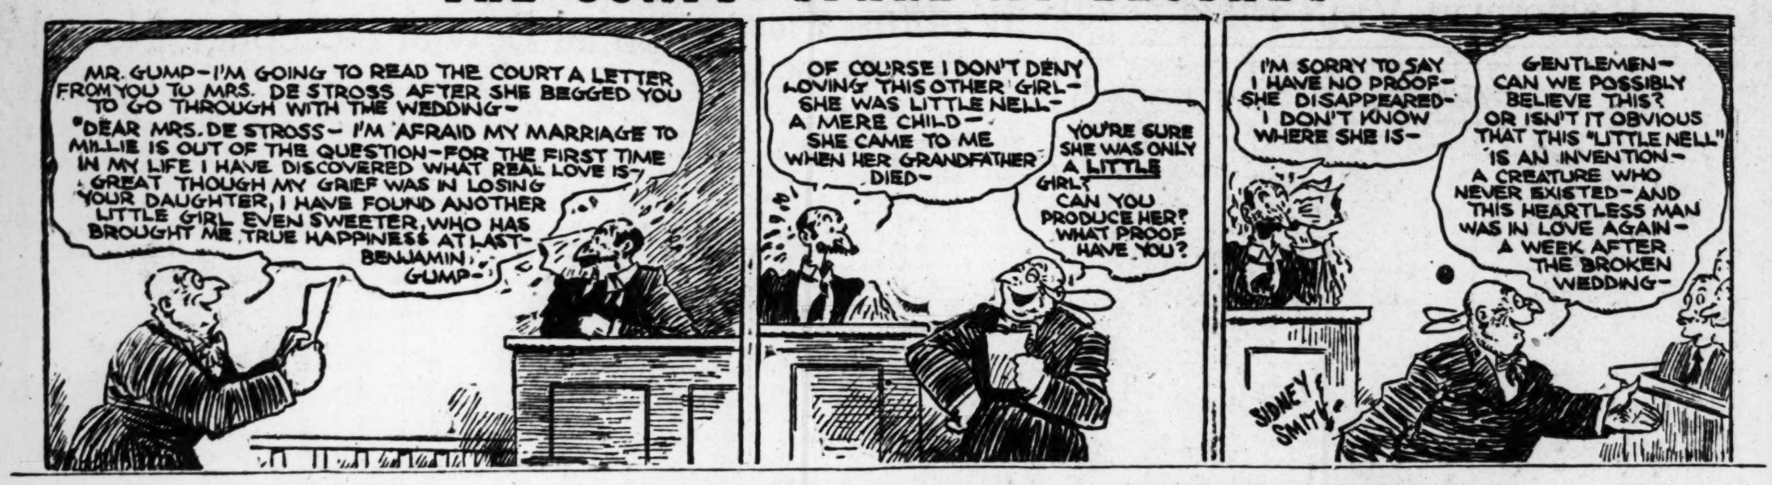
THE GUMPS—SPARE MY BLUSHES



MR. GUMP—I'M GOING TO READ THE COURT A LETTER FROM YOU TO MRS. DE STROSS AFTER SHE BEGGED YOU TO GO THROUGH WITH THE WEDDING—
"DEAR MRS. DE STROSS— I'M AFRAID MY MARRIAGE TO MILLIE IS OUT OF THE QUESTION—FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MY LIFE I HAVE DISCOVERED WHAT REAL LOVE IS—GREAT THOUGH MY GRIEF WAS IN LOSING YOUR DAUGHTER, I HAVE FOUND ANOTHER LITTLE GIRL EVEN SWEETER, WHO HAS BROUGHT ME TRUE HAPPINESS AT LAST—BENJAMIN GUMP—
OF COURSE I DON'T DENY LOVING THIS OTHER GIRL—SHE WAS LITTLE NELL—A MERE CHILD—SHE CAME TO ME WHEN HER GRANDFATHER DIED—
YOU'RE SURE SHE WAS ONLY A LITTLE GIRL? CAN YOU PRODUCE HER? WHAT PROOF HAVE YOU?
I'M SORRY TO SAY I HAVE NO PROOF—SHE DISAPPEARED—I DON'T KNOW WHERE SHE IS—
GENTLEMEN—CAN WE POSSIBLY BELIEVE THIS? OR ISN'T IT OBVIOUS THAT THIS "LITTLE NELL" IS AN INVENTION—A CREATURE WHO NEVER EXISTED—AND THIS HEARTLESS MAN WAS IN LOVE AGAIN—A WEEK AFTER THE BROKEN WEDDING—

THE LAUGHING GIRL MYSTERY

By Viola Paradise

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

As Sheridan Dinard is hurrying up the stairs to the New York studio apartment of his fiancee, Adelaide Sayre, a girlish burst of laughter is cut off short in the ground-floor apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Coggs, who own the building. While they are at their country place a beautiful girl is found dead from a stab wound in their rooms. When Sheridan hears the laughter he remarks to Oswald, the colored superintendent, that the girl is a blond with lavender eyes and a short upper lip. This is an exact description but before the discovery of the murder and in the presence of Adelaide and Lester Wilcox, but Sheridan laughingly says it is easy for an archaeologist to reconstruct a girl from her laugh. Both Sheridan and Wilcox are connected with the private museum of Dr. Coe, an Egyptologist. Police Inspector Higgins demands that Dinard tell who the girl is. After the murder a beggar holds Dinard up, knocks him out, and shoots, but misses him. An Egyptian statuette, taken from Dinard's desk, had been used as a door knocker to hide a newly-bored peep-hole in the Coggses' hall door. A Florentine dagger is missed from the museum and Marlin, the English caretaker, disappears. Dr. Coe, supposed to be at his country place, appears at the museum in a daze. Adelaide destroys a cerise baggage check which appears mysteriously on her desk. Assistant District Attorney Alby learns that a trunk with such a check was delivered to a man registered at the Hotel Astrakan as Dennis Swift, and that he took a packet of letters from it before disappearing. Alby questions Wilcox. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XII.

Adelaide shook her head. "I know I shouldn't have done it," she said. "I tore it up in tiny pieces and threw it down the toilet."

"But, darling? Why, that might have been the one real clue! We'll have to tell Alby—"

"Oh, no, Sherry, please don't! It will get me into trouble—both of us. Because they'll ask why, and I can't tell them."

"You can tell me."

She shook her head. "Please don't be cross, Sherry. My nerves are all on edge."

"I'm not cross, dear. But it's so unlike you—and it may make trouble."

"Not if you don't say anything about it. Why, just think—they might have found it!"

"But they should have found it!"

She looked away and swallowed, before replying, "Right on my desk, Sherry?"

Sherry laid down the fork and leaned back. "Good heavens!" he exclaimed. "You don't think!"

"No, I don't! I won't let myself think. I'm sure you have some good reason for keeping anything from me that you like. I don't doubt you for a minute, Sherry, not a minute."

"Yet, because I went upstairs to get your letter from that desk—"

"I didn't say it—"

"You thought it."

"I don't think it now, Sherry. It was just a new attack of jealousy. I remembered the way you looked at that girl."

And suddenly I felt that it was her baggage check. And then my feelings got all mixed up. They had been questioning me about that scratch in the linen cabinet. And whether you had been in the apartment alone at any time yesterday. And I said only for a moment when you'd gone up to get my letter—and suddenly it occurred to me, Sherry, that some one must be trying to 'frame' you—that's the right word, isn't it? Somebody who knew you knew something about that girl—"

"But I don't!"

Adelaide ignored him. Her voice, though still very low, was excited. "And if my life depended on it, I couldn't tell if it was jealousy, or if it was an instinct to protect you which made me destroy that check!"

He made no answer. He just looked at her, the muscles of his face taut.

"Sherry, dear!" suddenly her voice was soft and appealing. "Please don't look at me like that."

"You can hardly expect perfect facial control," he said bitterly, "when the person dearest to you in the whole world won't believe your honest word."

"But I do!"

He laughed shortly. "Just what did the check look like?"

"It was pink, or rather cerise, on coarse-grained cardboard. Otherwise it was like any other baggage check."

"I don't suppose in your moment of protectiveness and jealousy you thought to keep track of the number?"

"I can't bear it when you talk to me like this, Sherry! But I do remember the number. As if it were etched on my eyeballs. If you want to know, the number was 8 dash 14 dash 663."

Without another word they left the restaurant and got a taxi headed downtown.

"I got their number," said its driver. "We'll pick 'em up at the next stop light."

At the district attorney's office Joe Harrod was waiting for Alby. "Caswell replaced me at the museum right after you phoned," he reported. "I came back here and got busy on your instructions. Stevens is trailing Dinard. I cabled Scotland Yard for information about Marlin. And look at that," he added, indicating a sheaf of papers in a desk tray, weighted down with the jewelled Florentine dagger.

"Quick work at the lab," said Alby, but postponed an examination of the tray's contents. "Any new developments at the museum?"

"No. Dr. Coe fell into a heavy sleep. They'll call us the minute he wakes. Higgins' men are on the job there. Higgins is for arresting the whole museum force. I ordered you some lunch." Harrod explained as a man named Smith appeared with a tray of sandwiches and a pot of coffee.

"No time for sandwiches," said Alby. "But I'll drink this as I dictate. Ready?"

He sank wearily into his desk chair, for he had had neither food nor sleep since he had been called on this case last night. The coffee, however, picked him up, and he rattled off this morning's findings with speed, conciseness and yet a wealth of detail. A few conversations he summarized, but most he gave verbatim, for his mind was as accurate as a dictaphone.

"Now for these," he said, and pulled the desk tray to him. "Too soon for much luck, I suppose, especially on a Sunday."

"Three swell pieces of luck." Harrod's eyes gleamed and Alby sat forward in his chair.

"First the report on this baby." Harrod picked up the dagger. "It's the one that did the job. And what a clue-catcher! It was washed with a well-known brand of colored soap, some of which obligingly snuggled in with as much of the blood as didn't wash off, right between the rubies and emeralds. So did some particles of wool. And paper. It was evidently wiped dry on one of those cleansing tissues."

"Who uses that kind of soap?"

"It's in the museum washroom. Also in Dinard's bathroom."

Alby gave a noncommittal grunt and poured another cup of coffee. "What else?"

"Plenty. The girl's English."

Alby set the cup down. "You located the florist! Good work."

"I hitched four men to telephones. We took Dinard's tip and called only the best. Got the right one within half an hour. The clerk at Abalado's remembered an English lady, because they had a long conversation. He's at the morgue now, identifying her. He'll be here soon. Said she said she'd just arrived from England.

Miss Allen and Mr. Woods Wed At Brilliant LaGrange Ceremony

LaGRANGE, Ga., Oct. 10.—The First Baptist church of LaGrange provided the setting for the beautiful nuptial ceremony at which Miss Virginia Allen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Livy Duncan Allen, became the bride of Robert James Woods Jr., of Atlanta, at 8 o'clock this evening. Rev. Willis E. Howard, pastor of the church, read the marriage service which united two of the south's prominent families. A throng of friends and relatives assembled to witness the ceremony.

Mrs. Perrin Collier, of LaGrange, as organist, and Miss Elizabeth Jackson, of Atlanta, as violinist, rendered the nuptial music preceding the ceremony. Their program included "Evening Star," from Tannhouser; "Romance," and Schubert's "Serenade." "Liebestraum," by Liszt, was played by Mrs. Collier, who improvised during the ceremony.

Massed against the rear of the choir loft were palms and giant Woodwardia ferns. The choir rail was draped with white crash, against which graceful sprays of smilax traced a delicate pattern. Tall ferns formed a backdrop at the rear of the pulpit for a graceful white arch outlined with single cathedral candles. Centering the arch was a white wicker floor basket filled with giant white dahlias and Easter lilies. Flanking each side of the arch was a floor standard topped with a slanting seven-branched candelabrum holding waxen tapers.

The bridal couple knelt for their vows on a white satin prie-dieu caught with sprays of valley lilies. The pews on the left side of the church reserved for the members of the families were caught with tall clusters of white dahlias tied with white tulle. The pews on the right side of the church were reserved for the Girls' Cotillion Club of LaGrange, of which the bride is a popular member.

Wedding Personnel.

Miss Bessie Callaway, of LaGrange, cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and the bevy of lovely bridesmaids included Miss Martha Woods, of Nashville, Tenn., sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Fuller Callaway Jr., Miss Carolyn Leman and Mrs. Thomas Hutchinson, all of LaGrange.

The bridesmaids were gowned alike in striking models of chartreuse green velvet in a soft, pale tone, a contrasting note introduced in the wide velvet girdles of a deep tone of green, which ended in the back in loops with long ends. The bodices of the gowns featured high, square necklines on front, and a very low decolletage, cut in a square, in the back. Outlining the armholes were soft velvet folds forming brief sleeves. The long, graceful skirts, molded closely to the figure, extended into short trains. The sandals worn by the attendants were dyed in a deep shade of green, and they carried arm bouquets of shaggy yellow chrysanthemums tied with yellow satin ribbons.

Little Miss Harriett Callaway, of Atlanta, and Ely Callaway Jr., of LaGrange, young cousins of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid and junior groomsmen. Little Miss Callaway was an attractive figure wearing a velvet frock of chartreuse green, fashioned like the bridesmaids', with the exception of the long, full skirt, which was finished with a flounce at the bottom. Completing her costume was an old-fashioned bouquet of pastel-tinted garden flowers encased in a lace paper holder, the shades of yellow predominating.

Serving as ushers and groomsmen were Matthew Pilcher III, of Nashville, Tenn.; Callaway Allen, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., brother of the bride; Fuller Callaway, of LaGrange, and Robert Taylor Segrest, of LaGrange.

Beautiful Bride.

The lovely young bride was given in marriage by her father, L. D. Allen, and Mr. Woods chose as his best man William Trimble, of Knoxville, Tennessee.

Wearing her mother's wedding gown of ivory-toned satin and rare old lace, the bride, a stately blonde, presented a quaint, old-fashioned picture. Distinctive features of the handsome gown were the yoke of tulle, outlined with a deep bertha of rose-point lace, short puffed sleeves of satin, and the tulle ruche standing high around the neckline. The long satin skirt was modernized to the point of being fitted over the hips, and extended into a long train. Narrow folds of satin traced a pattern on the tulle yoke, and the tulle ruche was repeated on the sleeves. A voluminous veil of tulle fell from a close-fitting cap of rose-point lace which was caught over each ear with a tiny cluster of orange blossoms. The bride's bouquet was formed of fragrant gardenias surrounded by a border of valley lilies.

Mrs. L. D. Allen, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in brown lace posed over satin of the same shade. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of talisman roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Robert J. Woods Sr., of Nashville, Tenn., mother of the bridegroom, chose for the occasion a gown of black crepe fashioned with a yoke and sleeves of tulle. A shoulder spray of pink roses and valley lilies completed her costume.

Mrs. Fuller Callaway Sr., aunt of the bride, wore blue lace with a cluster of orchids. Another aunt, Mrs. Ely Callaway, was gowned in a black lace, offset with a cluster of roses. Mrs. Harry Callaway, of Atlanta, wore white lace and her flowers were orchids. Mrs. Enoch Callaway Sr. wore a handsome gown of gray chiffon.

To Reside in Atlanta.

Mr. Woods and his bride left by motor for a wedding trip to New Orleans, La. Upon their return they will take possession of their apartment in Atlanta.

The bride traveled in a smart suit of green woolen with an overtone of gold, collared in brown beaver, and worn with a blouse of gold satin. A becoming green felt hat and brown accessories completed her ensemble.

Among the guests from a distance who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Woods, Misses Harriett and Catherine Woods, of Nashville, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Emerson, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Callaway, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Stout, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Council, William Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gould, Miss Jean Gould, Dan Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Roddy Gould, Mr. and Mrs. William Sutherland, Dr. and Mrs. Lon Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moses, Miss Rebecca Moses, Mr. and Mrs. William Sims, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Branch Jr., R. N. Fickett III, Tom Fickett, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Askew, Miss Marie Askew, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Smith, Mrs. Deloney Sledge, all of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Appleton Mandeville, of Carrollton; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hand, of Senoia; Mr. and Mrs. William Hanley, of Roanoke, Ala.; Misses Marie and Lucy Lanier, of West Point, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Walker, of Decatur.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller Callaway Jr. entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a buffet supper at the Highland Country Club Tuesday evening following the wedding rehearsal. Mr. and Mrs. Ely Callaway were hosts at luncheon for the bridal party today at noon.

Program-Tea.

Miss Ruth Dabney Smith will entertain her violin and piano students Sunday afternoon, October 14, at 4 o'clock, at her home. This will be the first of a series of Sunday afternoon program-teas, which will assemble members of the class and a few invited guests.

Plans for the organization of a junior music study club will be discussed, and Miss Evelyn Jackson, president, and Miss Helen Knox Spain, secretary of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs, and Mrs. Willis Westmoreland, chairman of the fifth district, have been invited as special guests.

A brief musical program will be given by Mary Quigley, Hazel Taylor and Carroll George, violinists. The members of the club will include Mary Jo Baldwin, Mary Jane Bass, Nancy Crowe, Joan Hillman, Mary Carolyn Lee, Mary Ann Mell, Catherine Muir, Mary Quigley, Hazel Taylor, Gertrude Yampolsky, Samuel Crasnow, Carroll George, Allen Jackson, Teddy Levitas and Lionel Warren.

Bessie Tift Party.

The Atlanta chapter of the Bessie Tift alumnae enjoyed a rattle-tattle party Saturday at the home of Mrs. R. N. Fickett on Ponce de Leon. Miss Myrtle Bell Durham, the president, arranged the program of entertainment. Mrs. James J. Martin, Misses Hinda Roberts, Mildred Liggon and Mesdames A. L. Colcord, Mamie Stokeley, E. S. Preston assisted in receiving and entertaining the 50 guests.

The home was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers. The proceeds of the party will go toward a fund for refurnishing a room at the college to be known as "The Atlanta Alumnae Room." Miss Julia Mae Oxford, the college alumnae secretary, was present to represent the college and told of the growing enthusiasm of other alumnae chapters over the state in furnishing rooms.

Grant Park Rainbow.

Grant Park Rainbow Assembly No. 4 will celebrate its third birthday on Friday evening, October 12, at 8 o'clock. The past worthy advisors will be the honor guests. Members of the order and their friends are invited. Miss Margaret Pierce is the worthy advisor, and Mrs. George Bradshaw is mother advisor.

NANCY PAGE

Nancy Crochets Some Pot Holders.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Corinne was renovizing her kitchen changing the color scheme from cream and green to white, and blue with touches of black.

Nancy decided the nicest thing she could give her would be some pot holders crocheted in those colors.

She worked out a crocheted pot holder, directions and picture of which may be obtained by writing to Nancy Page.

She used crochet cotton about the texture of soft white string. She used only color-fast material. Two round mats of nine rows each were crocheted separately and then joined with a row of single crochet in black. The loop by which the holder was hung was crocheted in black also.

The direction leaflet for making "Crocheted Pot Holder" may be obtained by sending 3 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Women Lawyers Give Dinner.

Association of Women Lawyers met at a dinner at the Henry Grady hotel Monday, given in honor of the retiring president, Miss Estelle Turner, who was presented with a silver loving cup by the organization for her splendid work for the year of 1933-1934. A guest of honor was the Honorable Robert Ramspeck, congressman from the fifth district, who talked on the work and bills passed by congress, and whose opinion was that "women have become the equal to men in the political world, as never before in the history of America." Congressman Ramspeck referred to the high appointments made by the administration of women and referred to the fine work of Secretary Frances Perkins, of Ruth Bryan Owens, and the appointment of a woman to the bench of the federal district.

The meeting was turned over to the newly elected president, Miss Lillie Scheck, who will act for the ensuing year. The association extends a very cordial invitation to all women holding license to practice law to join, and any one desiring to do so may telephone Vernon 1220, or address Miss Lillie Scheck, Atlanta National Bank building.

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Stocks and staples were the leading performers on the financial market stage today as speculative sentiment took a decided turn for the better.

Gains of 1 to 3 or more points were recorded over a wide front in the share dealings. Grains moved up briskly under foreign buying and cotton came back after early hesitancy.

Bonds, however, turned irregular as United States government securities displayed a somewhat heavy tone. Sterling continued its decline against the dollar.

Merchandising equities led the forward push in stocks, apparently meeting a renewed demand on reports of a further expansion in retail sales. A number of other issues came to life under the spur of individual circumstances.

Volume Mounts.

It was the best day's business for the share brokers in some weeks. Transfers totaled 987,030 shares, the largest day's aggregate since August 22, last. The Standard Statistics average for 90 selected issues advanced 1.9 points to 72. This was the sharpest recovery for a single session since August 9.

Word from Washington that the president feels commodity price levels are still too low for any move toward stabilization, it was thought in some quarters, may have furnished some fuel for relighting trading fires.

Most stocks were higher throughout the session, despite some profit-taking. Among issues that climbed the fastest were United States Smelting, Case, McCrory Stores common and preferred; New York Air Brake, Westinghouse Air Brake, Macy, Marshall Field, Montgomery Ward, Sears-Roebuck, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, General Motors, Chrysler, Western Union, du Pont, Johns-Manville, American Commercial Alcohol, American Can, Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

60-Cent Dividend.

Continental Can drew only a moderate following upon the declaration of a 60-cent dividend which will also apply on the new shares to be issued as a stock dividend.

While Iron Age estimated current steel operations throughout the country at 24 1-2 per cent of capacity as against 24 per cent last week, the United States Steel Corporation reported September shipments of finished steel products had declined 7,717 tons under the August aggregate of 378,023 tons.

Wheat at Chicago finished with gains of 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 cents a bushel and corn improved 1 1-2 to 1 7-8 cents. December barley was up the allowable day's limit of 5 cents a bushel. Cotton held advances of 75 cents to $1 a bale.

WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR COTTON STATES

Georgia: Cloudy, possibly occasional rain Thursday; Friday fair, warmer in north portion.

Tennessee: Fair Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature.

Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Extreme Northwest Florida: Fair Thursday and Friday.

Arkansas and Oklahoma: Fair Thursday; Friday partly cloudy.

PRICE OF SILVER L CONTINUES TO GAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Silver continued its record-breaking course today, as the New York price for foreign silver reached another five-year peak.

Handy & Harman, bullion brokers, established today's price at 51 1-8 cents an ounce, a rise of 3-8 of a cent from yesterday and another new high since 1929.

The rise was largely in reflection of an advance of 1-8 of a penny in the London quotation, which rose to 23 3-8 pence an ounce, also the highest since 1929.

WOMAN, 65, IS FREED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Appearing in county court with her 90-year-old mother, Mrs. Isabel Bentencourt, 65, was free today under a suspended 60-day jail sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of selling liquor to patients at the Federal Soldiers' home and hospital here.

In reply to a defense plea for clemency because of Mrs. Bentencourt's age, Judge Harry Hewitt said that in St. Petersburg a person of 65 is "in the prime of life."

JOHNSON IN HOSPITAL FOR SINUS TREATMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Suffering from a cold, Hugh S. Johnson was in Walter Reed hospital today for sinus treatments.

The general was in his office yesterday and was expected back tomorrow. His term with NRA officially expires next Monday.

CURB SHARES GAIN IN ACTIVE SESSION

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Curb stocks moved into higher territory today as trading interest broadened. Closing gains ranged from fractions to around 2 points.

Specialties were particularly firm. Alcohols recorded substantial progress, while utilities and metals were higher. The trend pointed steadily upward from the start and final prices were around the day's best.

Singer Manufacturing rose 6 points to 222 for a new 1934 high.

Mead Johnson was an isolated weak spot, dipping nearly 4. Pittsburgh Plate Glass got up more than 2, while other issues finishing around 1 to 2 higher, included Aluminum Company of America, Babcock & Wilcox, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Ford Motor of Canada, Hiram Walker, Newmont, Pepperell, A. O. Smith, Davenport Hosiery, Gulf Oil and United Shoe Machinery.

WHEAT CROP ESTIMATE SHOWS FURTHER GAIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The nation's wheat crop was estimated today at 496,982,000 bushels for this year by the department of agriculture which also reported the indicated corn crop at 1,416,772,000 bushels, showing the ravages of this year's severe drouth.

Indicated wheat production has crept up slightly each month, despite drouth conditions, 484,000,000 bushels being indicated July 1, with 491,000,000 bushels indicated in August and 493,000,000 bushels in September. But production this year is under last year when 528,000,000 bushels were produced and far below the five-year average for the years 1927-31 when production was 886,000,000 bushels.

Corn indications have shown the effects of the drouth, dropping from 2,113,000,000 bushels in July when the first production forecast was issued, to 1,607,000,000 bushels in August and 1,485,000,000 bushels in September. Production last year was 2,344,000,000 bushels, while the 1927-31 average production was 2,516,000,000 bushels.

The winter wheat crop this year is 401,000,000 bushels, compared with 352,000,000 bushels last year and 632,000,000 bushels, the 1927-31 average.

Production of all spring wheat this year, according to the department's preliminary estimate, will be 96,460,000 bushels, compared with 89,400,000 bushels in July 90,400,000 bushels in August, and 92,800,000 bushels in September. Last year's production was 176,000,000 bushels, and the five-year, 1927-31, average production was 254,000,000 bushels.

Included in the spring wheat production is 5,952,000 bushels of durum wheat, compared with 6,100,000 bushels a month ago, 16,000,000 bushels last year and 61,000,000 bushels, the five-year average; and 90,508,000 bushels of other spring wheat, compared with 86,700,000 bushels a month ago, 160,000,000 bushels last year and 193,000,000 bushels, the five-year average.

Oats production this year is 545,938,000 bushels, compared with 568,000,000 bushels indicated in July, 545,000,000 bushels in August, 546,000,000 bushels in September, 732,000,000 bushels produced last year and 1,187,000,000 bushels, the five-year average.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 20 points up, at 12.45. Receipts 636; shipments 1,239; stocks 159,859.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Cotton futures rose about $1.50 a bale today on covering and an active scattering demand encouraged by reports from Washington concerning the administration's attitude toward commodity prices in general and the firmer tone of wheat and stocks.

December contracts after selling off to 11.92 early advanced to 12.23 in the late trading and closed at 12.19 with the general market ending very steady at net gains of 15 to 20 points.

Early prices were down 7 to 11 points, but the trend turned upward on the Washington reports.

October sold up to 12.12 and May to 12.43 in the late trading or 27 to 31 points above the lows of the morning and 20 to 22 points net higher. Closing quotations were within a few points of the best.

The weekly weather report was considered fairly favorable but it attracted comparatively little attention.

Exports today 19,425 making 914,777 so far this season. Port receipts 34,705. United States port stocks 2,911,962.

The early cables from Liverpool said that confidence was lacking in that market, but that continental London and hedge selling there had been absorbed by trade calling and covering. Houses with Liverpool and continental connections were sellers here during the first hour, but offerings became comparatively light after the close of the markets abroad.

Very little hedging was reported from the south and this led to reports that a large proportion of current receipts were probably going into the 12-cent loan.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON ADVANCES 13-16 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The cotton market was very active today and prices fluctuated broadly, finally developing a sharp upward trend. Rather liberal foreign liquidation and good weather in the belt caused a decline during the morning which carried prices 9 to 11 points below the previous close, but this loss was soon recovered and prices advanced sharply during the afternoon on good trade buying, short covering and higher wheat and stocks, gaining 27 to 29 points from the lows.

There was a slight reaction of 3 points at the end on realizing and the market closed steady with prices showing net gains for the day of 13 to 16 points.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 11 penny points up.

Port receipts 34,905, for week 141,113, for season 1,516,604, last season 2,397,455. Exports 19,625, for week 71,177, for season 898,307, last season 1,643,095. Port stock 2,917,328, last year 3,661,658. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 79,850, last year 128,579. Spot sales at southern markets 15,350, last year 47,805.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The bond market recovered some of its poise today and the majority of domestic corporate loans moved higher. The foreign section, unsettled yesterday by developments in Europe, was steady, but United States government issues sagged.

Transfers approximated $11,143,000, par value, compared with $14,566,000 on Tuesday and the turnover in United States governments aggregated $3,830,000 against $7,400,000 the day before. The Standard Statistics Company average for 60 domestic corporate loans held unchanged at 83.6.

The trend of the market reversed itself in the afternoon trading when lower-priced issues, especially the carriers, firmed after being irregularly lower in the forenoon.

Chicago & Great Western 5s were 1 3-4 points higher at 29 3-4, McCrory Stores 5 1-2s added another 1 5-8 points to the gains of yesterday to close at 66 1-2 and Pressed Steel Car 5s made an extreme advance of 6 points to 50. Other loans advancing around a point or so incluuded some of North American Edison, Philadelphia & Reading, Coal & Iron, Southern Railway, United Drug and Laclede Gas.

Prime investments were generally higher, but the advances were confined mostly to the fractional variety.

Most United States government bonds sold 2-32ds to 10-32ds lower. Federal Farm Mortgage 3 1-4s advanced 7-32ds to 90.24.

Jugoslav State Mortgage Bank 7s advanced 2 1-2 cents to 34 1-2 and other foreign issues that sold off yesterday were generally higher.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Buoyantly advancing, with more activity than for a long time past, wheat scored a maximum gain of 3 1-4 cents a bushel today.

With foreigners as well as domestic mills brisk buyers of wheat futures in Chicago, indications were also that a big export business in Canadian wheat was under way from both the Atlantic coast and the Pacific. Much notice, too, was taken of Washington reports that the administration was seeking a general higher price level, and that although there was no intention of permitting runaway prices, there was nevertheless no immediate intention of putting on brakes.

Wheat closed firm, 2 1-2 to 3 1-8c above yesterday's finish. December new 99 1-2 to 99 5-8, corn 1 1-2 to 1 7-8 up. December new 75 5-8 to 75 3-4, oats 1 3-4 to 2 1-8, advanced, and barley up 2 cents to 5 cents. Provisions closed varying from 7 cents decline to 17 cents gain.

Corn and oats were bullishly affected by correct relief that the government crop estimates due after the close of trading would show a material reduction as to corn.

Provisions, although easier at the start owing to setbacks of hog values, were stronger afterward in response to strength shown by cereals.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—While an early correction of yesterday's abrupt rise may occure shortly, we believe that market conditions may continue to improve in the belief that administration policies may be more helpful to business.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—While the business picture does not warrant any extraordinary market strength, improvement seen for the next two months should justify a secondary advance.

DOBBS & CO.—Prices are at about a level where they have met considerable selling before and a break through on the upside would be considered very bullish.

COURTS & CO.—The close yesterday would indicate a higher market today.

BEER & CO.—Yesterday's strength was impressive and should carry through.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—There appears to be a better feeling in the market and the rally may be sustained or go even farther.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—The market was encouraged by Worth Street news that cotton goods business is better than at any time during the past two months.

DOBBS & CO.—The technical position of the market warrants rallies but retail demand may be necessary for sustained, aggressive buying on advances.

COURTS & CO.—We believe that a further recovery is indicated for cotton.

BEER & CO.—We favor buying on substantial recessions.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We think that the wheat market will continue bullish as long as the foreign markets remain hard.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—The wheat market now appears to be in shape to break through into higher ground.

H. S. PALMER IS NAMED HEAD OF N. Y., N. H. & H.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Howard Shirley Palmer was elected president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company today—the first New Englander to hold that position in more than a generation.

Not since the days of Charles Mellen, of Lowell, Mass., who was president from 1903 to 1913, has the road been headed by a man from the northeast.

Palmer has been described as a "typical Maine yankee" with a keen and shrewd eye. He is not, however, one of those silent New Englanders, his friends say, but on the contrary, his penetrating questions on railroading have brought many an executive to his toes.

Dividends.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Directors of the Continental Can Company today declared a dividend of 60 cents on the capital stock, outstanding after distribution of the recently ordered 50 per cent stock dividend. The disbursement is payable November 15 to stock of record October 29.

Prior to the stock dividend the company paid at the rate of 75 cents quarterly so that the present dividend, if considered a quarterly payment, raises the rate to 90 cents quarterly on the old basis. This is in line with the company's statement in connection with the stock dividend.

The company announced that the 50 per cent stock dividend, subject to approval of stockholders at a meeting to be held October 15, will be payable on October 25 to stock of record October 15.

Directors of the Virginian Railway declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the preferred stock, payable November 1 to stock of record October 13.

Pullman, Inc., declared the usual quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the capital stock, payable November 15 to stock of record October 24.

American Shipbuilding Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, payable November 1 to stock of record October 20.

Gas Price Cut.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey has reduced the service station and tank wagon price of gasoline 2 cents a gallon in its territory, with the exception of Delaware, it was announced today. A similar reduction was posted by the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana. Both companies lowered the tank car price one cent a gallon. The reductions are effective tomorrow.

Market Outlook

MAX BUCKINGHAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(UP)—Wall Street tonight took President Roosevelt's statement that prices must go still higher before they are stabilized as predominantly bullish and acted accordingly.

Sentiment was improved. Inflationists and conservatives alike found cause for satisfaction in the presidential utterances.

Stock market charts bore out speculative optimism.

Sections of the Street were particularly pleased at the Rooseveltian declaration against wild price fluctuations in basic commodities. This was interpreted to mean that prices will be upped considerably and that a stable higher price level will be maintained. Just how this is to be done the Street did not profess to know, but the Washington news did give an excuse for action and action is what a lot of brokerage houses must have if they are to continue to meet their pay rolls.

GOLD HIKE SEEN.

Inflationists believed that some sort of inflationary moves might be attempted. It was thought possible that a further increase in the gold price might be introduced. Some leading exponents of increased gold prices—and consequent paring of dollar valuation—suggested that a further increase from the current $35 an ounce for gold might be feasible. London's price of gold has been advancing steadily and reached a record high this week.

But the president gave no indication that any definite method of increasing the price level had been agreed upon.

Meanwhile, "convetvatives" felt there had been definite tendencies towards the right in recent administration moves. They pointed to the administration position that industrial profit-making was desired. They pointed to hopes—based on conferences, court actions, etc.—that more leniency might be expected in the price fixing provisions. They also pointed out that the higher level of commodity prices could be accomplished by a reassured industrial group which would increase its operation, bring more work and therefore greater demand.

BROAD RALLY.

These factors mainly were responsible for the smart rally in the stock market today. Prices surged forward fractions to 3 points in trading volume of 990,000 shares, the best day since August 22. The rally was touched off by further strength in mercantile shares but before the five-hour session was ended the old-time market leaders—Atchison, Big Steel, Telephone, Chrysler and General Motors—were putting on private demonstrations of strength.

It was a cheering day for Wall Street and made more so by general acceptance of bankers and brokers on the theory that the Marseilles assassinations were result of a local situation tnd involved no complicated international significance. The foreign exchange market quieted after the nervousness yesterday.

Thus the outlook appeared bullish tonight. There is a likelihood, of course, of some lull inasmuch as a holiday comes in trading Friday—Columbus Day—but most of Wall Street felt quite optimistic by the close of today's session. Chief among business improvement was the gain in electric output reported by Edison Electric Institute which marked the first gain in six week. Stumbling blocks included the United States Steel shipments, car loadings declining more than seasonal, particularly on eastern roads, and Iron Age's observation that steel buyers still are reluctant to make new commitments thus holding the national production level down.

MARKETS TO CLOSE ON COLUMBUS DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The principal security and commodity markets here and in other leading centers will be closed on Friday in observance of Columbus Day. An extra holiday will be observed Saturday by the New York Commodity Exchange, coffee and sugar exchange and cocoa exchange. The Chicago Board of Trade and New Orleans Cotton Exchange will be among the exchanges omitting trading sessions on Friday.

On the Air Today

CARAVAN—Under the genial generalship of Walter O'Keefe another caravan of music and humor will be broadcast over the WGST-Columbia network tonight from 8 to 8:30 o'clock.

The caravan will feature Glen Gray's Casa Loma orchestra, Annette Henshaw, popular songstress, and Ted Husing, sports commentator. Miss Hanshaw will sing two hits, "Ten Cents a Dance" and "Needle in the Haystack," while O'Keefe will conduct his "radio newsstand" with the capable assistance of Kay Renwick, noted character actress. Glen Gray's musicians, opening with "Nagasaki," will offer special settings of "Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea" and "I Only Have Eyes for You," with vocal interludes by Pee Wee Hunt and Kenny Sargent. Gene Gifford's arrangement of "Milenburg Joys" will be another orchestra high spot. Ted Husing will dramatize an exciting incident from the sports world.

WARING—The Pennsylvanians under the direction of Fred Waring are right in their element with the football season under way, and they'll salute the gridiron sport over the WGST-Columbia network from 8:30 to 9 o'clock tonight, with glee club renditions of college songs. Tom and Rosemary, Babs and her brothers, Poley McClintock, Johnny Davis and Stuart Churchill will keep the show moving with a combination of comedy and melody.

STEVENS' HARMONIES—Leith Stevens' Harmonies, featuring his mixed choir and orchestra, will broadcast a special all-request program over a greatly extended coast-to-coast WGST-Columbia network tonight from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. Popular numbers from recent musical successes and a group of special settings by Stevens will be featured on the new program.

Leith Stevens' Harmonies takes over the period formerly occupied by Kate Smith and her Swanee Music, which moves to a new time period on Fridays at 9:30 p. m., beginning tomorrow.

FOOTBALL—Red Grange, the galloping ghost of the gridiron, will serve up some football training table gossip during his broadcast over Columbia network today from 6:15 to 6:30 p. m. Many big games are on the schedule for the following Saturday, including an intersectional battle between Pittsburgh and Southern California at Pittsburgh.

NAVY WILL INSPECT MORRO CASTLE WRECK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The navy department, at the request of the department of commerce, will inspect within the next few days the wreck of the Morro Castle to determine whether the bulk has any potential value to the navy that would justify the probable salvage cost.

Shipping circles understood that the Ward line has tendered the vessel to the insurance underwriters in accordance with a common practice in cases of total loss of ships for owners to abandon them to underwriters paying full insurance.

The Morro Castle cost $4,874,230, of which $3,422,182 was advanced as a construction loan by the United States shipping board, now part of the commerce department. More than $500,000 of the loan has been paid back. The commerce department was one of the Morro Castle underwriters to the extent of $700,000.

TOBACCO ESTIMATE SHOWS BROAD GAIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The crop report issued by the department of agriculture today forecast a tobacco crop this year of 1,091,764,000 pounds, an increase of 13,647,000 pounds over the September estimate.

The forecast for flue-cured production went up nearly 10,000,000 pounds over the September forecast to an estimate of 535,483,000 pounds. Last year's crop of flue-clured was 737,703,000 pounds.

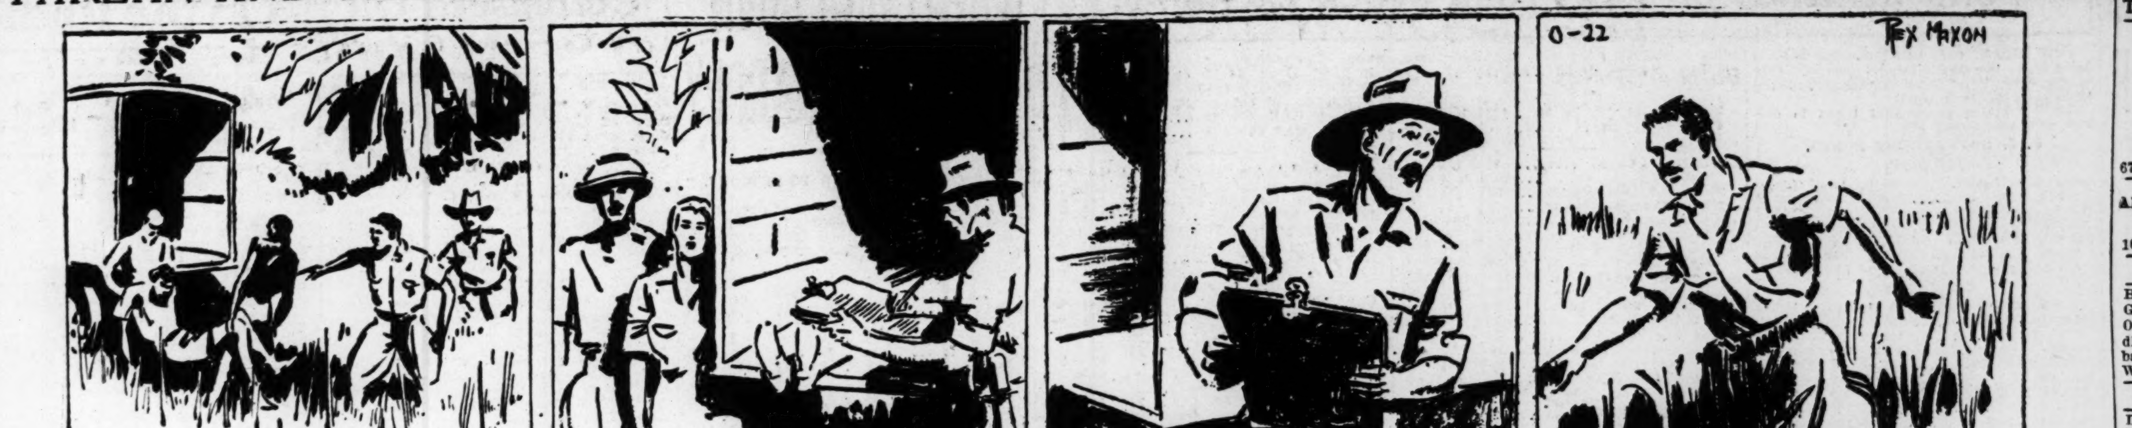
TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 22

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



Orman paled when Pat O'Grady warned that the savages might set fire to the grass. He had not thought of that, but it was evident that such a conflagration would consume the safari. "Load the dead and wounded on the nearest cars and get going!" Orman ordered. "We'll check up later."

The party felt a sense of relief when the cars pulled into the dense, soggy forest, where the menace of fire at least was reduced to a minimum. While riflemen stood guard against another attack, O'Grady went along the line with his roster of the company, checking the living and the dead.

The bodies of Noice, Baine, seven other Americans, and three Arabs were on the trucks. Thus a quarter of the white members of the safari had already been wiped out by the Basutos. O'Grady, looking at his list, suddenly began to shout; "Obroski! Obroski! Has anyone seen Stanley Obroski!"

"I saw him," exclaimed Gordon Z. Marcus. "I remember now. When the devils came up on our left, he jumped out on the other side of the car and ran off into the tall grass." Orman started back toward the rear of the column. "You can't go out there alone," declared Bill West! "I'll go with you."

KEEP ARMS INSIDE CAR

In one state alone five drivers lost their left arms in motor vehicle accidents in recent months. Many drivers fail to allow sufficient clearance to traffic coming from the opposite direction. The serious consequences of having an arm torn off can be avoided by driving with arms and elbows inside the car, except when giving hand signals.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE LAST WORD

Blade, Millionaire Oil Man, Watched Her Glide Into the Room, Hesitate, Then Speak to Him.

By AUGUSTA LEINARD.

Over his dinner menu Blade watched her enter the hotel dining room. She was beautiful and smartly gowned and he wasn't sorry when, the head waiter being elsewhere engaged, she slipped into the chair opposite him.

As she looked around for the waiter Blade offered his menu. "Better take this. That fellow's been gone long enough to grow the fruit for my cocktail."

While she scanned the menu the man brought Blade's cocktail. "Sorry to keep you waiting," Mr. Blade," he apologized.

The girl looked up interestedly and when the waiter had again departed she asked: "Are you Matt Blade, the oil king? I read in this morning's paper how you had extracted millions from land you bought on a shoestring."

"Ten," said Blade.

"Years or millions?"

Their joint laughter launched a conversation. The girl's husband, it seemed, was in Washington on business.

"And you," she remarked studying him with wide azure eyes, "are what the world calls a self-made man."

"Made to order for the movies," he returned jocularly, "fat, florid, and self-important."

"I'm tremendously interested in oil," the girl told him. "I'd love to see the famous Blade wells."

"You would?" studying her for a moment. "Tell you what, Mrs. —"

"Dellvue," she supplied.

"Mrs. Dellvue. I've got some photographs upstairs. Like to see 'em?"

The girl's brows went up. "That is an idea." Then she laughed. "I'll come."

"Fine," said Blade.

Fifteen minutes later she entered his rose and gold living room. "But I can stay only a minute," she demurred as he helped her off with her coat. "I shouldn't have come, but I did want to see those pictures."

"She was beautiful and smartly gowned."

Blade dropped down on the settee beside her. "Brought 'em along for Dan Rawlins—you know, the author. He's writing me up for a magazine."

"How wonderful! I'll surely watch for that."

Blade explained that he was running for mayor of his home town.

"I read that it's a hot fight," Mrs. Dellvue informed him.

"You bet!" emphatically. Then he smiled. "Drink?" He offered her a highball, then took a cigar from an open box on the table. "I prefer these after dinner. Yes, the whole county's simmering with this fight. But," viciously biting the end off his cigar, "I'm going to win."

At that moment the door was flung open by a husky young man wearing a black overcoat and a blacker look.

"Tony!" said the girl. She put down her glass.

"Yes, Tony," he snarled, closing the door and glowering at the pair. "You won't get away with this!"

"What's the idea?" demanded Blade.

"No?" smiled the girl. "Picture the home town paper headlining this little episode."

He regarded her narrowly. "Slick, aren't you? Suppose I call the cops myself?"

"You wouldn't ruin your wife's social chances. Tony will swear he caught you making love to me and," flipping her cigaret into her wine glass, "we put on a big time act. We're head-liners."

"Headliners—h'm." Suddenly he slumped down on the settee. "How much do you want?" he mumbled.

"Five thousand bucks," said the girl sweetly.

Silence while the blackmailers watched their victim. He seemed crestfallen. Over his bent head the girl gave Tony a triumphant glance.

"Well, do we get it," she demanded, "or do we start raising hell?"

"No, I do." Blade threw back his head and laughed. "Listen. I got wise to you at dinner. My secretary's in that bedroom taking down every word." He glared from one to the other as he helped himself to a fresh cigar. "Think you could pull that stuff on me?"

"That's a lie!" jeered Tony, starting toward the bedroom door, which was slightly ajar. But he stopped as a young man's voice inquired "Shall I send for those cops, Mr. Blade?"

"Not yet, Mac." Blade grimly returned Tony's startled gaze. "Stick by that phone and keep your gun ready."

"Yes, sir."

Tony looked at his accomplice. Without a word she caught up her mink coat.

"Just a minute," mocked Blade. "We're to put on an act for the police, you remember. Sit down. We will have a drink first. And remember," he added as he bent over his traveling bag, "that Matt Blade always has the last word."

Matt Blade closed and locked the door. He leaned against it and wiped his brow with his handkerchief.

Later he was talking over the telephone in the bedroom. "Yes, Rawlins add this somewhere to that story: 'In early days Matt Blade was a ventriloquist.' And," with a chuckle, "he was a headliner."

Tomorrow — "Plain Dumb," by Donald Northwood, concerns Joe Bonner, a trucker, and his girl friend, Mamie, who deemed him a little stupid, although she was quick to confess that she loved him.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Last fall after a quarrel and separation that lasted three weeks the man I love asked me to marry him secretly because he had no money saved and couldn't support a wife. I agreed and then decided that there would be gossip about us and I didn't want to be in that position. During this year he has saved some money but not nearly enough to get married on. He wants me to try to get a job and help so we can push up the date of marriage. Sometimes I think I should give him up while I am young and try to find someone else. Srould I hang on waiting for the lucky day or quit now?

IN THE BALANCE.

Answer: The answer to this question must come from the heart of the writer who asks it. Perhaps the very fact that she asks it is indication that her heart is not deeply involved. In this day and time of small salaries it is very difficult for a young man to live, beau his girl around, give her presents and then save an appreciable amount of money. All over the country the young people are experiencing the disappointment and discouragement of delayed marriage. They are wearing the bloom off of their romances and becoming tired and bored with the long deferred hopes and ambitions.

One girl reacts in one way, and another in some other way to such a situation. One plunges into hard work, saves her money to add to the nest egg. One sighs and says, "What's the use!" Then sinks into a sort of lethargy. One breaks her engagement and sets out to find a more likely prospect. The one who is desperately in love counts work and economy a small price to pay for an advanced wedding date. The one who wants to get married for the sake of being married counts work and economy too big a price to pay for the pleasure of being engaged to any particular man. Part of her conception of marriage, and a big part too, is being relieved of the responsibility of thinking about money. The husband idea includes a home provided, furnished and appurtenanced, and she doesn't want to hang on to the arm of any man who can't put up what is necessary for these.

Some girls haven't yet learned that the conditions that governed marriage even a decade ago are now changed. In the old days a man was reticent about engaging himself if he didn't have the wherewithal to go through with the plans, and as for marriage, he didn't consider it unless he could finance it. Our mothers and grandmothers didn't know howto do anything but cook and sew and mend and darn. Consequently when a man suggested marriage that meant he was ready to furnish the roof, food, clothes, fuel, needles and thread thrown in. But the women have stepped out and learned to do almost everything the men do. They not only run their homes but they run businesses as well. So the men assume that, having to compete with them for jobs and salaries, there is no reason why they shouldn't go it fifty-fifty, pool their resources and team up in marriage.

Love doesn't raise salaries as it raises temperatures. It doesn't alter the essential facts of practical existence. It may inspire a man to save but it doesn't enable him to put money in the bank. When he falls in love and hasn't a lucrative position, hasn't a sizeable bank account either he has to wait until he can save or his girl has got to go to work and carry half the load. She has to be what a certain little girl calls, "in death love" to undertake the task, particularly if she has formerly been a girl of leisure.

In the end it all comes to this. What is one willing to pay for love? It comes very high. Some have to pay with pride, some have to pay with hard work, some with dollars and cents. All have to pay.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

SCRAPS OF WOOL AFGHAN.
Pattern 5228.

What is cozier on a cold winter day than an afghan? Its cheery colors add that comfortable look to a room and its warmth is often most welcome. Just for that reason, it's just the thing to work on in fall. This one has many possibilities—get out your scraps and just make every section of the flowerlike form in a different color or stick to one color scheme and use two shades of one color for the sections, another color for the center and a black or brown background. In design it reminds one of the Friendship Plate quilt and like it can be most colorful.

In pattern 5228 you will find detailed instructions for making the afghan; material requirements; illustrations of the afghan and of all stitches needed; color suggestions.

JOSEPH S. DAVIS PASSES AT ALBANY

Former U. S. Marshal and Editor Dies at Age of 84; Funeral Today.

ALBANY, Ga., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Joseph S. Davis, 81, long an active figure in public and business life of Albany and southwest Georgia, died at his country home near here today. He had been in ill health for nine years.

He was at one time United States marshal for the southern district of Georgia and had served as mayor of Albany and state representative from Dougherty county.

Mr. Davis considered his most important public service to have been that of organizing and founding the Georgia Chautauqua which for many years was a leading educational institution here. He was its superintendent of instruction during its entire existence. He was also county commissioner of schools, and was a leader in the campaign for municipal ownership of public utilities which put Albany in a distinctive class along this line many years ago.

He was at one time president of the Georgia Bankers' Association, he having been prominently connected with local banking interests.

In company with the late H. M. McIntosh he was co-editor and publisher of the Albany News and Advertiser, which at the time of its establishment in 1877 was the only daily paper in the country in a town the size of Albany.

Surviving are Mrs. Davis, the former Miss Eugenie Gunn, of Cuthbert, and the following sons and daughters: J. A. Davis, business manager of the Albany Herald; D. G. Davis and W. D. Davis, of Albany, and J. S. Davis Jr., of Omaha, Neb., and a daughter, Mrs. S. B. Naff, of Atlanta.

The funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in the First Baptist church here.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyist.

Fatal Procrastination.

Plays meant to fool the opponents and cause them to do what they shouldn't or not to do what they should, are likely to be particularly effective when made at the beginning of a hand. For this there are several excellent reasons. First, the opponents at this stage of the play know less about the hand than they do in the later rounds, and are therefore reckoning with possibilities rather than actualities. Second, they have not yet had much time to think. Third, some players have the unfortunate habit of postponing their decisions, even when it would be mentally possible to make them earlier, until it is too late. Against these chronic procrastinators, of course, early surprise plays are even more effective than against the generality of players. Procrastination is the thief not only of time, but of tricks.

In today's hand the South player avoided sure defeat by forcing East to make the vital decision of the hand—whether or not to discard a king—on the second trick.

South, dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♡	2♣	4♡
5♣	5♡	6♣	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

It is easily seen that by utilizing one or two spade ruffs, the North and South players could have defeated East and West's five-heart contract either 500 or 900 points. On the other hand, the North player could not be certain that the opposing contract was unmakable, and rather than risk losing the rubber, he decided to gamble on six clubs.

It is further evident that six clubs is a hopeless contract, as two diamond tricks must be lost. The declarer, however, did not resign himself to defeat. After ruffing the opening heart lead he saw one ray of hope. If he could strip both opponents' hands of spades and clubs and then play the ace and another diamond, and if the opponent who won the second diamond did not have a third one to lead, an automatic ruff and discard would ensue on whatever other suit was led. However, South realized that if he immediately went about stripping the hand, the defense would soon realize what was occurring, and by the time the diamond ace was led, would take the proper unblocking measures to defeat his purpose.

Therefore, at trick two South laid down the ace of diamonds. Had the East player been sufficiently farsighted he would have realized that there was something peculiar in this play and that it almost surely would not cost him a thing to drop his diamond king on the ace. However, East was not sufficiently clever to do this.

The South player continued by ruffing all his spades in dummy and the last heart in his own hand, and drawing the adverse trumps. He now led a low diamond, and poor East had no choice but to win the trick with his now blank king. He was forced to lead a heart, and this card was of course trumped in dummy, the last diamond being discarded from the South hand.

There is no doubt but that East should be charged for his failure to unblock, but South should at least get some mark of commendation for his brilliant early surprise attack.

Mr. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please inclose a stamped (3-cent), self-addressed envelope and address your question to Ely Culbertson, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

MUCH INTEREST IN GEORGIA STATE.

The Georga state bridge championship, held under the sponsorship of the United States Bridge Association and under the direction of the Cavendish Club at the Piedmont hotel October 26 and 27, is creating tremendous interest.

Not alone is this interest because of the two titles, pair and team-of-four, down for decision, but because the team-of-four event is the first step toward a free trip to New York and the grand national to be held in January. To win this trip, the team must win the regional, also to be held at the Piedmont under the direction of the Cavendish Club. But to qualify for the regional the team must have made a creditable showing in the Georgia state.

In my last conversation with Lewis Hamilton, chairman of the regional committee and director of the coming Georgia state tournament, he said that he thought four teams from Georgia would be allowed to qualify for the regional. As already announced the state team-of-four event will be on the knockout basis. Hence the four semi-finalist will likely be the teams that will qualify.

It is Mr. Hamilton's intention to hold a qualifying round in the state team-of-four championship if the number of teams exceed eight. This round will be board-of-match scoring. The eight highest teams will then start a knockout tournament. A knockout tournament is exactly like a tennis or golf tournament. In an eight-team tournament, four teams meet four teams in the first round. The four winners advance. The next round has two matches with the two winners going into the final round. Accumulative scoring will be used in the knockout matches in both the state and regional.

So much has been written about the team-of-four championship, it being the stepping stone toward the regional, that little attention has been paid to the pair championship.

Pair Championship.

Mr. Hamilton is undecided at this writing just what method will be followed in this event. If the field does not consist of more than 24 pairs it is highly probable that there will be no qualifying round but two sessions with the scores made at each session added together. Should the field be larger than 24 pairs, it is practically certain that there will be a qualifying session to cut it down to 16 pairs which will make an eight-table 30-board final. The Howell method with match-point scoring will be used.

There may or may not be a carry-over from the qualifying round should such be played. In former Atlanta tournaments, the qualifying scores had no bearing on the final scores, save to enable the owners to qualify for the main tournament. In some championships credit is given to those who qualify. A percentage of the score made is given.

The pair event will be played in the afternoon of October 26 and 27, with the team-of-four in the evenings of the same days.

The forthcoming tournament should not be confused with the other Georgia state, held for the past two years in the spring in Atlanta. That event is held under the sponsorship of the American Bridge League, the rival national organization of the United States Bridge Association.

The present holders of the titles in this championship are Mrs. J. T. Daniel and Don Daniel; mixed pair. Mr. and Mrs. William Derry, Billy Barrett and Don Daniels, state team-of-four; and Mrs. E. E. David and Sidney Smith, open pair.

Untily the two national organizations combine, it is likely that there will always be two different state championships. All of which is no blow to those who like to compete in exciting tournaments.

The Cavendish Club is most anxious to know at an early date the entries of all who are going to play in the coming championship. If you have no partner or team affiliation, yet want to play, phone the club, Hemlock 2374, and both Mrs. George Black and Mrs. Lewis Hamilton will be glad to do everything possible to secure you a partner or get you on a team.

GRAND JURY INDICTS HECHT IN AUTO DEATH

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Robert Hecht, of Atlanta, president of the International Cotton Waste Lintel Corporation, was indicted by the Prince Georges county grand jury today on a manslaughter charge in connection with an automobile accident.

The indictment charged Hecht with having struck and killed Floyd Chamberlin, of Columbia Park, Md., while driving through Berwyn on August 10.

LIFE TERM IS DEALT TO KY. BANK ROBBER

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Found guilty today of participating in the robbery of the Southern Deposit bank here, Elmer Fry, of Camden, Tenn., was sentenced by a Logan county jury to life imprisonment.

The verdict came after nine hours' deliberation, interrupted by four notices of the court that the jurors could not agree. It was reported that Fry would appeal.

End of Rainy Spell Is Seen for Atlanta

Today will see the end of the rain which drenched Atlanta all day Wednesday, the weatherman forecast Wednesday night.

He said indications were that the rain area will move away and that the sun will shine once more here. The temperature will range between 62 and 76 degrees. Low Wednesday was 61 and high was 69 degrees.

THREE MEN ARRESTED FOR SLAYING WOMAN

MARSHALL, Ark., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Three men were arrested today on first-degree murder charges preferred by Prosecuting Attorney Jack Holt in connection with the death last Sunday of Mrs. Mary Johnson, 65, shot by one of a dozen bullets fired into a crowded church at Witt Springs, 25 miles southwest of here.

The men arrested were Bige Horn, Aubrey Ragland and Burnace Horn, all residents of the Witt Springs community.

Holt said the Witt Springs community had been troubled in the past by alleged liquor distillers.

TULANE TO TEST BIG GATOR TEAM AT GAINESVILLE

Tech-Duke, Auburn-L. S. U., Georgia-North Carolina; Other Big Games.

By Kenneth Gregory,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The University of Florida, stronger and more versatile than in several seasons, makes its first Southeastern conference stand Saturday when Tulane's powerful Green Wave rolls into Gainesville for a renewal of relations after a lapse of 12 years.

This game offers one of the feature attractions of a program that includes three other intraconference battles and a trio of interloop clashes with Southern conference teams.

Florida football fans will be given a chance to observe the progress made by the 'Gator alumi coaching staff, composed of former star players, in the tangle with Tulane. It's a tough assignment for the Gainesville squad, but the players are being primed for the Greenies and conceding nothing in advance.

On the other hand, Tulane's experienced squad of hefty linemen and triple-threat backs has been given a top rank in the championship forecasts and will go into the fray favored. The Wave has been impressive in whipping Chattanooga and Auburn, while Florida gave a good exhibition in defeating Virginia Tech after a slow start against Rollins.

L. S. U.-AUBURN.

Louisiana State opens its conference slate against Auburn at Baton Rouge Saturday night and looks like a victor, judging from the Tigers' great comebacks to tie Rice and Southern Methodist in earlier games. The Plainesmen put up a great battle against Tulane last week before losing by two touchdowns and may be difficult to handle.

After romping over outside foes in their first two games, Mississippi and Tennessee square off at Knoxville for a Southeastern conflict and Alabama, the defending titleholder, entertaining Mississippi State at Tuscaloosa.

On the three interconference tussles, the clash at Furman between Georgia Tech and Duke is drawing the most attention. The Blue Devils are preparing for the game mindful of the 6-to-0 licking administered by the Yellow Jackets in the last game of the 1933 season after the Duke eleven had bowled over nine consecutive opponents.

A rivalry begun in 1895 will continue at Athens, with Georgia entertaining the University of North Carolina. It is the thirteenth game between the two institutions and is the "rubber" battle as each has emerged victorious six times.

KENTUCKY-CLEMSON.

The University of Kentucky continues its outside competition in its fourth straight nonconference contest, meeting Clemson College of the Southern in an interleague game at Lexington.

Vanderbilt, after consecutive conference victories over Mississippi State and Georgia Tech, takes a rest this week-end as the Commodores go to Cincinnati to engage Cincinnati in a night game Saturday.

In one of its rare home games, Sewanee entertains Tennessee Wesleyan on its gridiron atop the Cumberland mountains. The Tigers lost their opening conference mat to Alabama by a one-sided score.

Furman and Wake Forest open the week's card in a game at Florence, S. C., tomorrow, followed by a scattering of games Friday afternoon and night, including several important S. I. A. A. encounters.

PERSONNEL CHANGES ARE SEEN FOR FDIC

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(UP)—A further important realignment of federal banking officials and possible changes of personnel within the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, now torn by internal dissension, loomed tonight.

Differences of opinion between Chairman Leo T. Crowley and Comptroller of Currency J. F. T. O'Connor, its two officers, were pressing and it was believed President Roosevelt might intercede to bring harmony into this New Deal agency, now charged with the insurance of most of the country's bank deposits.

Reports persisted that O'Connor could be elevated to governorship of the federal reserve board, vacant since the resignation of Eugene R. Black. Federal reserve officials also have been urging O'Connor to fill the position as federal reserve agent at San Francisco, a $25,000 job.

Also involved in reports of impending changes are Marriner S. Eccles, special assistant to Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., and Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, undersecretary of treasury, both of whom have been mentioned as federal reserve board governor. In addition, there is still a vacancy on the FDIC board to be filled by a republican member. This position was vacated by the resignation of E. G. Bennett. If O'Connor was appointed federal board governor, another vacancy would exist.

Rail Pension Plan Goes Before Courts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration's proposed laboratory test of social legislation—a compulsory workers' pension—was brought before the courts today by the railroads on a challenge of its constitutionality.

The case came up for review in the District of Columbia supreme court before Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, the first step in an expected move to have the supreme court include this matter in its considerations of phases of the "New Deal" program.

The constitutionality of the railroad pension bill was challenged by 137 carriers on the premise that it violated the commerce clause of the constitution and deprived them of property without due process of law (the fourteenth amendment).

THREE PSYCHIATRISTS WILL EXAMINE NEU

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 10.—(AP)—An order, signed today by Judge William J. O'Hara, permits examination by three psychiatrists of Kenneth Neu, condemned murder, to determine whether he is insane.

The order was granted after a motion had been made by one of Neu's attorney's requesting the examination on the grounds that Neu has become insane since his conviction and incarceration some months ago. Neu is being held in the death cell of Parish prison here.

EPISCOPALIANS RALLY TO CAUSE OF MISSIONS

Bishop Calls for Unity of Action To Carry Burden Onward.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Faced with new curtailments in the missionary work which, for more than a century, has been its chief aim, the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States today rallied to increase the support of its domestic and foreign missions.

Presiding Bishop James DeWolf Perry, of Rhode Island, addressing 20,000 laymen, clergymen, and bishops at the first of the fifty-first triennial sessions called for united action of the entire church body to take the burden which "can no longer be left to the efforts of the faithful few."

"After years of hardship, testing every purpose of men's hearts, straining every loyalty that binds them, the church in pursuit of her mission, stands at the cross roads," he declared.

"Decisions on which destinies depend may be prompted first by high resolves, but at the last are proved by the capacity of loyal perseverance."

Bishop Perry warned against "the surrender of well tried principles and sure purposes.

With a white robed choir of 1,000 voices for a background, the chief dignitaries of the church, the house of bishops, the house of deputies, massed on the huge stage of the Atlantic City convention hall for the opening service after a stately procession down the aisles.

The high church-low church controversy, always dormant, is expected to flare later in the session with introduction of a resolution calling for elimination of the word "Protestant" from the church's name.

The joint commission on marriages and divorces is also expected to act on a proposal for liberalization of the ecclesiastical laws covering divorce.

JUROR DENIES THREAT TO "BURN" EDWARDS

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 10.—(AP)—John Luft, one of the jurors who convicted Robert Allan Edwards for the "American Tragedy" slaying of his friend, Freda McKechnie, today denied that he had threatened to "burn" the young mine surveyor two days before he was selected for the jury.

Edwards, sentenced to death for the killing, has petitioned for a retrial on the grounds Luft prejudged the case. He attached to his petition three affidavits in which neighbors of Luft quoted the juror as voicing the threat.

Confederate Veteran, 88, Married to Woman, 42

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A month's courtship which the bridegroom described as "cyclonic" culminated today in the marriage of J. F. Howell, 88-year-old Confederate veteran of Bristol, Va., and Miss Maude Sharpe, 42.

A soldier at 16, Howell said he married at 24 and lived happily through the stormy reconstruction period and long after-years until his wife died a little more than a year ago.

At the end of a year, the Confederate said, he decided to remarry.

His quest for a bride first took him to the Southwide Confederate Veterans' reunion at Chattanooga but the girl of his dreams was not there.

LILIENTHAL TESTIFIES AT NASHVILLE HEARING

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Testifying at a hearing involving the acquisition of utility properties at Knoxville by the Tennessee Valley Authority, David E. Lilienthal, TVA power director, said today that the Authority plans to continue the service the private utility now is rendering.

Lilienthal, giving evidence before the state railroad and public utilities commission in favor of the sale of Tennessee Public Service Company holdings at and near Knoxville to the TVA, said that "the TVA plans to render electric service to the present customers of the Tennessee Public Service Company and such others as may care to take the service."

Asked by Forney Johnston, Birmingham, of counsel for petitioners objecting to the sale, whether any prospective customers would be "denied" service, Lilienthal responded that service would be given to all consumers "subject to the usual limitations with which everyone is familiar."

As the hearing opened, Llewellyn Evans, TVA electric engineer, who testified yesterday, resumed the stand and submitted information requested by Johnston.

Chairman Harvey H. Hannah, of the commission, suggested that Evans' testimony be interrupted "as a matter of courtesy and convenience to Mr. Lilienthal "to permit the power director to testify. Hannah said he understood that Lilienthal wanted to return to the TVA offices at Knoxville as soon as possible.

PASSENGER MISSING OFF COAST STEAMER

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Norfolk police are investigating the disappearance of H. B. Wisby, said to be of Atlanta, Ga., who was reported missing from the Old Bay Line steamer President Warfield when the boat arrived here from Baltimore Tuesday.

Police said notes indicating suicidal intent were found in Wisby's stateroom.

WHAT SCIENCE FOUND WHEN "AUTO-FATIGUE" WAS MEASURED FOR FIRST TIME

CHICAGO, October, 1934—The laboratories of Dr. A. H. Ryan, prominent scientist, were recently the scene of the first tests made to measure accurately the effects of "auto-fatigue" upon the human body.

"We developed or adapted delicate instruments to determine just how much nervous and muscular impairment is suffered after long, hard drives," explains Dr. Ryan. "And our experiments proved that the Dodge car is actually 54% to 65% less tiring than the other cars we tested."

The new, bigger Dodge has an unusual combination of advanced engineering features. You are protected against engine vibration, road shocks, and other causes of fatigue. Obviously, the car lasts longer, runs with fewer repairs, when destructive vibration is smothered.

Get your free copy of the booklet explaining Dr. Ryan's tests, from any Dodge dealer. Then drive a Dodge. See for yourself that Dodge is easier riding, easier to drive, less tiring over hard roads and long distances. —(adv.)

METHODISTS READY FOR 'UNIFICATION DAY'

3 Branches of Church in Baltimore To Celebrate Occasion Today.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 10.—(AP)—American Methodism's three branches, united here today to celebrate the founding of the parent branch 150 years ago, heard church leaders speak for unification and prepared for tomorrow's "unifications day" program.

More than 1,200 delegates and hundreds of visitors heard Rev. Dr. James H. Straughn, Baltimore minister and Maryland church leader, warn the churchmen that "laymen are becoming utterly weary of dissensions in the Methodist family."

Though the celebration was planned primarily in commemoration of the sesque-centennial of Methodism, the note of unity has been sounded by leaders of all three branches of the church. The four-day meeting is expected to result in great progress toward a united church.

"Laymen are getting the idea that preachers are engaged in a fight with each other over issues that no longer live," Dr. Straughn said. "In some way we must recover the voice of the body of the church and it is most noteworthy that laymen have been admitted into the councils of Episcopal Methodism."

It was over the question of lay representation that the first break in Methodism occurred in 1828 when the Methodist protestant branch was formed. The other break was in 1845 when the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was formed following a split over the slavery issue.

Bishop Ernest G. Richardson, Philadelphia, president of the Anti-Saloon League of America, sounded a different note to the delegates. "It is the duty of Christianity to point out and denounce evil," he said. "Fear of criticism has no place in the Christian church.

"We are living in a day when a man who lifts his voice against evil is called a kill joy, but there must be no compromise. Compromise may be all right to achieve the ends of politics, but it is not for righteousness to use against evil."

WRECKAGE OF PLANE IS FOUND IN N. C.

HIGH POINT, N. C., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Winifred Miller, of the forestry division of the soil erosion service here, today told of finding in a laurel thicket near the crest of Mount Mitchell the wreckage of an airplane which he said apparently had fallen several years ago and not since been visited.

The discovery was made while Miller was on a week-end visit with friends in the western part of the state. He said that he made efforts to determine identify and ownership of the plane but was unsuccessful and will go back in a few days to take a party to the scene where the wreckage was found.

TALMADGE'S FRIENDS JOIN IN 'STATESMAN'

Friends and fellow office-holders of Governor Eugene Talmadge have acquired part interest in the chief executive's weekly newspaper, The Statesman, it was announced in a statement in the organ Wednesday.

The governor is listed as the associate editor with O. H. Bloodworth and Ben T. Huiet, public service commissioner, as business managers.

Stockholders are Governor Talmadge, Eugene Wilburn, chairman of the highway board; Zack Cravey, game and fish commissioner; J. B. Daniel, public service commissioner; Tom Linder, commissioner of agriculture-elect; Gordon Kettles, John Whitley, LaGrange road contractor; R. D. King and John Candler, members of the governor's staff; Meyer Regenstein, Rhodes Perdue, Hugh Howell, chairman of the democratic state executive committee; M. D. Collins, state school superintendent; George B. Hamilton, state treasurer, and Tom Davis, public service commissioner.

NRA PRICES EXTENDED ON POPULAR CIGARETS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—NRA today extended until January 11 the minimum prices fixed on the four popular cigaret brands of 13 cents a package or two for 25 cents.

State taxes are not included in these minimums.

Cross Sections in South's Gate City

J. C. Kircher and W. R. Hine, of the Atlanta regional bureau of the United States forestry service, are in Florida on an inspection tour of the CCC. Harry Lee Baker, Florida state forester, joined them in Tallahassee for the trip.

Fall school of the leadership training school for Sunday school teachers of the Presbyterian churches of Atlanta will open Sunday afternoon, continuing through Friday night. Outstanding leaders of the city will conduct devotionals each night.

Mrs. H. C. Watts was installed as president of the Jackson Bible class of Kirkwood Baptist church Sunday. A large attendance of 216 members was present for the installation of new officers at the Rally Day exercises.

Home-coming services of the Payne Memorial Methodist church will be held at 7 o'clock Sunday night. The Rev. W. J. DeBardeleben, former pastor of the church, and Judge Jesse M. Wood, a trustee of the church property, will speak.

R. E. Leatherman was welcomed as new state manager by the Maccabees and their friends at an informal reception and dance Tuesday night. The Atlanta organization of Lady and Sir Knight Maccabees was the sponsor.

"The Place Called Hell, and Why I Do Not Want to Go There" will be the sermon subject of Dr. W. H. Knight at the revival services at the Baptist tabernacle at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

D. M. Therrell, chairman of a special committee of the Atlanta board of education revamping board rules, indicated he plans to submit a rule to bar relatives of board members as employes of the school system. About seven of the 2,000 employes would be affected.

Councilman Max M. Cuba, chairman of the tax committee, announced Wednesday that a special meeting of the committee will be held at 7:30 o'clock next Wednesday night to consider petitions of hospitals for a reduction in city taxes for the year. The petition of the Atlanta Dental College also will be before the committee.

Tom Wilson, 31-year-old negro, of an Auburn avenue address, was arrested Wednesday night by police on "suspicion." He was caught after a long chase by persons who said they saw him break out a window at the South Side Loan Office at 163 Edgewood avenue and scoop up an armful of clothing. The negro dropped the articles and ran when he was discovered and was captured hiding in a vacant house, according to police reports.

About 50 citizens Wednesday submitted to Mayor James L. Key a petition urging a new site for the proposed new $1,500,000 city auditorium. Key got the petition just before he left to attend a sectional meeting of members of the Georgia Mayors' Association at Americus and made no comment.

J. Howell Green has been named city attorney for Decatur, it was announced Wednesday by Roy Abernathy, Decatur city manager. Green succeeds Bonneau Ansley, who has resigned due to the fact that he is to take up residence in Atlanta.

Governor Talmadge Wednesday said that he will comply with the new Florida law on the reciprocity agreement as to the free operation of commercial trucks within a 15-mile zone on each side of the state line. In the past the zone has been 30 miles, allowing trucks to operate in this area without obtaining licenses in both states, but merely in the state from which they operated.

Rev. J. H. Maw, missionary to the Belgian Congo, will address a meeting of the Student Volunteer Union of Emory University in the chapel of the Theology building at 7 o'clock tonight. Mr. Maw will supplement his talk with souvenirs he brought back from Africa. The public is invited.

FERA REPORT IS GIVEN FOR CHATHAM COUNTY

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 10.—The September report of FERA expenditures in Chatham county shows that about $100,000 was spent here by the government during that period. The amount was paid to 5,078 persons on relief rolls and for operation, general expenses and equipment. There were 2,199 white persons and 2,879 colored persons who participated in the relief. The report is that of Miss Rose Marie Smith, FERA administrator for Chatham county.

The canning plant established by the FERA here for canning meat from drouth area cattle has been completed and ready to start. It will begin operations in a few days when FERA state canning officials arrive.

REV. D. S. BAYLEY, 62, PASSES AT RESIDENCE

The Rev. Dwight S. Bayley, 62, an ordained minister, died early Wednesday morning at his residence at 918 Rose circle, S. W. He was a deacon of the Peachtree Christian church and was well known here.

Dr. L. O. Bricker and the Rev. Robert W. Burns will conduct the funeral rites at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, and the place of interment will be announced later.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. E. M. Haley; two sons, Theodore and Palmer Bayley, and a brother, Frank Bayley, of Seattle, Washington.

RELIEF MINE OPERATION OPPOSED BY INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The coal industry massed its weight today against reported plans of state relief administrations to lease idle mines and operate them with persons on relief rolls.

Representatives of coal mine operators and the United Mine Workers called at federal relief headquarters to urge that no federal funds be allowed for such projects.

SOUTH ATLANTIC AREA SHOWS BUILDING GAIN

Survey for Nation, However, Reveals Loss During September.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Building operations contracted by more than the usual seasonal amount in September, according to the monthly report of Dun & Bradstreet.

Building improved during August over July, but in September the total volume of building permits dropped 23 per cent under August. The normal seasonal decline is about 10 per cent.

The total of permits in September was the lowest for any month since last March and the lowest for any September in recent years.

The estimated cost of construction work for which permits were issued in 215 cities amounted to $26,520,686 in September, according to Dun & Bradstreet. This compared with $34,452,738 in August and with $32,243,704 in September, 1933. The decrease from a year ago was 17.7 per cent.

Building permit values for various parts of the country in September compared with last September as follows: New England $2,693,760, off 18.9 per cent; middle Atlantic $8,714,157, off 31.7 per cent; south Atlantic $2,970,042, up 36.4 per cent; east central $4,916,737, off 4.6 per cent; south central $1,872,724, off 44 per cent; west central $1,771,064, up 15.8 per cent; mountain $367,918, up 14 per cent; Pacific $3,214,284 off 11 per cent.

NEW DIESEL TRAIN TO CROSS COUNTRY IN 62-HOUR RUN

DENVER, Oct. 10.—(AP)—A dart-like six-car stream line passenger train will travel from Los Angeles to New York this month on a schedule of 62 hours, 24 hours under regular schedules, and 12 hours under the transcontinental railroad record.

The new Union Pacific train is of the Diesel motor type, stream lined, with three day coaches and three Pullman type coaches.

The schedule calls for 44 hours over the 2,298 miles of the Union Pacific tracks between Los Angeles and Chicago; 17 hours and 45 minutes from Chicago to New York over 960 miles of the New York Central track.

CHARLES REIF PASSES AT HOME ON LOOKOUT

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Charles Reif, 68, for many years prominent in business and civic life of Chattanooga, died suddenly at his home on Lookout mountain this afternoon. Physicians attributed death to a heart attack.

Mr. Reif was born in Cincinnati but removed here in 1890 to establish the Chattanooga Brewing Company. He was connected with a number of other business enterprises and a recognized civic leader. He was past exalted ruler of the Elks lodge and a member of the Chattanooga Turnverein.

Stock Mart Salaries Slashed 10 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange has reduced the salaries of all employes of the exchange 10 per cent, it was announced today. The reduction will become effective on October 16.

In the case of employes without dependents, salaries will not be reduced below $17.50 a week, and, in the case of employes with dependents, will not be reduced below $27.50.

This is the second time within the past three years that the exchange has reduced the salaries of employes by 10 per cent.

Farm Tenant Assured Of Equitable Treatment

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The farm administration will take steps designed to assure the tenant farmer equitable treatment under next year's cotton adjustment program.

It was learned today the administration shortly will call to the attention of landowners provisions in their adjustment contracts specifically protecting tenants.

These include pledges to maintain as far as possible, the normal number of tenants and other employes, to permit all tenants to occupy their quarters, rent-free, during the next season, and to make ratably among tenants whatever acreage reduction is determined upon, to avoid throwing any of them out of employment.

LEGION'S COUNSEL CLARIFIES POLICY ON VOTING RECORDS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The voting records of congressional candidates are being supplied by the American Legion, only at the request of state and local officers, a Legion spokesman said today, but otherwise the policy of the organization is "hands off politics."

"Every time an effort has been made to change that policy it has failed," said John Thomas Taylor, the Legion's legislative counsel, in an interview. "But a departmental or post official can write in and say, 'I'd like to have the voting record of this representative or senator,' and it is sent to him, without comment. We have no right to refuse such requests.

"When an individual Legionnaire writes in for voting records, we write back and tell him to have his post official request the information."

This procedure is followed, Taylor said, because records sent to post officials are read to the post membership, while if sent to an individual they might be used in "a purely personal campaign."

EARLE GREENE GETS FEDERAL GAME POST

Earle R. Green former president of the Atlanta Bird Club has been appointed United States deputy game manager at Lake Mattamuskett N. C. it was announced Wednesday.

'SUGGESTIONS' BARED IN OCEAN MAIL PROBE

Company Proposed Terms Before Bids Were Asked, Letters Reveal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Evidence purporting to show that the Colombian Steamship Company, Inc., suggested some of the terms of its ocean mail contract before bids were advertised was presented at the postoffice department's investigation of the mail contracts.

The evidence was contained in confidential correspondence taken from the files of the company in New York. The Colombian line received in March, 1930, a $5,500,000 contract to carry mail between New York and Port Colombia.

The letters showed that the company's Washington attorney, William I. Denning, sent a tentative draft of the postoffice department's advertisement to C. H. C. Pearsall, vice president and general manager of the company, asking for suggestions on such items as refrigeration.

Earlier correspondence showed that the United Fruit Company, which had once made a lower bid on the contract sought by Colombian, had indicated a willingness not to bid the second time if the government asked for bids on two routes in which it was interested.

When the second bids were opened it was found that the Colombian line was the only bidder and it got the contract at the same figures it submitted in the first bid—$2.50 a statute mile for Class 6 ships and $6 for Class 4. These bids were nigher than the United Fruit Company's first bid.

SECOND SUSPECT HELD IN RICHMOND ESCAPE

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A second suspect, accused of helping gangsters Walter Legenza and Robert Mais escape from the Richmond city jail, was under arrest here today as a special grand jury was summoned to investigate circumstances of the spectacular jail break by the two convicted killers on September 29.

Lawrence E. Davis, 24, listed in the city police director as a "telegraph operator," was arrested by city police and booked on a charge of being an accessory, before and after the fact, in the murder of Police Officer W. A. Toot, who was fatally wounded when the two gangsters shot their way out of jail.

City jail records revealed that Davis was an inmate of the jail from September 3 to September 8, while Mais and Legenza were being held there awaiting transfer to the death cell at the state penitentiary.
